U.S. SENATORS, ECONOMIST FEAR CATASTROPHE

Starvation, Upheaval Seen

By MORTON MINTZ, Washington Post

WASHINGTON—Senators and President Ford's top economist joined Wednesday in warning that the quadrupling of oil prices during the last year may be producing a world-wide catastrophe.

Unless the prices charged by the cartel of producing nations fall "quickly and sharply, the world will maintain a headlong course toward disaster,' 'including mass starvation and social upheaval, Sen. Henry Jackson (Dem.-Wash.) told a hearing of his Senate permanent subcommittee on investigations.

"Won't some countries go bankrupt?" he asked Alan Greenspan, chairman of the president's council of economic advisers.

While expressing certain reservations, Greenspan replied, "I don't think one could rule that out."

Sen. Charles Percy (Rep.-Ill.) said he had heard "disturbing, authoritative reports that the monetary system of the world would collapse" by mid-1975 if present prices — and present energy consumption rates — continue.

Greenspan, saying that "a number of countries are running into difficulties," essentially questioned only whether the crisis point would be reached in mid-1975, mid-1976, or "conceivably later."

He also said that the United States "can't really function very much longer in a viable way with heavy double digit inflation" — inflation of 10 per cent or more per year.

Enlarging the gloom which pervaded the three-hour hearing, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff (Dem.-Conn.) said that there is "no economically or socially acceptable way for the United States" to absorb the build-up of funds by members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries which is expected to total $650 billion by the end of 1980.

Ribicoff also rejected Treasury Secretary William Simon's assurance that the present banking system can stand the strains of the OPEC surpluses and said that the price reduction of $1 per barrel sought by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger would be almost meaningless. "At a minimum the oil producers must cut their prices of oil in half," he said.

Simon, in an exchange of written questions and answers with the subcommittee, rejected claims that rising prices for goods imported by OPEC members justified oil price increases.

Kuwait's oil minister made such a claim Monday. "We have increased the price to catch up with inflation caused by the industrialized nations," Abdel Rahman Atiqui told Jim Hoagland of The Washington Post. Partly to compensate the producers "for the continuing growth of inflation," he said, the producers should increase the price of crude from the current $11.65 to $20.

The senators joined in accusing Ford of not showing a sufficient sense of urgency about the situation. "Exhortations about saving one million barrels of oil per day or driving five per cent less are not enough," said Percy.

Ribicoff said he will introduce a bill next month to require the manufacture of cars that get at least 20 miles per gallon. "By that simple act alone, we would not have an oil and energy problem in the United States," he told Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton.

Button It Up —Nixon

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Richard Nixon told two of his top aides three months after the Watergate break-in "just try to button it up as well as you can and hope for the best," according to the first of his secret tapes played today at the cover-up trial.

The tape of his Sept. 15, 1972, meeting with John Dean and H. R. Haldeman was piped through headsets provided for everyone in the courtroom after Dean had vouched for its authenticity.

"And you really can't just sit and worry yourself . . . about it all the time, thinking, 'the worst may happen,' but it may not," Nixon said toward the end of the half-hour meeting. "So you just try to button it up as well as you can and hope for the best."

Nixon, meanwhile, today sought a court order to prevent the White House from releasing any more of his tapes except those already under subpoena or needed for the Watergate conspiracy trial.

Attorney Herbert Miller said the former president did not wish to block release of material already under subpoena or needed in the trail.

Nixon wants the right to review material sought by any new subpoenas to determine whether the tapes are protected by executive privilege or his right of priyacy before they are released in response to any new subpoenas. Miller said in view of a large number of pending lawsuits where the documents might be sought as evidence he expects more subpoenas will be issued, he added.

Before the tape was played, Dean testified that within a month of the Watergate bugging arrests he obtained confidential FBI reports on the status of the investigation and shared them with all five men now on trial for covering up the scandal.

Dean also testified that he had fully briefed defendant John D. Ehrlichman in June of 1972 about who was responsible for the bugging but heard Ehrlichman tell FBI agents a month later that the only thing he knew about the break-in was what he read in the newspapers."

In his second day on the stand, the government's star witness continued to recite the story he first told the Senate Watergate hearings 16 months ago.

Dean testified that beginning in early July of 1972 he obtained reports on the status of the Watergate investigation directly from L. Patrick Gray, then acting director of the FBI.

Dean said he showed an FBI memorandum to Ehrlichman and defendants John Mitchell and Haldeman and shared "raw FBI files" with defendants Robert Mardian and Kenneth Parkinson.

SOARING SPIRIT of Evel Knievel has got around but you can't expect proteges like Mark Morison, 2571 Vista Bay, to start out jumping river canyons. Island Woods Layoffs Soar

Close to half the woodworkers on southern Vancouver Island will be laid off by the end of this month, a union spokesman said Wednesday night.

"The winter is going to be very rough on the forest industry," said Jack Groves, first vice-president of the Victoria local of the International Woodworkers of America.

He predicted 800 of the 1,800 to 1,900 IWA members in Greater Victoria will be out of work in two weeks.

Major layoff areas include B.C. Forest Products, 150, Victoria Plywood, 200, and Plumper Bay Sawmill, 160, all of which have either occurred or are just about to, plus Sooke Forest Products where the work force will drop to 180 by the end of this week compared with 400 in the summer, he said.

Groves said it is "questionable" whether the industry is in "dire straits or is playing politics" to get the provincial government to reduce stumpage rates.

The pulp and paper section is "very lucrative" and the big companies are getting pulp chips from their own operations at a lower rate than from independent companies.

Rather than drop the price of lumber, he said, B.C. Forest Products in Victoria is reducing lumber to chips for the pulp and paper mills because more money can be made by chipping for pulp than selling as lumber.

But before, he said, the companies claimed the price of lumber was set by world markets.

"If they sold at a reasonable price before the foreign market would have continued to buy but they forced it too high and they refused to buy," he said.

"I think it's just a big political move. Certainly there are problems. But 50 per cent of the problems were created by the companies to get lower stumpage."

Britain Reinforces Troops in Ulster

Times News Services

BELFAST — The British army rushed 600 more troops to Northern Ireland today in an effort to end an outbreak of prison rioting and violence in the streets in protest against the policy of detaining suspected Irish Republican Army suspects without trial.

Demonstrators protesting the policy took to the streets of the second consecutive day today in continued violence sparked by the burning of Northern Ireland's main Maze internment camp. There were disturbances in Belfast, Londonderry, Dungannon, Newry and Lurgan.

Some street barricades were reported this morning in Belfast which also was hit by a wave of firebombings during the night. Two large buildings, one in downtown Belfast and the other in the market area, were destroyed by fire during the night, police said.

Police said two of the civilians wounded by gunfire where hit when gunmen opened up on their small truck.

Three others suffered leg wounds when shots aimed at an army patrol went astray and one man was gunned down as he waited for a bus.

The army said it shot another man who threw two firebombs in a Belfast street, but a woman helped him to escape.

Security officials said the prison riot had been carefully planned and along with disturbances at Armagh and in MacGilligan prison plus the street demonstrations appeared to be a concerted drive against the policy.

Most schools remained closed and few shops were open because so few employees could make their way to work.

Meanwhile, 100 women prisoners at Armagh jail who seized the warden and three women guards freed them unharmed early today after holding them for 14 hours.

Release of the four hostages came after the jail's Roman Catholic and protestant chaplains had assured the women that male prisoners who rioted in other prisons were safe.

The British government will not disclose the number of persons held since internment was introduced in August, 1971. The highest estimate was 2,100 in January, 1972.

Vancouver Police Get The Chop

VANCOUVER (CP) — City police have been ordered to cut their hair if it doesn't conform to regulations issued Wednesday by Chief Constable Don Winterton.

An order from the Chief Constable says beards may only be worn with his permission, moustaches must be kept short and trimmed, sideburns must not extend below the base of the earlobe and hair must be tapered at the back.

Hair must be clean-shaven for at least an inch between the hairline and the collar.

"The hair of female personnel may be cut in any style providing that it is neat and tidy and does not constitute a hazard in the execution of her duty," says the directive.

According to one source, the directive affects 85% of the department's personnel.

Man. Ups Premiums

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba motorists will be paying more for their automobile insurance next year but they won't know the amount of the increase until December.

For the second straight year the corporation blames increased claims and higher vehicle repair costs as the reasons for the higher rates.

INDIANS SCALP TAXI DRIVER

VENTURA, Calif. (UPI) — A cab driver killed in a robbery at an Indian camp last week, was scalped, according to police.

George Aird, 27, of Inglewood, was stabbed to death a week ago at the camp near the Los Angeles-Ventura County line. The camp has been occupied for some time by members of the American Indian movement.

Detective Braden McKinley filed an affidavit with Judge Albert Blandford Wednesday alleging that the cab driver was stabbed to death by two men as he stepped out of his taxi, after responding to a call from the camp.

The body was then dragged into a small wooden building and "everybody got inside the building . . . chanting and kicking the victim and passing his hair around," the detective said.

Authorities are hunting for the alleged killers, identified as Richard Rolling Thunder Mohawk, 25, and Paul Blue Cloud Durant, 29.

No New Powers For Food Board

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet has denied that he is considering extending the powers of the food prices review board.

Instead, he told the Commons today, he hopes the board can increase the scope of its activities without extended terms of reference.

Currently, the board has power only to report on food price trends, analyse price changes and recommend action to government and business.

Ed Broadbent, parliamentary leader of the New Democratic Party, had asked the minister whether the government was now prepared to extend the mandate of the board and give it power to roll back unwarranted price increases.

"No," Mr. Ouellet replied.

But the board could do more within the terms of reference it already has. An experimental food price survey, now under way in the Ottawa region, could be extended to other cities. And the board could help prepare a long-term food policy.

On another point, Mr. Ouellet said his department now is studying price changes in the beef industry to see whether price cuts to farmers are being passed on to consumers.

In a related development, federal and provincial food marketing boards were accused in a government report of setting unreasonably high prices, restricting supply and benefiting from import quotas which foster inefficient domestic production.

The report, leaked earlier to the press, on consumer interest in marketing boards, prepared for the federal government's consumer research council, also said the practices were benefiting only a small number of farmers and did not succeed in upgrading general farm revenue.

Reserve Award

VANCOUVER (CP) — HMCS Discovery, Canada's largest naval reserve unit, has won the naval reserve division efficiency trophy as the country's top unit for the third time. The trophy is awarded to the reserve unit judged the most efficient after staff visits and administrative efficiency inspections. The Vancouver unit won the trophy in 1955 and 1967.

Still Cut Off

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — The road link to this city remains closed after two mudslides blocked Highway 16 60 miles west of here Tuesday. An RCMP spokesman said only one minor accident had been reported as a result of slide activity in the past two days.

Land Tax Probe?

A royal commission investigation into the whole question of real property taxes in B.C. is one possibility the government is considering, Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said today.

Asked about the massive task facing the legislature's taxation committee which is preparing a report for the Nov. 1 legislative sitting recommending changes in B.C.'s property tax structure, Lorimer said the report might simply recommend interim measures rather than permanent changes in the tax system.

Some new tax measures are necessary before the end of this year to balance out legislation last spring setting all property assessments at 100 per cent of market value.

'Unfair' Questions . . . Then No Job

B.C. Hydro transit division was accused at Victoria Labor Council Wednesday night of not hiring a woman as a bus driver because she objected to answering a personal question.

Penny Harding told delegates she was asked in a job interview what were the grounds for her divorce.

She replied it was none of his business and had nothing to do with the interview or the job.

Then, she said, she was asked if she would fight if someone tried to rob her on a bus.

When she said she wouldn't fight, she said she was told "you're a lover, not a fighter."

Mrs. Harding told the labor council she has four years accident-free bus driving experience with Pacific Commuter and South West Coach Lines. She now works as an escort with Vancouver Island Coach Lines.

She said the first man who interviewed her wouldn't say why she was turned down but a second man said he had been told it was because of her "aggressive personality."

"I figure that it's not right to ask unfair questions," she said.

Mrs. Harding said she has asked for a second job interview but this has been turned down by B.C. Hydro.

Labor council president Burt Grainger, a B.C. Hydro driver, said his union, the Amalgamated Transit Union, has "gone as far as it can go" in pursuing the matter with the crown corporation.

"I have seen the personnel manager. I didn't get anywhere. B.C. Hydro still has the power to hire who they wish. We can try but we have no power," he said.

Asked if there are woman bus drivers, Grainger said there is one in Victoria and a number in Vancouver.

The council agreed to write B.C. Human Rights Director Kathleen Ruff.

B.C. Hydro said this morning it is not going to reply to any of Mrs. Harding's statements except to say competition is "very stiff" for bus driving jobs and "naturally" everyone who applies is not hired."

No Deal With Nixon Before Pardon: Ford

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Ford told investigating congressmen today that there was no deal behind his pardon of Richard Nixon.

cussing with Gen. Alexander Haig, Nixon chief-of-staff on Aug. 1 the possibility that the then-president might be pardoned should he resign.

Ford, however, said he made no commitment to Haig, in their conversation.

Sitting alone at the long witness table, Ford poured a glass of water from a silver pitcher, heard himself welcomed and praised for voluntarily coming to Capitol Hill and then read a 10-page, single-spaced statement explaining his decision to pardon Nixon.

He said the pardon was his own decision, made without any negotiations with Nixon.

At the time Ford was vice-president.

Ford added he had no knowledge that Nixon was about to face any criminal charges when he pardoned the former president.

The pardon was granted to "shift our attention from the pursuit of a fallen president" to the nation's problems, he said.

At his Aug. 1 meeting with Haig, he learned for the first time of "the damaging nature" of a tape-recorded conversation between Nixon and aides on June 23, 1972 — the tape which, once released, forced Nixon to leave office, he testified.

In that tape, Nixon discussed using the CIA to hinder the FBI's investigation of the burglary at the Democratic national committee's headquarters.

"Gen. Haig outlined for me President Nixon's situation as he saw it and the different views in the White House as to the courses of action that might be available and which were being advanced by various people around him on the White House staff," Ford said.

He said some in the White House were urging Nixon to "ride it out" through the entire impeachment process, fighting all the way, while others were suggesting resignation, "sooner or later."

Nixon's decision to leave office was a "major, major step" made after "grave, grave deliberations and it certainly constituted shame and disgrace," he added.

In answer to another question, Ford said he had no knowledge of any crime Nixon may have committed in any area other than Watergate.

Asked if he intended to apply the same "mercy" to the Watergate defendants, he said it would be inadvisable for him to reply since the cover-up trial is now under way.

But Ford said he does not believe the pardon has any influence on the special prosecutor's duty to bring charges against others involved in Watergate.

Gov't Plans Action On Gasoline Prices

TERRACE (CP) — Premier Barrett announced Wednesday that his government plans to do something in the future about oil company control of gasoline prices in British Columbia.

"In the long run, we plan to do something about the oil companies' control of prices in this province," Barrett said.

"I won't say any more about it at the moment."

Gasoline production in Canada is 100-per-cent United States-owned, he claimed.

The premier told about 300 people at Skeena Junior Secondary School that mineral royalties introduced by the NDP government are law and that the export price of natural gas will be going up again.

Earlier, in Prince Rupert, the premier was questioned by a class of Grade 9 students about his government's decision to ban the strap in public schools.

The students, members of a social studies group at Booth Memorial Secondary School asked what teachers should do about bad behaviour.

"I believe it is a parental responsibility," Barrett said. "I don't believe spanking as a weapon is necessarily a successful form of discipline in the schools."

A certain amount of horsing about in classrooms is normal but abnormal behaviour cannot be corrected by force, he added.

One of the youngsters said the strap is an effective form of punishment because students are afraid of it.

"You cannot get respect through fear," Barrett said. "You get respect through love and understanding."

Barrett visited Terrace and Prince Rupert Wednesday on the northwestern leg of a tour of the province which takes him to Vancouver today.

DOOMSDAY WELL-OILED

"I can't find any reason why we shouldn't move in that direction," upheld Ford's approach of first seeking by voluntary means to induce the auto industry to produce more economical cars.

Jackson focused on problems created by increasing lending by American banks to foreigners squeezed by high oil prices. In the first nine months of 1974 alone, such lending increased by about $15 billion, according to Simon. Jackson cited reports that U.S. banks now have abroad resources of $123 billion, or about one-fourth of their total. "It's a whole new ball game," he said.

"Will our financial institutions, and our government as the ultimate insurer, bear the major financial burden of the inevitable failure of poor and developing countries and financially troubled nations to repay loans used to buy oil?" Jackson asked. "If we cannot solve this immediate problem the world economy will surely disintegrate as each nation tries to protect itself with trade barriers and controls on capital movements."

Simon, in his written comments said:

—That "no control mechanisms" exist to prevent "unduly risky foreign exchange transactions by U.S. banks," but that the treasury is about to put into effect "a new reporting requirement under which banks in the United States, including the agencies and branches of foreign banks and the foreign branches and subsidiaries of U.S. banks, will provide weekly and monthly reports on their positions in nine foreign currencies."

—That 29 countries, mostly in Africa, may be unable to finance a desirable level of imports, and that some may be pushed below subsistence levels.

—That "private market and existing official mechanisms are not adequate for the most seriously affected and poorest of the developing countries."

—That trade deficits in the second half of 1974 are likely to approach $5 billion for the United States, $12.2 billion for the United Kingdom, and $10.1 billion for Italy.

Board Unfair Union Says

Two charges against the Greater Victoria school board will be laid under the Labor Code, a union spokesman said today.

The board will be charged with not bargaining in good faith and not commencing negotiations, within a 10-day time limit, said Bob Cunningham, vice-president of Local 382, Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Negotiations between the two sides for a new contract have broken down and the union has applied for a mediation officer.

Earlier, the school board charged the union with restricting services by not servicing night school rentals. That charge now is being investigated by the B.C. Labor Relations Board.

KIDNAP HUNT HALTED

Police have called off the search in the Jordan River area for the man who forced an American couple to sail their boat at gunpoint from the inner harbor on Sunday.

A helicopter and tracking dogs were used earlier in the week to search for the man, a spokesman for the Sooke R C M P detachment said today. No clues were found.

The abducted couple, from Bremerton, Wash., fled from the 24-foot sailboat after the man fell asleep.

The boat now is wedged in rocks near Sombrio Beach. Efforts to free it with the aid of a tug failed Wednesday, but were expected to resume today, police said.

Rockefeller's Wife Loses A Breast

Times News Services

NEW YORK — Nelson Rockefeller's wife, Happy, today underwent surgery for removal of a cancerous left breast, the vice-president-designate announced.

The surgery came about a week after Betty Ford, wife of the president, left hospital after undergoing a mastectomy herself.

Asked how the operation would affect his pending nomiation for the vice-presidency, Rockefeller replied: "I think at this time perhaps all of us should be thinking about Happy."

Rockefeller told the news conference in his Manhattan office that his wife had discovered a lump in her breat last Friday.

His wife probably was a little more conscious of the danger of breast cancer since the recent operation on Betty Ford, he added.

Community News Round-Up

The Saanich fire department is conducting a six-week babysitting course for those in NEWTON GARDENS. The course is open to anyone 12 years of age and over.

Velma McIntosh, president of the Newton Gardens Recreation Society, says the course will be held in the arts and crafts room starting Monday, Oct. 28, and ending Dec. 2.

As well as the firemen, there will be speakers from the police and the provincial health departments.

The course will cover such subjects as rights of babysitters and parents, feeding and handling of children, dangers, how to entertain and discipline children, and signs and symptoms of illness.

Loretta Hutton, Apartment 14, 1740 Newton, is in charge of registration.

In other news concerning Newton Gardens, the weekly newsletter is featuring a "swap and shop" classified section.

And the dance, scheduled for Oct. 24, has been cancelled.

There will be a call for volunteers for the recycling program when the VIEW ROYAL Ratepayers meet Monday at 8 p.m. in the Community Hall.

The recycling depot, which is open every second Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. was started by the school children.

Also to be discussed will be the community plan and the cancelling of the sewer referendum.

President Tony Miller says the community plan has been through the public hearing stage "and now seems to have fallen into the limbo of the Capital Regional Board."

Miller says another thing to be discussed is the "who and why" on the regional board is forcing things on View Royal.

"They (the region) are leaving other areas alone while stepping beyond their powers to force things on us."

THE Victoria West Community Development Association has a new chairman.

Alan Roger, above, a lawyer in the provincial attorney-general's office takes over from Rev. Phil Ross.

At a meeting this week, the group's publicity and membership committees met the executive "to thrash things out."

Roger says the group is experiencing "growing pains" because of the tremendous interest created by the Neighborhood Improvement program and the survey connected with it.

Roger says "we got to know each other and we also set out some of the goals we would like to reach."

He says it's refreshing, especially for the board, to see the enthusiasm showed by the two committees.

The new chairman has been asked to draw up a new constitution.

Plans were completed for the Halloween bonfire for the children of the area. The event, at Vic West Park, gets under way at 6:30 so the tots will be able to join the fun.

There will be treats for all as well as pop, hot dogs and fireworks.

The success of the "Junque" sale will enable the publicity committee to sponsor a dance in the Carleton Club in Esquimalt, Saturday, Nov. 23.

Roger says this will be an opportunity for residents in Vic West to get to know each other.

The executive of the NORTH WEST - MOUNT NEWTON Property Owners Association will meet this week to discuss two bylaws now before the North Saanich Council.

Both concern lot limits concerning the drilling of wells and the minimum building requirements.

A decision will also be made as to the date of the next general meeting.

Because of overcrowding there will be strict enforcement of the residency rule at Blanshard Elementary on gym nights, says Mrs. Lou Jordison of the DOWNTOWN BLANSHARD Tenants Association.

Because of the janitorial dispute with the school board, many gyms in the city are not open and there has been serious overcrowding on Monday and Wednesday nights when the Blanshard gym has been open.

Principal Ron Berod has been donating his evenings to open the school. Also, the B.C. Housing Commission says it will pay to have the gym opened Fridays.

The association, at a meeting Wednesday afternoon, expressed its appreciation to Berod for helping out at this time.

65 Persons Apply For James Bay Post

James Bay's community services centre will soon have an administrative co-ordinator and doctor.

James Bay Community Association president Beverley Kieferle has received 65 applications for the position of co-ordinator and 12 for the doctor's post.

The co-ordinator will be responsible for the office staff and co-ordinating the services of professionals on the centre staff.

The hiring committee which consists of Kieferle, Joan Johnston, Lou Madley, James Bay Community School principal Dave Allen and John Talbot of the provincial development group met Tuesday to study the list and meets again Monday.

Kieferle says the committee hopes to begin interviewing applicants for the co-ordinator's post at the end of this month.

Interviews of doctors will take place early in November.

James Bay is one of four pilot projects in the province which will see fully integrated health, educational, welfare and recreational programs.

Regional Group Further Defines Its Objectives

Victoria's Regional Advisory Committee which makes recommendations on programs to the provincial human resources department, is getting a foothold after eight months of existence.

The committee has been floundering since its establishment in March, admitted chairman Jim Beaubien, because its powers were never sharply defined.

Human Resources Minister Norman Levi met committee members last week to talk over the group's objectives and its problems overseeing social services in the city.

Discussion helped define the committee's duties and put it a step further on the road to advising on all services formerly handled by the city welfare department and private organizations.

City-administered welfare was abolished in Victoria on Sept. 1, 1973 under terms of the Community Resources Act.

Setting up the committee this year, Levi appointed members rather than have them elected.

A reason for appointments, said committee member Leni Hoover, is that well-known professional people tend to be elected by voters while Levi wanted neighborhood people directly involved in social services on the committee.

Though resource boards in B.C. communities such as Vancouver and Campbell River are handling much of the money coming from the province funds ear-marked for social services, Victoria's committee will handle no money directly.

Members will remain in an advisory role to Levi and judge the merit of all grant applications going to his human resources department.

ICBC's Wonderland Logic

While Greater Victoria's automobile insurance rates remain the lowest in the province local residents are still being discriminated against because other areas will receive subsidized reductions. Victoria will not. The complicated rate juggling revolves around the provincial government's mania for uniformity in automobile insurance rates.

In other higher risk areas of the province drivers will receive discounts of between $18 and $48 as the first step in establishing a province wide flat rate based on Victoria's low premiums. In other words, residents of this low risk area will endure current rates while drivers in high risk areas receive government subsidies so everybody will be equal, regardless of actuarial tables, logic or common sense. Using the Alice in Wonderland logic of the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia, trapeze artists should have the same life insurance rates as clowns.

Yet Transport Minister Robert Strachan passes off his subsidy scheme as blandly as Premier Barrett announced a dip into general revenues to bolster a faltering ICBC. In essence Greater Victoria residents are being financially penalized for their good driving records. Besides not being eligible for discounts local people have to pay a new insurance premium every time they buy a tank of gas. Provincial gasoline taxes — around $100 million for the coming year — have been earmarked for the so-called ICBC discounts.

Thus, in a very real sense, Greater Victoria drivers will be subsidizing drivers in other parts of the province so the government can work towards a province-wide flat auto insurance rate. ICBC appears to have a penchant for inverted logic and inoperative statements. First there were to be no subsidies for Autoplan. Then Premier Barrett announced that close to $100 million would be diverted from gasoline taxes into the scheme. Initially everybody had to have a $10 drivers' certificate; now the certificate is to be phased out.

The Times has always supported the basic concept of government automobile insurance in competition with private industry but this government is trying our patience with its continued Autoplan fumbles. If the auto insurance rates are to be uniform across the province, then all B.C. drivers should receive a discount. Anything else is undemocratic, discriminatory and plain stupid.

Hard Bargaining With the ECM

When Prime Minister Trudeau visits Brussels later this month he faces some hard bargaining in regard to Canada's trading position with the European Common Market. The federal government wants a "direct contractual link between Canada and the community" which would complement existing trade arrangements with member states. This would include an exchange of most favored nation status between Canada and the community, including preferential tariff treatment based on the General Agreement On Trades and Tariffs.

But the ECM wants a broader framework for trade than agreements on tariffs, quotas and such. The Europeans emphasize "guarantees of access to raw materials and energy supplies" and encouragement of mutual investment. To Canadian ears the European tune is familiar. The Americans play a similar melody when they talk trade with us. But Canada cannot afford to ignore European overtures. By 1977 our special trade preferences with Britain will be phased out and Canadian products will face an ECM tariff for the first time. It is interesting to note that over half our exports to the common market in 1973 went to Britain, representing a whopping $1.589 billion in export trade figures underlining the urgency of negotiating a stable agreement with the ECM as soon as possible.

Next to the United States the Common Market is our largest customer. Canada sent 12.4 per cent or $3.1 billion of its exports to the ECM in 1973, and 67.7 per cent or $17.1 billion to the United States. Obviously, more trade with the ECM would make for a less dependent Canadian trade pattern. But in recent years the growth of Canadian exports to Europe has been outpaced by our two major competitors — the U.S. and Japan. In addition our trade surplus with Europe is on the decline, from something close to $600 million in 1970 to $132 million in 1973 — and the latter figure represents inflated dollars.

Europe wants our raw materials and energy supplies and we want to sell our sophisticated manufactured products. It's a standoff which faces any Canadian government in international trade. What compromise will be reached remains to be seen but our hard lessons in dealing with the United States should restrain the government when it comes to signing away our non-renewable resources.

Lewis Clark and B.C. Flowers

Few British Columbians who care about the large variety of wildflowers that grace this province have not heard of Dr. Lewis Clark. His Wild Flowers of British Columbia is probably the most comprehensive and beautifully illustrated book on the subject. Prior to his death last March he was working on a series of six handbooks based on the original work — field books that could be easily taken on hikes or outings.

The Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association, of which he was a founder and past president, have now accumulated more than $500 in the Dr. Clark Memorial Fund. Using the interest from the fund the association plans to place copies of the handbooks in elementary schools for disturbed children. As Association Secretary W. R. Seaborn said: "Dr. Clark did much for our association and the province, and it is felt that this project will help keep his memory green in perpetuity."

JAMES RESTON

Ford Takes Cautious First Step

WASHINGTON — President Ford has now defined the economic crisis of the nation and proposed a catalogue of remedies. The question now is whether the solutions he proposed are equal to the crisis he defined, and the fear here is that he didn't bite the bullet but nibbled it.

In these abnormal times, and especially a month before the off-year congressional elections, he put forward some unpopular and politically bold proposals, but the whole thrust of his speech to congress was that the nation was in mortal danger, and he asked that Americans mutually pledge to each other, not "our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor," but our comfort, our support, and five per cent of our gas and oil.

Pearl Harbor

It would be hard to over-emphasize the relief in Washington to find a president stating, with the utmost sincerity, his belief about what had to be done in the interests of the republic. And for the first time in years, to see a congress that accepts him at his word, without doubting his motives.

Still, his proposals, honest and sensible as they were, scarcely measure up to the spectacular menace and danger he put before congress. Inflation was as bad as war, he suggested, while refusing to call for a declaration of war. "We have had enough early warnings," he said. "... the time to intercept (the enemy inflation) is almost gone." But he didn't intercept it.

"I say to you with all sincerity," Ford remarked in the peroration of his speech, "that inflation, our present public enemy, will—unless it is whipped—destroy our country, our homes, our liberties, our property, and finally our national pride—as surely as any well-armed wartime enemy."

Maybe it was wrong to define the question in military terms, and even to regret the absence of a Pearl Harbor to wake us up, but when he got down to his 10-point program of remedies, he was bold in his own framework as a conservative Republican leader, but scarcely bold in the framework of the world problem he now has to handle.

The inflation-recession problem is moving faster than he thought and the outlook now is that he is going to have to face seven per cent unemployment by mid-1975. He made concessions, which must seem to him as almost radical, in offering public jobs to the unemployed and other breaks to the poor, but again his estimate is probably far short of the need.

Even most liberal economists agree that we don't need mandatory wage and price controls, but we do need much tougher controls over pattern-setting unions and businesses. Apparently, the president is convinced that he should start with appeals to patriotism, and voluntary controls that bark but don't bite. At least he has made a beginning.

In his speech to congress, he has told his colleagues in the executive branch, his old friends on Capitol Hill, and the American people what he wants them to do. It is early for him but late for the congress, which is yearning to campaign for next month's election. If nothing else, he has clarified the problem for the average responsible family.

He has finally told them what he thinks they should do. We are in trouble, he has said. Whatever the president or congress decides, we can't make it unless you save gas, oil, and money, and help the country in an awkward time.

This is typical of Gerald Ford. He sees the world crisis and suggests laws to deal with it, but basically he believes that appealing to the American people for voluntary sacrifices will work—or at least must be tried before introducing compulsory legislation, and he may be right.

Catch Up

He is still in that transition period between being a partisan leader and a national leader, and the world economic crisis has come down on him before he has had time to figure out the difference.

In his address to congress, he proposed policies which he would obviously have opposed in his 25 years in the house of representatives, but he has still not caught up with the radical national and world economic problem his advisers in the cabinet are putting before him.

His instinct, and it is the centre of his life, is that first you must go to the people—appeal to them, organize them, give them a chance — and only then, if they don't come through, pass laws to compel what the country needs. Washington admires but doubts that this will meet the national crisis he defined in such dramatic terms, but it likes him and believes in his sincerity, and his caution. At least he nibbled the bullet and this is probably about as much as the country is now prepared to swallow.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Little People

In his letter to the Victoria Times (Oct. 8th) John Tisdalle, former Social Credit M.L.A., charges that the present NDP government "rode to the bank on the backs of the little people." Later, in the same letter, he attacks the overspending of Mr. Norman Levi's departmental budget estimates by $100 million dollars.

On the one hand Mr. Tisdalle alleges that the government is "riding on the backs of the little people," — and on the other he is finding fault with the government for giving the "little people" $100 million dollars more than the government had originally planned to give them.

In a detailed release to the press, Mr. Levi showed that during this year the government now estimates that its expenditures will be more than originally budgetted for by:

$23 million on Mincome.

$2.5 million on Medical Services and Pharmacare.

$45 million on Social Allowances.

These are extra expenditures made on behalf of the little people Mr. Tisdalle is so concerned about. Inflation hits them like everyone else. The wage earner is able to protect himself by wage increases. The person on fixed income, or no income at all, is not able to protect himself. The government has expanded its spending program to protect these people. Would Mr. Tisdalle have it otherwise? — J. Philip Fawcett, 57 Wellington Street, Victoria.

Goodwill Gratitude

Thanksgiving should be a time for thanks and we at Goodwill Enterprises wish to express our gratitude to all those in the community who have supported us so generously by means of donations or services throughout the year.

Without the generous help of the Times and the other media which have given us such excellent coverage, especially when our need has been at its greatest, the general public who have donated much needed clothing and other articles, the businessmen who have given us donations or the space to place our collection booths and of all those who have used our retail stores we could not have carried out our programmes for the training and employment of the handicapped.

The past year has seen a stiff fight to keep us supplied with those materials which are our lifeblood, but through the help of so many well-wishers we have been able to carry on without any cutbacks in the number of our handicapped employees. Our thanks are due to all of you.—Alec Reid, Community Relations Officer.

Joining Forces

Conservative leader, Scott Wallace seems to be blind to the fact that there are a lot of little people like myself throughout British Columbia, who are joining forces behind the Social Credit Party to rid this Province of the NDP in the next election.

I am sure we would welcome a $200,000 donation from anyone towards this end, but in the meantime, we are each contributing what we can in the way of donations and our time and resources, and I can assure both Mr. Wallace and Mr. Barrett that we mean business. Frank Clarke, 511 Mary Street.

Bad Manners

On the afternoon of October 7, while riding the University 14 bus that leaves the campus at approximately 5:35 p.m., I was witness to one of the most appalling displays of cheek and ill-manners that I have ever seen by a B.C. Hydro bus driver.

There were two elderly ladies (I would venture to say they were in their 80s) sitting quietly on the bus, talking, enjoying the lovely day and beautiful scenery, when the driver inquired of them: "Are you ladies just riding around?" When one of the dear old souls replied "yes," he proceeded to embarrass them by telling not just themselves, but the whole bus: "Welfare doesn't give you those passes just to ride around on."

I would appreciate it if B.C. Hydro informed that rather ill-mannered gentleman (?) that "welfare" does not give out free bus passes and ask the individual concerned just what business it was of his to enquire and remark as he did. I dare say he quite probably spoiled what was supposed to have been a lovely outing for the ladies. — Mrs. Ronald T. Robinson, 3096 Leigh Road.

Too Late Smart

I was intrigued by the letter from your correspondent of Thursday, Oct. 10 (Mrs. Simpson) re the Princess Marguerite.

Fortunately I was privileged to see an old vessel, the Star of India, lying secure and tremendously well maintained in the San Diego dock area.

How quickly we seem to destroy our past in this northern hemisphere, and then pay to see old treasures in other parts of the world.

The old Scandinavian saying: "Too soon we get old and too late smart."—J. N. Edgar, 1330 Munro Road.

Birds Of A Feather

I enjoy Harold Hosford's bird column, and was intrigued with his recent writing on the bird migration which is now active in our locality.

BOHEMIAN WAXWING
. . . rare bird

While out for a stroll on the church property, just behind my house, a bird new to me flew from the steeple and settled on the lawn. It had joined three others that I had previously failed to see.

Now these birds were slightly larger, but they superficially resembled sparrows. They had black bars with some white showing at the back which terminated in a fairly long and pointed tail. The males had more of an olive-green backing with brown streaks and some buff underneath on their stomach. They all had pointed beaks which they used to probe for bugs and occasionally they turned over fallen maple leaves. They walked as opposed to hopped and had a peculiar dip with their rear ends. Either they were doing a bird conga or they were frightfully oversexed.

So I thought of water dippers and turnstones which have their backfields in motion and excitedly rushed home, and hopefully thumbed through my Roger Tory Peterson for relief of my desperate identity crisis.

Now, all birds have Latin family names which makes for ease of identification. Birds of a feather have the same Latin name. This marvellous system places a robin in the Turdidae or Thrush family. Migratorius just happens to be his middle name. Nothing could be simpler, a robin is a thrush and it migrates.

The only problem was that water dippers do not have any other members of a family — not even any relatives — and turnstones happen to be surf-birds. Oh well, I've chalked up another species on my unknown list. — Douglas Brown, 3895 Scolton Road.

Bank Congestion

May I, as a customer at the Bank of Montreal main branch over a period of more than 40 years, strongly endorse the complaint by the manager, as reported in your issue of October 11, regarding the inconvenience caused by the congestion at the entrance to the bank? In inclement weather, it is sometimes difficult to make one's way to the door.

When this apparently unnecessary and costly change in the location of the bus stops was made, I definitely recall (though I cannot substantiate the memory by evidence), that it was stated, whether authoritatively or not, that the change was for a trial period, as the changing of patterns is the lifeblood of the traffic engineering department, it is surprising that further change is not now favored. Prima facie, as far as the east side of Douglas Street is concerned, surely the 1100-block is infinitely more suited for a bus stop than the present location of the two buildings in the block. The Canada Permanent's main entrance is on Fort Street, while the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce entrance is well set back, and is not the only entrance; on this block, there is more space for crowds to gather without causing an obstruction.

It is to be hoped that Ald. Hood is correct that the provincial government's proposed overhaul of the city transportation system might relieve congestion and that B.C. Hydro will provide better facilities for its passengers, instead of treating them as so much "bus fodder." — N. T. Porter, 245 Linden.

Work for Welfare

In defence of Mr. Levi:

We as taxpayers endorse his stand on employing those parasites of society who would rather take than give.

Susan Talbot's statement (Times October 7) "People are more important than dollars" to the majority of taxpayers is outrageous. If it were not for our contribution to society these unemployed would not last too long in their communes — their habits of either drugs or alcohol would suffer, child abuse would also see a decline.

Granted most people at some time in their life need assistance — but for months on end? When there is work of every description available through Manpower?

What do people like Susan Talbot and her group think we the general public are? A bunch of stupid idiots who work hard to support our own families, pay for taxes to improve society — schools, roads, parks, police and fire protection? Who wishes to still keep the "poor" brother who will not get off his own posterior to help himself? Take another good long look and instead of condoning their attitude, encourage these lazy people to go out and try to help themselves. We too are very tired of supporting the "rivers and rainbows" of our country. — Mr. and Mrs. R. Walker, Victoria.

From the Times of October 17, 1914

The name of Oak Bay, although it is that of an organized municipal district and for years has been the well-known designation of a large district, has disappeared from the list of post offices. In the list of changes made in the names of post offices, it is announced that this office has been changed to Victoria sub-office Number 12. No longer will the people of Oak Bay be residents of that agreeable quarter as far as the postman is concerned, but of a postal suburb of Victoria.

Millions Paid For Power

By ANTHONY LEWIS

At the Senate hearings on Nelson Rockefeller's nomination for vice-president, there was a solemn discussion of whether his family's money gave it power. Rockefeller dismissed that notion as a "myth." He hoped it would be "exposed and dissipated."

It was a wonder that no senator laughed out loud, or alternatively clutched his stomach. For no one needs to make subtle study of the Rockefeller holdings to find an attempt at influence. The family has spent millions in plain old cash money for the purpose of political power: to elect Nelson Rockefeller.

The last time he ran for governor, in 1970, he and his relatives reported spending $4.6 million on his campaign. The leading authority on American campaign finance, Herbert E. Alexander, estimates that the Rockefeller family spent $10 to $12 million on his campaigns for governor and another $12 million on his tries for president in 1964 and 1968. In the use of one family's money for political power, there has probably been nothing like it in American history.

Nor is the campaign money all. Nelson Rockefeller made himself acceptable to the academic and journalistic establishment by surrounding himself with a highly-paid staff of lawyers, eggheads and writers. He promoted himself through two costly commissions on "national goals" and "critical choices." And it worked. He would certainly never have made it so far on only his natural charm, brains, wink and grin.

Now we discover that he was actually buying political security, too, though of course in the most decorous way.

In 1960 he lent $100,000 to the New York State Republican chairman, L. Judson Morhouse, to buy some real estate on Long Island. Rockefeller's spokesman explained that the chairman's job was unsalaried and the governor wanted him to have some income so he would be less subject "to temptation." Or more subject to his benefactor?

Morhouse, still not beyond temptation, was later convicted of bribery. Governor Rockefeller commuted the sentence. Then he wrote off $86,000 of the loan, making it a gift.

Rockefeller also gave $50,000 to Henry Kissinger three days before the Nixon administration took office in 1969, and an unspecified amount to William J. Ronan, chairman of the New York Port Authority. The spokesman said the latter gift was motivated by "friendship and the governor's desire to help keep a good man in government." All this has come out into the open only because the Senate committee demanded and got Rockefeller's tax returns.

Richard Nixon nearly had to leave the ticket in 1952 when it was found that a number of businessmen contributed to a fund to supplement his public salary. With many contributors, improper influence might be hard to find. But it is surely much more dangerous, and a clearer violation of principle, to have a single immensely rich man giving large sums of money to key officials.

The lack of public interest in Rockefeller's nomination for vice-president has been rather odd all along. After Watergate, one would have thought that the necessary symbols for high national office were candor, courage and respect for law. Rockefeller's record and character are to the contrary.

Law has been treated by Rockefeller as an instrumental tool of politics. He kept proposing welfare residence rules after the Supreme Court had held them unconstitutional — because they appealed to the voters' mood. Politics also underlay his tremendous campaign for a drug law whose irrational savagery probably exceeded anything in Anglo-American practice since the horrors described by Dickens; even in amended form, with automatic life instead of death sentences, the law has been held unconstitutional by one New York court.

At Attica, he refused to make the trip to the prison that those on the scene believed could avert slaughter. To this day he has not had the honor or the decency to admit what happened afterward: The killing of 39 persons by state policemen firing broadside into a crowd. On those points the record is that of an inhumane opportunist.

But aside from that record, there is the inescapable question of money. As a symbol of this country's values it is bad enough that our laws allow one man to inherit hundreds of millions and, sometimes, to pay no income tax. It would be scandalous if, Congress did not carefully consider the effect of making a man with such economic power vice-president and very possibly the 1976 presidential nominee. What an irony it would be if, after Watergate, we let someone who has abused the power of money and politics so grossly slip into our highest office.

Nixon: China's Man for the Times

By Dennis Bloodworth

Returning from his visit to Peking last month at the head of a bipartisan delegation, Senator William Fulbright remarked that the Chinese had shown little interest in the resignation of Richard Nixon or his replacement by President Gerald Ford, and the Communist party press has given the episode curt coverage. But the Chinese leaders will none-the-less be watching events narrowly to see whether Ford will be less hampered by hostility at home and so freer to move America closer to China, or whether what they regard as the folly of hounding Nixon is to be compounded by a shameful public attack on his successor for pardoning him.

The Chinese would certainly shy away from discussing this development in mixed company from Washington, for in their book any further hailing of Nixon would be immoral and iniquitous (the salon Maoists of the West do not reflect this view, but then nothing misrepresents the genuine article more than a cardboard cut-out of it.) Chang kung shu tsui say the Chinese, let the merits atone for the crimes, and Chinese Communist leaders remain faithful to their principle. In consequence many ideological sinners with good past records are in time redeemed and restored to office in China if they repent, while the few who must be destroyed — like Lin Piao, Chairman Mao's dead and disgraced heir-designate — are first stripped of all suspicion of virtue and clothed in a new, ready-made record of seamless villainy dating back to their earliest days in the Party.

But in the eyes of Peking Nixon does have merit. He negotiated a detente with China and a cease-fire in Vietnam, and he still left a strong enough American presence in the Far East to discourage Russian intrusion. He played the game when its name was ping pong, and he should be allowed an honourable exit.

The moment throws up its man, the Chinese believe, and the current nationwide drive against Confucius and Lin Piao which has been furrowing the foreheads of the millions from one end of China to the other, is indicative of their attitude. For while they now damn Confucius as a feudalist, they praise the First Emperor of the Ch'in Dynasty as a "progressive". Having conquered all China by practising a policy of ruthless treachery and unprecedented brutality, this despot skulked in his vast palace in constant fear of death, executing at once any man who revealed his movements. He did not dispose of any tapes, but he burned all the books in China, except for a few which he kept within his palace and refused to let anyone look at. He also buried several hundred scholars who illegally tried to preserve for posterity some literary remnant of their incinerated culture.

The Communists nevertheless hailed him as a hero because he welded a clutch of effete feudalistic states into one solid empire within which laws and language and even the length of cart-axles were standardised, and gave it its very name — China. They blame the burning of the books on to his evil henchmen, and by the same token they do not imply that lieutenants of the ex-President who have been implicated in the Watergate affair should be reprieved. What meritorious acts did they perform to compensate for their crimes? Let them rot.

Nixon is different. The Chinese are persuaded that times of stress and turmoil demand leaders of outstanding talent, and it is in the nature of leaders of outstanding talent to have outstanding shortcomings also. But these are irrelevant. "Even if they bear shameful reputations, even if they are mean and despicable in their conduct, or inhuman or unfilial, men who know the art of ruling the State or of commanding troops must all be employed and promoted," a villainous Chinese hero once ordered his subordinates.

The founder of the great Han Dynasty had already proved the soundness of this policy two centuries before Christ when he appointed as his intelligence chief a glib deserter from the enemy who was habitually lazy and spent his time drinking and wenching, simply because there was no sly trick or foul deceit that the fellow's devious and conniving mind failed to engender. For as the dignitary who first recommended him to his doubting prince pointed out, what was required was not a virtuous gentleman but a brilliant strategist in his own nasty field, and here was the right rascal for the job. What had his private life got to do with it? Who cares if he was dissolute and corrupt and slept with his sister-in-law?

The Chinese judge by results. The man who reunited China under the short-lived Sui Dynasty after 360 years of divisive fratricidal slaughter massacred his own sovereign and 59 princes of the blood to reach the throne, and then began restoring the sick empire to health by ruling with exemplary vigour, prudence and thrift. The most glorious reign of the T'ang Dynasty that succeeded the Sui in the seventh century was that of a younger son who ambushed and assassinated his brothers and then killed off all their male children in order to become Emperor himself.

His was succeeded by another prosperous era under the Empress Wu, who put her foot on the bottom rung of the ladder when she killed her only baby in order to incriminate a rival, and then climbed to power over the bodies of three crown princes. In the years of peace and plenty that followed she summarily disposed of 30 members of her family in various ingenious ways, 50 imperial princes (with wives and children in the case of 19 of them), 36 senior officials and generals, and some 3,000 assorted families of note. But she cut military spending, encouraged farming and commerce, never promoted her relatives, and often appointed as Ministers honest and able men highly critical of her own conduct (one of them an ex-magistrate now known to millions as Judge Dee).

These remain great figures in Chinese history, and it is therefor hardly surprising if even the Communists see the uncontrolled atmospheric explosion of the Watergate scandal as a "dirty" bomb that split America and weakened the President just when the full weight of both was wanted in the international arena. Is it possible, they ask, that he will now be harried further (and his successor weakened in his turn) in the name of the law — that narrow Western law without justice that produced the "unequal treaties" under which imperialist bullies like Britain, Russia, and France wrenched chunks of territory from the feeble body of a defenceless China during the 19th century?

It is not fair, the pragmatic Chinese would reproachfully tell the sporting Anglo-Saxons. Nixon has resigned and therefore has paid the price of his errors. To exact a higher one is only to increase your debt to him. It is not right, the atheistic Chinese would protest to the Western Christian. His resignation was an act of confession. The man has repented, and he must therefore be forgiven.

Any compliment the Chinese pay Nixon may sound like a backhanded slap, for he appears to keep strange company in the corridors of their history. But these egregious examples of vice and virtue from the past have been chosen to underline the general principle that the Chinese primarily measure public figures by the good they do, and the Chinese Communists by the good they do for the Chinese Communist cause — even if that good is of necessity incidental when performed by a bourgeois-reactionary capitalist.

What Nixon does at home is of no consequence. Watergate is immaterial and words count for nothing. The Chinese Prime Minister Chou En-lai has been called "subtle and devious" a thousand times. What is so wrong with "Tricky Dick"?

Secrecy Mania

THE GLOBE AND MAIL

Has the mania of governments for secrecy now triumphed so absolutely that any document written in the name of government can automatically be held back and covered up, even from the due processes of justice? Have communications between civil servants and their superiors become as privileged as the secrets of a client to his lawyer?

It appears that subsection 41(1) of the Federal Court Act, which empowers a federal cabinet minister to withhold documents from examination by any court, is merely the legal tip of a largely submerged iceberg.

How else are we to explain the refusal, by a federal Ministry of Transport official, to turn over a report of a ministry investigation of an air crash to the coroner conducting an inquest into the same crash? Robert Phillips, the MOT investigator, told Coroner Michael Moore, at the inquest into the deaths of nine people in a crash last February near Frobisher Bay, that the report was ready for publication. But he refused to release it without approval from his superiors in Ottawa.

A ministry spokesman said the purpose of its crash investigation reports was to improve aeronautical safety, not to provide evidence at inquests.

By the same line of reasoning a policeman who happened to witness a shooting while on traffic duty could refuse to give evidence at an inquest, or a murder trial, on the ground that his assignment was merely to catch drivers making illegal left turns. Or a citizen who witnessed the same shooting could maintain that he need say nothing because his only purpose in passing the scene at the time was to return a book to the public library.

Mr. Moore has warned that if he believes the inquest jury is not getting all the available evidence he will order a judicial inquiry. So he should. Transport Minister Jean Marchand, after this pressure, said the government would release the report—eventually.

But who will inquire into the chronic denial to the citizens of Canada of information to which they are entitled?

The Decline of Elegance

RUSSELL BAKER

I have been saddened recently by several letters characterizing me as a "male chauvinist pig." What has become of elegance? These letters come from well-educated women with sound argumentative powers yet they cannot resist making their points in the coarse, loud-mouthed style we now take for granted in professional athletes, TV clowns, Congressional candidates and almost everybody else who craves attention.

Elegance in assault makes it more deadly in a civilized way, whereas billingsgate degrades the cause in which it is made by associating it with yahoos.

After Pearl Harbor, Winston Churchill sent the following words to the Japanese Ambassador:

"In view of these wanton acts of unprovoked aggression committed in flagrant violation of international law and particularly of Article I of the Third Hague Convention relative to the opening of hostilities, to which both Japan and the United Kingdom are parties, His Majesty's Ambassador at Tokyo has been instructed to inform the Imperial Japanese government in the name of His Majesty's government in the United Kingdom that a state of war exists between our two countries.

"I have the honor to be, with high consideration,

"Sir,

"Your obedient servant,

"WINSTON S. CHURCHILL."

Some people, Churchill recalled, did not like this ceremonial style. "But after all," he said, "when you have to kill a man it costs nothing to be polite."

That was elegance, in the way that Senator Goldwater's reminder that the United States could deliver a nuclear warhead on the men's room in the Kremlin was not elegance.

Cinching arguments by crying "male chauvinist pig" is not only not elegance but also a gratuitous abuse of Sus scrofa, a harmless and useful beast who has done nothing against the feminist movement. Destroying the reputation of dumb beasts for political gain is not elegance.

Destroying an excellent word like "chauvinist" is anything but elegance. "Chauvinism," according to the American Heritage Dictionary, means "militant and boastful devotion to and glorification of one's country; fanatical patriotism." In the feminist battle cry, "chauvinist" is inelegantly stripped of its meaning and used as a meaningless modifier, presumably because it is fun to say.

The decline of elegance corresponds with the decline of respect for language. It would be unfair to blame the feminists for the outbreak of barbarism, which is turning English into a blunt instrument. They have merely been contaminated by the plague.

Not surprisingly, they use ear grinders like "sexism" and "consciousness raising" to express perfectly sound ideas, for they live in a national hubbub compounded mostly of grit (expletives deleted), bombast (Muhammad Ali) and nonsense (most of what is heard on television).

Moreover, the rare person who has elegance cannot be heard over the racket of the vandals seeking the mother tongue. Frank Gifford has it on that Monday night football show, and nobody seems to care. Edwin Newman has it on N.B.C., and the network keeps him locked in the attic.

Radio refuses to hire disk jockeys who know that "presently" doesn't mean "now," for you can drive 500 miles and be informed by 95 radio stations that "the temperature is presently" whatever it is at that very moment. "Presently" doesn't mean "now," it means "soon," and not knowing the difference is definitely not elegance.

Not long ago, I heard a radio man announce that three convicts had "successfully escaped" from jail. If he had had elegance he would have explained how they might have unsuccessfully escaped, but he lacked it, and sure enough, a moment later, he gave me the weather forecast for "the upcoming weekend."

Elegance is giving the weather forecast for the coming weekend, or even for the weekend, but they don't hire them kind of guys no more.

And now sad news from Theodore Bernstein proposes that we abandon the use of "whom" because none but the truly elegant can master it.

Give up the struggle with "whom?" Come on, Bernstein, don't let the banner fall. It's only a short step from quitting on "whom" to agreeing that maybe "presently" really does mean "now," and then that male pigs really can be militantly and boastfully devoted to their own country, which would put us all in the "sexist" position of ascribing fancier powers to male pigs than to their female counterparts — "female counterparts" being the sort of inelegance you fall into when you are too bullied to say "their ladies."

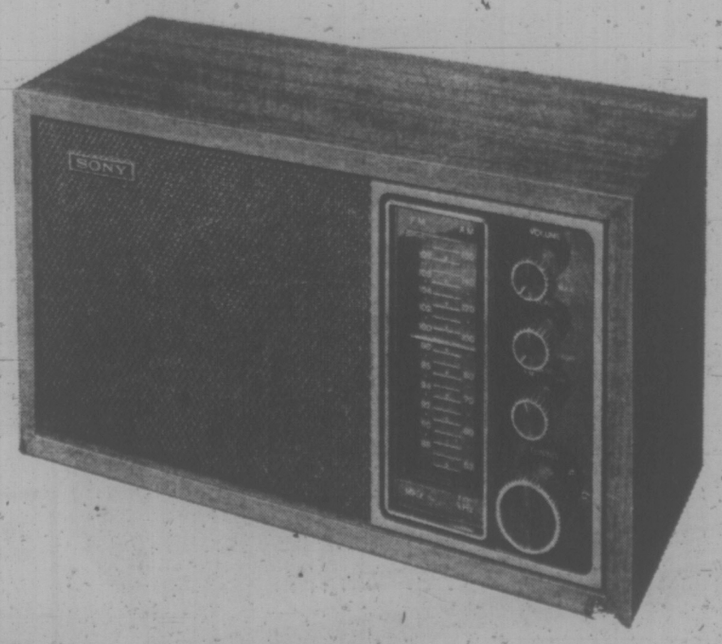
The SONY® FM/AM Table Radio

Mind you, it looks great, but for great radio sound you just have to hear the Sony TFM-9440W Table Radio. First of all, there's a look of fine furniture in the walnut grain wooden cabinet that supplies fine resonance for the large full-range dynamic speaker. A power output of 2.5 watts (max.) is combined with silicon coupled circuitry for low distortion and wide frequency response. It has illuminated slide rule tuning, a continuous tone control as well as built-in loudness control for more natural sound and built-in AFC for pin-point FM tuning.

Looks good. So do all the Sony Table Radios. But the great thing about them is the sound. And the place to hear them is your Sony dealer.



SONY® You'll never know how great it is until you turn it on.

Officials Study Crime Control

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Organized crime is mushrooming an dthe question is, why?

An oil rush fever sweeping Alaska will generate a surge in criminal activity, but to control it the question is, how?

Changes in the justice systems in western U.S. and Canada has prompted a sharing of technology and information, but the question is, what?

These and other questions are the subjects of a two-day conference which started in Victoria today.

Sponsored by the planning division of the British Columbia Justice Development Commission, the conference has brought planning officials from Alaska, Idaho, Washington and Oregon here to discuss with their B.C. counterparts mutual justice and criminal problems. It is the first such meeting ever held in the northwest region.

In addition to state officials, two representatives of the U.S. federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) from Seattle regional headquarters are present.

Organized by David Mead, a systems analyst and a member of the B.C. Justice Planning Commission, the conference arose out of the national meeting of U.S. State planners in Ogonquit, Maine last July which Mead attended as an observer.

He said after talking with planners from this region he realized a closer liaison would be beneficial in tackling the awesome justice problems facing both nations.

Addressing the opening session today, Dr. Malcolm Matheson, member of the B.C. Justice Development Commission said he hoped the meeting would be the first of a series of contacts with U.S. justice officials.

"We have a large number of problems in common and share some very strong links.

"We are looking for a series of relationships with U.S. authorities, particularly at the planning level."

He noted drug enforcement officers from western U.S. and B.C. will meet here Oct. 28 to share knowledge of the drug problem on the west coast.

Matheson expressed an interest in the American LEAA program which this year will pump $900 million into the states' budgets to improve the quality of justice.

"We are putting pressure on our own federal government to work out a broader cost sharing program," he said.

The problems facing the two nations are formidable and none looms larger than organized crime.

There is growing concern a Mafia family is making a bid to establish itself in California, particularly the San Jose area.

Up to now California has been loosely organized.

If it becomes established the family would control all major crime between Mexico and Canada, an informed source said.

"We know what organized crime has done to the east coast and we don't want the same thing to happen here," said John Hayden, director of intelligence for the Washington State Police a participant in the conference.

Washington State representatives are also concerned about the impact of more liberal gambling laws passed by the State Legislature in 1973.

The law allows bingo, raffles, punch boards, pull tabs and card rooms in those counties voting in favor of such operations.

The crux is anybody can apply for a licence.

"Organized crime is very interested is becoming involved," Hayden said. "And when it does it's going to mean trouble."

Perhaps the most intriguing problem is facing Alaska where a boom rivaling the gold-rush days of '98 is gaining momentum as the North Slope oil reserve is developed.

Deputy director of the State Planning agency Keith Stubblefield said the tremendous influx of money — even security guards can expect to earn up to $45,000 a year — will attract such concomitant evils as gambling, prostitution and drugs.

"First we have to identify the problems," he said. "Then we have to work out solutions before too much harm is done."

The oil bonanza will put more than $900 million into the Alaskan economy. By comparison during the period 1898 to 1928 all the gold taken out of the Klondike barely totalled $200 million.

ARABS' LIKELY TARGETS LISTED

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Eighteen major West European airports are highly vulnerable to Arab guerrilla attack because of lax security or proximity to terrorist activity, says a United States government survey.

The survey, by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), lists Geneva and Zurich among the 18 airports.

The two are particularly vulnerable to attack because of Arab guerrilla anger over Switzerland's willingness to host the Middle East peace conference in Geneva.

"Attacks of this kind (at Geneva and Zurich) would be aimed at disrupting the peace conference and as punishment of the Swiss for allowing the conference to be held in Switzerland," the FAA said.

The study says Arab guerrillas have struck most frequently at Munich.

It adds that West Germany has consistently been a favorite Arab guerrilla target because of Bonn's "close Israeli ties."

Mrs. Richards Makes Sixth Council Bid

For the sixth time — including two byelection bids — Margaret Richards, 67, will be trying for a seat on city council in the Nov. 16 civic election.

Her candidacy announced Wednesday brings to eight Victoria's list of aldermanic hopefuls, which includes three incumbents.

Mrs. Richards, of 901-740 Burdett, has served on Victoria's Advisory Planning Commission for the past three years and says she has travelled in Europe, Asia and North America studying city planning.

She represented tenants' interests on the recently-disbanded Greater Victoria Landlord and Tenants Advisory Bureau, an experience which left her "appalled" at the rental crisis facing people of all ages, particularly young families.

Mrs. Richards said she feels strongly that much more consideration should be shown to the elderly, whose "last years should be their best years."

In particular, she advocates financial aid to senior citizens for the purchase of spectacles, dentures and hearing aids, and more terminal care facilities of the type provided at Gorge Road Hospital.

Mrs. Richards said she belongs to a number of organizations including the Canadian Legion, the Women's Canadian Club, Victoria Council of Women, Maritime Museum, Beacon Hill Park Association and the Hallmark Society.

SAY "YES" the United Way

New dual ingredient medicine double effective for hemorrhoid sufferers.

The combination of an anaesthetic to relieve pain and itch quickly, and a soothing cream to help heal sore tissues makes new Hemoraids particularly effective on hemorrhoids.

Diperodon Hydrochloride—the water-soluble anaesthetic — spreads long-lasting relief directly into sore tissues by combining easily with natural, protective body moisture. This helps Hemoraids' smooth cream to effectively coat the irritated area, quickly relieving pain and itch.

The anaesthetic is carried in a soft-textured cream which can be spread over the most sensitive tissues without additional discomfort. And this soothing, cooling cream, in itself, has valuable healing properties. In suppository form, Hemoraids melts quickly and easily after insertion, becoming a gentle, healing cream.

New Paper For Oak Bay

A 20-page community newspaper for Oak Bay residents will publish its first issue next Wednesday under the masthead, The Oak Bay Star.

Publisher Dan Heffernan, who with former Victorian general manager Frank Hird-Rutter, also puts out the Saanich Courier, said the Star will be distributed free each week to 5,550 households in Oak Bay.

Heffernan said the paper will include news features, sports and social items.

Apathy Again At UVic

Apathy is again suffocating student elections at University of Victoria, with only two of 25 positions being contested.

UVic student president Kirk Patterson said 20 students have already been elected by acclamation to the representative assembly, and three positions remain uncontested.

Patterson is "disappointed, but not surprised" at the lack of student interest in Monday's election.

He blames apathy on "the structure of student government. With a total of 46 members on the assembly it's just too big, to bulky and many students do not consider it a viable group."

Patterson is re-writing the government constitution to create a smaller representative body.

Two student positions being contested are communications director and academic affairs director, with two students running for each.

POLICE AID FIRE VICTIMS

The Victoria Police Mutual Benevolent Association has come to the aid of three families whose homes were destroyed by fire.

The association, which set up a $5,000 energency fund Oct. 2, announced Wednesday about $550 has been given to the families.

Association president Douglas Grant said two double beds and two cribs worth about $400 were given to Howard and Muriel Morris and to Wayne and Caroline Morris whose home on the Tsartlip reserve was destroyed in a fire Monday. The Wayne Morrises also have two young children.

A clothing voucher for $150 was also given to Darlene Starling, the mother of three children, whose home at 1139 Mason was burned Saturday.

Money for the fund comes from the police-sponsored annual circus.

P&O Adds New Cruiser

Victorians will see a new cruise ship when the Sea Venture begins her new life with P & O lines.

The company, which owns cruise ships travelling most of the world, has purchased the 20,000 ton Sea Venture from her Norwegian owners to make it third in P & O's West Coast fleet.

The new ship will work alongside the Island Princess and Sun Princess, formerly the Spirit of London.

Sea Venture will be delivered after April, 1975, to begin cruises from the West Coast to the South Pacific, Australia, south to the Caribbean and north to Alaska.

...with Citation cabinets. The mellow wood tones of our skillfully crafted cabinets will add a feeling of warmth to your home and create an atmosphere of quiet elegance. You can choose from a combination of eight styles and colours and convenience features such as lazy susans, roll-out shelves and tray cabinets, and create a kitchen that is all your own — a pleasing place to be in.

Whether you are remodelling or building a new home, you can rely on the integrity of our fully trained and qualified kitchen design experts to help you plan your new kitchen or bathroom to ensure the most efficient use of the space available.

Citation cabinets have been adding a touch of elegance to Canadian homes for more than ten years, and our attention to detail has helped make us the number one cabinet manufacturer in western Canada. We're proud of our cabinets—and our reputation.

For further information please contact your nearest Citation dealer.

Japanese Pay More For Coal

EDMONTON (CP) — Cardinal River Coals Ltd., a subsidiary of Luscar Ltd., has negotiated a substantial increase in the price of coking coal with Japanese steel producers, Peter Cullimore, president of Luscar, said Wednesday.

Cullimore would not reveal the new price level but said the increase brings the export price for coal mined at Luscar, 200 miles west of Edmonton, into line with most other export contracts.

Cardinal has a contract calling for the export of 1.5 million tons of coking coal per year.

The company needs about 200 more workers, especially mechanics, welders and electricians, to add to its current staff of 200, he said.

Bond Considers 'People's Boat'

CANBERRA (AFP) — Alan Bond, a 37-year-old Western Australia millionaire, says he is considering financing a "people's boat" for another crack at the America's Cup.

Bond said he has 60 days to file another challenge for the cup. His 12-metre yacht, Southern Cross, was thrashed 4-0 by the United States yacht Intrepid in a best-of-seven series last month.

CHICAGO (AP) — Farm commodity futures prices moved nervously over wide ranges on the Board of Trade today.

Only wheat futures were above previous highs when the final bell had rung. Before the close soybean futures fell the limit of 20 cents a bushel and corn was down the limit of 10 cents. Both later recovered a few cents.

This marked the third day that futures on the world's largest exchange had moved in unusually wide ranges. Some trade sources thought the reason for this was a lack of definite information from the government whether all export commitments on grains will be honored.

Wheat will be in abundance because of record crops this year, but corn and soybean production is expected to be sharply lower than the government had expected at planting time.

Trade was fairly mixed but most of the session there was a scarcity of buyers in most pits except wheat. Despite the wide swings, the volume of trade was expected to be thin.

At the close, Chicago wheat was 4 to 8 cents a bushel higher, Dec. 5-17; Gulf hard red wheat not traded; corn 2 to 3½ lower, Dec. 3.81; oats 2 to 2½ lower, Dec. 1.91 and soybeans 2½ to 17 lower, Nov. 8.46.

Franklin Declares Bankruptcy

NEW YORK (AP) — Frankparent company for the now-insolvent Franklin National Bank, filed for voluntary bankruptcy in federal court

The brief petition, approved by the Franklin board Tuesday, included a list of 77 creditors. No dollar amounts were given for either the company's assets or liabilities.

Until Oct. 8, when federal banking officials declared Franklin National Bank insolvent, the stock of the bank was the holding company's chief asset.

As part of the insolvency judgment, most of the assets and liabilities of Franklin National Bank were acquired by European-American Bank and Trust Co.

Dark Newsprint Forecast Challenged by Industry

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

The demand for British Columbia's pulp and paper is slackening somewhat but industry spokesmen in both Vancouver and Toronto have challenged a forecast by one Toronto broker that the bottom will fall out of the newsprint market in 1975.

If the gloomy forecast proved true, it would be the other shoe falling for British Columbia's diversified forest industry.

Large companies are relying upon good markets for pulp and paper to carry them through the recession in lumber and plywood sales.

"Markets will continue to be good in 1975, according to our forecasts, but slightly below 1974 levels," said a spokesman for Canadian Cellulose Company Ltd.

The Vancouver-based company controlled by the provincial government expects a declining demand for pulp and paper in 1975 but market conditions will remain generally good.

The spokesman for CanCel said demand for pulp and paper in 1974 has been stronger than the supply, resulting in price increases.

Some levelling of demand is expected in 1975, bringing the market into balance.

"The market will continue to be good, however," he said.

He said a forecast by a Toronto broker, Fry Mills Spence Ltd., that the bottom would fall out of the newsprint market in 1975 was far too pessimistic.

The Fry Mills Spence forecast was prepared by analyst W. F. H. Gillespie, based on calculations by the firm's economist, G. L. Skene.

The Gillespie-Skene prediction has come under fire from other eastern brokerage houses as well as pulp and paper producers.

The forecast is based upon a pessimistic estimate of real growth in the U.S. gross national product in 1974 and 1975.

Skene predicts real growth in the U.S. gross national product will decline 1.3 per cent this year and 2 per cent in 1975.

Gillespie adds the decline in the U.S. economy, and the resulting decline in newsprint consumption, will be accompanied by the largest buildup of newsprint inventories since 1937.

The Gillespie-Skene forecast assumes U.S. companies will live off their inventories during much of 1975.

The prediction of a decline in the real growth in the U.S. has been challenged in Toronto by Howard Saunders, an analyst with Pitfield, Mackay, Ross and Co. Ltd.

Saunders said real growth is expected to be zero, not a decline of 2 per cent, and therefore the demand for newsprint will be stronger than in the pessimistic Gillespie-Skene forecast.

In Vancouver, a spokesman for CanCel told The Times that while U.S. firms were building up inventories of newsprint, they were anticipating disruptions in paper production because of labor contracts expiring next spring for some Canadian producers.

Any disruption in production would level out supply and demand very quickly.

CanCel is a major producer of pulp with operations in the Prince Rupert area. All of its pulp is exported with much of it going to the United States.

The company is 79 per cent controlled by the provincial government but continues to have 7,000 private shareholders as well.

Part of the reason for the varying forecasts is attributed to different figures released by the American Newspaper Publishers Association and the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association.

The U.S. group estimates the decline in newsprint consumption during the first 8 months of 1974 at 5.7 per cent while the Canadian pulp producers say it is down only 1.8 per cent.

The U.S. buyers also estimate inventories on hand as being enough for 46 days while the Canadian producers say it is only about 36 days supply.

Despite the controversy, most forecasters remain optimistic about the pulp and paper market for 1975.

COPPER PRICE DOWN AGAIN

TORONTO (CP) — International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. Inco said today it is reducing the price of copper to its Canadian customers by four cents a pound to 75.5 cents, effective immediately.

The reduction is the second in less than a month. Inco announced a decrease of three cents a pound to 79.5 cents on Sept. 19. Other Canadian producers made similar price reductions at that time.

Electrical Industry Must Look Ahead

TORONTO (CP) — The president of the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers Association said Wednesday the electrical industry must identify its future manpower needs so the government can provide the basis for intensified programs geared to its requirements.

B. W. Ball told members of the Toronto Electric Club this identifieation should be done the same way equipment requirements are handled on an industry-wide basis.

He said the electrical industry is on the threshold of a "fantastically exciting and demanding" future.

"But we certainly do not have that type of profile among the young people about to enter the labor force," he said. "In their eyes, activities such as aerospace, petrochemicals, electronics, computers and even social work are where the real action is."

He said the industry must get itself better accepted and understood by young people.

Despite Growing Tax Bill Texasgulf Income Soars

NEW YORK (CP) — Texasgulf Inc., taking into account proposed new changes in Canadian tax-laws cutting into profits, said Tuesday that it showed record earnings for the third quarter and the first nine months of 1974.

Net income for the third quarter of 1974 was $45,024,000, or $1.47 a share, compared with $24.3 million, or 80 cents a share, in the third quarter of 1973.

For the first nine months, net income totalled $105,224,000, or $3.45 a share, compared with $47,246,000, or $1.55 a share, in the comparative 1973 period.

The company said it had record sales of $412,374,000 for the first nine months compared with $252,540,000 for the same period a year ago.

Texasgulf, a diversified natural resources company in which the Canada Development Corp. has a controlling interest, said the higher 1974 sales and earnings were the result mainly of gains in the chemicals and metals divisions. Chemicals showed the greatest percentage increase.

The company said the record 1974 showing reflects the high capital investment in plant and equipment for expansion and modernization in recent years.

Income taxes of $87.1 for the nine-month period cover all taxes on income at an estimated annual effective rate of 45.3 per cent.

This includes proposed changes in both Ontario provincial taxes and the Canadian federal income tax.

TWO DROWN IN TUG MISHAP

OCEAN FALLS (CP) — Two men were killed and two others swam to safety when their tug capsized Wednesday above Ocean Falls dam.

The body of one man was wedged in the floodgates of the dam and the second was swept over or through the dam into Cousins Inlet. Attempts will continue today to recover both bodies. Names of the dead were withheld.

The crew, employees of the government-owned Ocean Falls Corp., were cleaning debris from the upper side of the floodgates when the tug overturned.

Gobblers Plentiful, Says Turkey Man

VANCOUVER (CP) — The secretary-manager of the British Columbia Turkey Marketing Board said Wednesday there will be a plentiful supply of home-grown turkeys in the province in the future.

Kirk Stanley said B.C. turkey farmers would not cut back production to force prices up or necessarily follow quotas set this summer by the Canadian Turkey Marketing Board.

He said there were too many turkeys in processors' freezers at the moment. Consumption is about five per cent less than projected and the province's 47 turkey farmers have produced about 13 per cent more than expected.

Statistics from the Canadian Department of Agriculture say B.C. processors have about half a million turkeys weighing 7.7 million pounds in their freezers, compared with 4.8 million pounds at this time in 1973.

In July, the national marketing agency set B.C.'s production quota for 1975 at 18.3 million pounds, said Stanley.

WORK DRIES UP AT DISTILLERY

WINFIELD (CP) — Work halted Wednesday for the second time in as many weeks at the Hiram Walker and Sons Ltd. Okanagan distillery here.

The morning shift at the 160-man plant refused to cross a picket line set up by four striking members of the Canadian Union of Distillery Workers Local 1 from Walkerville, Ont.

Under-Table Fees Cited

PENTICTON (CP) — A shortage of mobile home spaces has resulted in under-the-table fees of up to $2,000 being paid for locations, Bill Bennett claims.

Commenting on the severe shortage of mobile home spaces which resulted in one mobile home plant here laying off 50 workers last weekend he accused the NDP of instigating the shortage through its land freeze legislation. Mobile homes are the most affordable housing available, he said.

KELOWNA (CP) — The general manager of the British Columbia Safety Council says it's time for the government to take an active role in reducing the number of accidents in the province.

Peter Woodward told the Kelowna and District Safety Council Wednesday that preventive measures must be taken such as the use of breakaway signs and lamp posts, mandatory use of safety belts, removal of roadside hazards an dstudy of areas with frequent accidents.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Pat Brennan of Squamish was elected president of the Pacific National Exhibition Wednesday, replacing Mayor Art Phillips of Vancouver.

"We have the finest fair in Canada and I think we should be able to put the CNE (Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto) to shame," he said.

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — A charge of non-capital murder was laid against Kenneth Waynne Manning, 29, Wednesday in the shooting death of Daniel John McCarrell, 25, of North Vancouver. Manning shared an apartment with the victim.

SURREY (CP) — Accommodation has been found for 176 people left homeless by a fire Tuesday that destroyed 18 apartments and damaged 48 others. The manager of the apartment building said he had received many offers of help for the homeless families.

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — North Vancouver District Council has approved sale of 3.8 acres of land to the province for a 68-unit co-operative housing project. The government agreed to pay $600,000 and full municipal taxes. The project will be leased to the Lynn Valley Co-operative Housing Association.

Unhappy Homecoming

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — It wasn't a happy homecoming for Rep. Wilbur Mills, (right). There were no supporters to greet him at the airport, only staff members and dozens of reporters shouting questions about an incident that may mean the end of his political career.

Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, came back to Arkansas Wednesday for the first time since an incident on the night of Oct. 7 involving an Argentinian stripper, scratches on his face and the U.S. park police.

Polly Mills, her left foot in a cast for the past four weeks, hobbled along beside her husband as the couple edged their way through the airport hallway, down an escalator that had been turned off and into a waiting car.

Neither Mrs. Mills nor her husband smiled as they answered questions and aides tried to clear a path for them. Mills' face appeared flushed but without any visible cuts or scratches.

Mills told reporters at the airport that he had been in touch with his political advisers in Arkansas and "they say I'm in good shape" for the race with Republican Judy Petty.

Men Should Make Passes At Girls Who Wear Glasses

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Women with high IQs are often more sexually aggressive and les sexually inhibited than women of average intelligence, a Syracuse clinical psychologist reports after a 10-year study of sexuality of highly-intelligent women.

Disputing humorist Dorothy Parker's oft-quoted, "Men seldom make passes at girls who wear glasses," Dr. Manfred DeMartino said: "Men have been looking in the wrong direction for a long time. They should be making passes at girls who wear glasses. If anything, women of high intelligence are not only as sexy as those of average intelligence, but they are somewhat more so."

Intelligent women "tend to have feelings of high self esteem, they seem to be more adventurous, more experimental and even more innovative in their sexual relationships," DeMartino added.

ATLANTA — Actress Susan Hayward was described by her physician Wednesday as being "quite ill" after entering Emory University Hospital for the second time in four months. Miss Hayward, 55, underwent a brain biopsy in July and was hospitalized for several days. She re-entered the hospital last week for what was described at that time as "further treatments" of an undisclosed condition.

BOCA RATON, Fla. — An elderly woman who lay helpless for a week in her locked garage because neighbors feared to invade her privacy died Wednesday, apparently as a result of her injuries and exposure. Mrs. Minna Wachsmann, 79, was unable to tell police the details of her ordeal, but officers speculated she was hurt in a fall in her home and crawled to her garage in an effort to each help. D. A. A. McLane said her life could have been saved if she had been found sooner. "It appears the neighbors talked about it, but were frightened of getting into trouble," McLane said. "She was a loner so they waited and waited."

TOKYO — Japan has informed Canada that it has every intention of welcoming Prime Minister Trudeau's wife when the Canadian leader visits Tokyo, a government spokesman said today. The Canadian government asked for clarification on this matter because Mrs. Trudeau's name was not included in the invitation from Premier Kakuti Tanaka when he visited Ottawa in September.

LONDON (UPI) — Richard Burton has found love with a new Elizabeth — Princess Elizabeth of Yugoslavia. London newspapers said Burton is in love with the 38-year-old princess, wife of merchant banker Neil Balfour. The Daily Express said Balfour, a defeated Conservative party candidate for parliament in last week's general election, considers it a serious matter.

NEW YORK—Martha Mitchell today was granted $1,000 a week in temporary alimony pending trial of her suit for divorce from former U.S. attorney-general John Mitchell. In granting the award, Manhattan Supreme Court justice Manuel Gomez noted that Mitchell had given her about $51,000 in the past year and that the payments should continue at that rate. Gomez said Mitchell grosses $5,281 weekly and has a net taxable weekly income of $2,536 after expenses.

Bank With Heart

DETROIT — One day after it launched a policy that would force customers to keep more than $50 in accounts, Michigan National bank dropped the idea. "It made us look like ogres," said president George Pierson. "And we really aren't."

STORY TIME ENDS ON TOTS' DEATHS

NEWCASTLE, Ind. (AP) — The 31 pupils in Sharon Hahn's kindergarten class at Wilbur Wright Elementary School were just settling down for "story time."

Michelle Renae Lee, 5, seated on the floor near the teacher's desk, had just enrolled in the class Tuesday. Next to her was Steven Greenwell, also 5.

Suddenly, glass and bricks sprayed the room as an automobile sailed through a plate-glass window and landed on top of Michelle, Steven and a third youngster.

Michelle and Steven died. Elizabeth Sexton, 5, and eight classmates were injured. Police said the auto driver, Frank Burris, 63, apparently suffered a heart attack and lost control of his car. He died en route to a hospital.

Police estimated the car, which landed four feet from Mrs. Hahn's desk, was travelling 80 miles an hour as it approached the school.

"It was like a bomb exploded," said school custodian James Elliott who witnessed the accident Wednesday. He said he saw the speeding car go through a four-way stop intersection, jump a curb and head for the school.

Burris's wife, Alice, a passenger in the car, was critically injured.

Rushing inside, Elliot said: "The kids were screaming and yelling."

Fireman Ernest Klotsch said when he arrived, "the three kids were rolled up under the car."

The others were just screaming and moaning and lying around the room covered with dust."

Too Much Sports . . .

CAOUETTE

OTTAWA (FP) — A surfeit of sports on the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation over the holiday weekend brought an objection in the commons Wednesday from Real Caouette.

"Enough is enough" he said to Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner.

On Saturday, he claimed, the CBC carried 12 hours of sports.

There was an hour of wrestling. Later there was an hour of golf. This was followed later by five hours of baseball.

Later there were two and a half hours of hockey . . . This was followed by football.

Sunday wasn't much better, according to Caouette.

He claimed there was eight hours of sport on that day of rest.

Monday, Thanksgiving Day there was the baseball broadcast.

He suggested the CBC had been converted into an "arena for sports alone."

Faulkner said he would not interfere with the broadcasting lineup of the CBC.

Open Door To Remain —Trudeau

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Canada will retain the "universal and non-discriminatory" immigration practices it now follows when a new immigration policy proposal is released next year, Prime Minister Trudeau said Wednesday.

He made the statement in the Commons when questioned about reports that Immigration Minister Robert Andras wants the cabinet to approve tougher restrictions to keep immigrants from entering the country.

Trudeau said the government will not discriminate against immigrants on the basis of race or the countries they come from.

He refused, however, to indicate whether final policy revisions have been approved by cabinet but said a redrafted position paper is scheduled for release "in the new year."

If any "interim measures" are to be taken before then, they will be announced by Andras in the House, he added.

The growing number of immigrants coming to Canada was an issue during the July 8 election campaign, particularly in B.C.

Former Environment Minister Jack Davis, who was defeated in Capilano riding in that election, said in a recent interview that discontent over increasing immigration to his area was partly to blame for his defeat.

Davis in Parliament last year publicly called for immigration law changes although these were resisted by Andras at the time.

Davis, in discussing the B.C. reaction, had said it was largely "anti-Asiatic" in character.

Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West) accused the government of trying to legislate by regulation. He called this a "devious method" of changing the law.

'GREY AREAS' AT UNITED

OTTAWA (CP) — Industry Minister Alastair Gillespie admitted Wednesday there are grey areas in contracts under which strike-plagued United Aircraft of Canada received millions of dollars in government aid.

Asked by reporters about the company's transfer of some production to the United States during a continuing strike at Longueuil, Que., he said it is difficult to know if the move violated earlier contracts awarding $83 million to United Aircraft.

"I think every contract probably has a degree of greyness. That's why courts exist."

Unilateral Sea Action?

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada would not rule out unilateral action to back claims to broader coastal jurisdiction, External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen said Wednesday. He gave no indication the government considers unilateral action a likely prospect.

He told the Commons that substantial progress was made at the Law of the Sea Conference earlier this year in Venezuela — that many of Canada's proposals received broad support and every effort would be made to convert nations still opposed to them.

Specifically, he said, Canada won widespread recognition of its claim that coastal nations should have the right to manage coastal territory.

There also was strong backing the proposal for a 200-mile territorial limit, instead of the current 12-mile limit.

Milk Subsidy Appeal Vetoed

PALMERSTON, Ont. (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Wednesday the federal government's five-cents-a-quart subsidy on bottled milk will be withdrawn despite an eleventh-hour appeal for its retention by the Ontario branch of the Canadian Association of Consumers.

"If anything further is done to assist people in low-income groups, it will be done through the social service," he said in an interview. These have been substantially increased by the federal government.

The subsidy, initiated in September, 1973, is scheduled to come off in Ontario at the rate of three cents a quart Oct. 21, with the balance removed Feb. 1.

The CAC had asked either that it be retained or removed at a rate of one cent a month.

Producers say removal of the subsidy will bring an across-the-board increase of six cents a quart at the retail level Oct. 21, and an additional four cents a quart Feb. 1.

Whelan, who spoke to about 100 persons at a meeting of the Southwestern Ontario Lamb Producers Association, said:

"There is nothing stopping the provincial governments from providing a bottled milk subsidy if they want to get into it.

"Fluid bottled milk is in the provincial field. Our field is industrial milk."

Industrial milk is used in the manufacture of butter, cheese, skim milk powder and other milk products.

Whelan said there is no truth to reports that powers granted the Food Prices Review Board will be restricted after it begins its second year of operation in January.

He was commenting on statements by Consumer Affairs Minister Herb Gray who told the Commons recently that the government apparently was trying to trim the board's powers.

Whelan would not say whether he was satisfied with the board's performance since it was formed at the first of this year but said it will operate next year under the same terms of reference as it has this year.

He said he felt the whole field of price inquiry should be broadened to include other products.

"You can't guarantee food production with an army of bureaucrats watching everything everyone in the industry does."

Cattle Beefs Grow

OTTAWA (CP) — A storm broke in the commons Wednesday when western cattle men protested over the federal government's "procrastination" in deciding whether it will make formal representations at the Washington hearings, against Canadian cattle being embargoed by the United States.

Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan was asked if he would participate, or members of his department attend, the hearings to be held Oct. 25 in Washington.

The hearings have been called by U.S. officials to discuss possible retaliatory action against Canada's policies affecting shipments of American cattle and beef to this country. Whelan said "It has not yet been decided."

HEADWAY MADE ON INDIAN HOMES

OTTAWA (CP)—Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan said Wednesday he is confident of "fairly significant headway" in improving the housing conditions of Indians.

Buchanan said in the Commore that recommendations from the National Indian Brotherhood are being studied and he expects to make an announcement in three or four weeks.

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) said the number of houses being built for native people represent only a fraction of requirements.

A Commons committee was told Tuesday by Pierre Lesaux, assistant deputy minister for Indian affairs, there is need for 20,000 new Indian houses during the next five years. He said 2,000 would be built in 1974.

INSULIN FEARS EASED

OTTAWA (CP) — Insulin supplies continue to be plentiful but the government is investigating reports of hoarding, Health Minister Marc Lalonde said in the Commons Wednesday.

He said government officials will confer with representatives of the drug industry and the Canadian Diabetic Association on complaints by the association that hoarding of beef pancreases might lead to shortages and higher prices for insulin.

Insulin, a medication used in the treatment of diabetes, is manufactured from beef pancreases.

Lalonde said a preliminary investigation revealed no evidence that meat packers are hoarding beef pancreases to drive up the cost of insulin.

A health department statement said officials at Connaught Laboratories Ltd., the major insulin manufacturer in Canada, "have indicated some conern about long-range prospects for insulin supply."

But there is no immediate shortage and no evidence of hoarding, the statement said.

The association has warned that insulin prices could increase by 10 per cent because of higher production costs.

The statement said meat packers have not been allowed to export beef pancreases for the last two years.

Dr. Albert Fisher, president of the Canadian Diabetic Association, said on the weekend that packing companies are hoarding supplies of animal pancreas, and that the price of the drug is likely to increase.

However, spokesmen for two large meat-packing companies, Swift Canadian Co. and Canada Packers Ltd., have said they are selling their full production of pancreas glands.

A spokesman for Connaught Laboratories, the only Canadian manufacturer of insulin, said his company had a large stockpile of the freeze-dried insulin crystals used for making insulin and that no immediate shortages are foreseen.

$23 Million in Coin Profit

OTTAWA (CP) — A recent surge in Olympic coins sales has boosted total sales to $68 million and $23 million of this is profit, Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey said Wednesday in the Commons.

He added that a cheque for $800,000 will be given today to the Canadian Olympic Committee to assist sports.

Otto Jelinek (PC — Toronto High Park-Humber Valley), in asking Mr. Mackasey about the coin program, said that until April 1, the net return from the sales amounted to only $2.5 million.

But since then, sales have increased sharply, replied Mr. Mackasey.

The government hopes to raise $250 million through coin sales to help finance the 1976 Olympics in Montreal.

'Trying to Bury Me'

OAKLAND (AP) — Gene Tenace, lifted from the lineup just prior to Wednesday night's fourth world series game, said he was "humiliated" and blasted Oakland owner Charles O. Finley as inhumane.

"Finley is trying to bury me," said Tenace. "He treats me as just another number. I'd like to be treated like a man."

The scene around Tenace's locker was a dramatic contrast compared with two years ago, when Finley kissed his catcher-first baseman and gave him a $5,000 bonus for hitting home runs in a world series.

"That scene went through my mind during the entire nine innings tonight," said Tenace. "I've been in three World Series now and I haven't done that badly."

Tenace added: "I'd like to be traded . . . I could continue to play for the A's, but I don't want to."

The player said that he was positive he wouldn't be playing in the fifth game tonight.

Tenace, speaking barely above a whisper, told a large group of writers that he was originally in the lineup for the game.

"I took batting practice and everything," he said.

Then the A's had a team meeting, where Finley read by Los Angeles' Bill Buckner which had appeared in a newspaper.

After that, Tenace found out he wasn't playing — but not from Finley, or Oakland manager Alvin Dark.

"I had to be told by coach Bobby Winkles. Then I went to see Dark in his office."

When the A's returned to the field, outfielder Joe Rudi practiced at first base and rookie Claudell Washington worked in left field. Shortly afterward, the lineup change was announced.

Tenace related that Dark told him the lineup change was Finley's idea.

"Yesterday you had your chance with the lineup and today it's my turn," Finley was quoted by Tenace as telling Dark. Dark afterwards denied the remark by Finley.

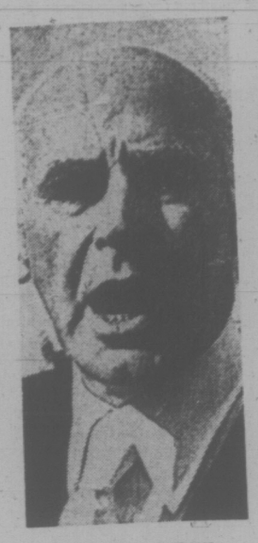
"I have no respect for Dark for not backing me up," Tenace said. "I like him, but I don't respect him as a man. Down deep, he probably felt I should have played, but he didn't say anything."

He said that the A's organization was a terrible one for which to play.

"They don't treat you well," he said. "They just do things like they did tonight and don't tell you that they did them. You have to find out yourself about it."

Tenace said that Finley has been running the club all year and intermittently making up the lineup cards. He felt this was wrong.

"It's kind of a sad commentary on the A's, isn't it?" Tenace said.



CHARLES O. FINLEY . . . called inhumane

Charley's 'Bleep' Message Gave Sal Brief Rest Period

OAKLAND (AP) — Owner Charles O. Finley delivered a pep talk Wednesday night, quoting Bill Buckner, before Oakland A's went out and beat Los Angeles in the fourth game of the World Series.

"Buckner said we have three good ball players and the other 22 are no-good bleeps," Finley said after the 5-2 victory over Buckner and the Dodgers.

"I told them to go out and prove that he's wrong."

"Did the talk inspire us?" Reggie Jackson said later. "We don't have to prove anything."

Sal Bando was asked what he got out of the pre-game meeting called by Finley, and he replied: "Five minute's of rest."

And the A's fielding star of the fourth World Series game, second baseman Dick Green, said: "I missed the meeting."

"I'll be disappointed if we don't end it Thursday night," said Bando. "We think very positively."

Finley read one paragraph from a newspaper story, quoting outfielder Buckner as saying, "the A's have only a couple of players who could make our club," at the clubhouse meeting.

"He didn't talk long, just long enough to make his point," said Jesus Alou.

A lineup change, giving rookie outfielder Claudell Washington his first World Series start, also was announced at the meeting. Finley had held a summit conference with manager Alvin Dark and the coaches before the game.

"The change was made to get another left-handed hitter in the lineup against Andy Messersmith," Dark said, explaining why power-hitter Gene Tenace went to the bench.

Washington contributed two hits to the victory, and team captain Bando said later: "It worked out well and that's what counts."

Softball: Double Loss, At Their Own Request

Now, it's the girls who are going to greener fields, and by their own choice, too. Rosemary Fuller and Joanne Mick, two of the city's premier softball players, have decided that there's more to senior softball than just winning, or being the best at home. They've opted to play next season with Vancouver Green and Louie, the current Canadian champions.

"No, they did'nt ask us," said Joanne, "we just decided that we'd like to do something a little different, and after playing with Green and Louie in the Canadian at Edmonton, we figured we'd like to play with you."

So that was the approach, and now the girls are just marking time until the spring. Rosemary is at University and Joanne is taking the year out from school after four years at UVic, where she was majoring in art and geography.

"The class of ball is so much different," Joanne was saying, "than what we get here. The Vancouver team plays in the Northwest League, and they are good ballplayers. Victoria can't get into it, because really, Wally (Yeamans, their coach) doesn't have a team to warrant it; and besides, it costs a lot of money to play in the league, and it's not all the girls who want to take the time off.

"I guess it was at Edmonton that we figured we could play with them," Joanne continued. "Rosemary pitched three games, I caught and we won all three. Rosemary also came in relief in two games."

For 'Something Better'

"The ball in the finals was head and shoulders above what we had been playing here at home. We figured we did a good job, so the question was, "what are we going to do?"

"And the answer was 'something better.' And we're kind of happy about it."

Joanne and Rosemary were two key members of the Victoria Vicettes team coached by Yeamans which last year represented B.C. in the Canada Summer Games at Burnaby. The team won its round-robin section in the playdowns only to lose to Saskatchewan 6-4 in the gold-medal game.

Rosemary was the workhorse of the mound staff, as she has been through most of her years in softball in the city, and it was a weariness caused by the heavy workload that probably contributed most to the B.C team's final defeat.

Rosemary was also nominated as Victoria's female athlete of the year last spring but lost out in the voting to Marg Mainwaring, another star performer and an accomplished basketball player. The Vicettes, meanwhile, were nominated as team of the year, but also lost out in the voting, the First United Saints getting the top honor because of a Canadian basketball championship triumph.

So Rosemary missed, both time and, for some unknown reason she was also overlooked for the all-star team in the Canadian after turning out to be the star of the finals. Not bad for a 20-year-old.

But no regrets, and for Joanne who spent the summer working with recreation director Harold Moist of Esquimalt, and enjoyed the work, eventually she feels she would like to teach, perhaps in the recreation field.

A Muscle Pull or Two

Why not? Because after all, she's been in sport, make that softball, since grade three and her first team was Smokey Green. In the winter it's curling, and if some fans can't recall the Canada Games playoffs, it was almost a similar situation last weekend at the Racquet club as it was then in Burnaby.

Joanne was hurting badly at the Canada Games and was well taped for a painful hip injury. But nonetheless she stuck it out. Last weekend, she made the mistake of sitting down on the grass while watching the Canadian women's field hockey championships, something snapped, and she had to return to her curling chores in the Thunderbird bonspiel with a hamstring pull.

If that was painful, there was no relief either. The game had to go on, and in the final she came up with a big double to help the Steve Skillings rink to victory.

"But it's okay now," she remarked this week, "just a little sore, that's all."

What else is an athlete supposed to say? Because after 14 years, what's a muscle pull or two, and Joanne all of 21 years.

And I just happen to think that she and Rosemary will do just fine too in their softball endeavours elsewhere.

But what's Wally going to say?

"Gee, I haven't told him yet," Joanne said, "but I think he knows. I think Rose told him."

A's Have Dodgers Reeling

OAKLAND (AP) — Oakland A's have Los Angeles Dodgers staggering on the ropes and plan to finish off the National League baseball champs tonight with Vida Blue's left-handed punch.

"I'd be disappointed if we don't end it tonight," said third baseman Sal Bando after the A's took a commanding 3-1 lead in the 1974 World Series with a 5-2 victory Wednesday night.

With Don Sutton on the mound, the Dodgers aren't dead yet—but it may be just a matter of time. Even if they don't win tonight, history is on the A's side. Rarely has a team come back from a 3-1 deficit to win a World Series.

It's only happened three times—1925, 1958 and 1968.

"We'd like to win tonight, but if we don't, we'll go on down to Los Angeles and finish it," said Bando.

The A's hold the upper hand in this wacky series despite internal unrest, a condition that has been common with the team for some time now.

The last episode involves Gene Tenace, a sensitive player who was lifted from the lineup by Oakland owner Charles O. Finley prior to Wednesday night's game. Tenace's reaction ranged from humiliation to rage. He branded the A's eccentric owner inhumane.

While Tenace burned, Finley kept the rest o fthe A's smoldering with his pre-game meeting. He read some inflaminatory remarks from Los Angeles star Bill Buckner that appeared in a local newspaper.

"Buckner said that we have three good ballplayers and that the other 22 are no good," Finley said. "I told them to go out and prove that he's wrong."

HELMET GOES FLYING and glasses slide off nose as Steve Yeager of Los Angeles Dodgers slides safely into second base on third-inning double during Wednesday's fourth game of World Series. Oaklands' slick-fielding Dick Green has ball thrown in from outfield as umpire Ron Luciano calls play.

The A's did just that—and got excellent performances from some of those people that Buckner had termed inferior.

Jim Holt, a pinch-hitter who had been in a terrible batting slump, hit a two-run single in a four-run sixth inning that broke the game open. Dick Green knocked in a run and made some spectacular defensive plays at second base. And Ken Holtzman and Rollie Fingers, two pitchers that Buckner probably wouldn't mind having on his team, silenced the usually noisy Los Angeles bats.

Holtzman not only dominated the Dodgers most of the time he was in there, but also hit a home run, something the A's have had a tough time doing lately.

Talking about his drive off Andy Messersmith that gave the A's a 1-0 lead in the third inning, Holtzman said: "He got behind me and I was looking for a fastball—and I got it."

The euphoria felt by his home run was quickly dampened by the Dodgers in the next inning. They took a 2-1 lead over Oakland's 19-game winner on a two-run triple by Bill Russell.

Bill North led off the Oakland sixth with a walk and moved to second when Messersmith threw wild past first attempting to pick him off.

Bando drove in the tying run with a lazy, looping single to right field.

Then Messersmith walked Reggie Jackson and got into more trouble when Joe Rudi sacrificed the runners along. Messersmith then issued an intentional walk to Claudell Washington, who was starting in place of Tenace, and the bases were loaded for the A's.

Holt was announced as the pinch-hitter for Ray Fosse despite a streak of recent frustration. Before the World Series, Holt had gone hitless in 25 appearances as a pinch-hitter. He came through in Saturday's first game, however, and then came through again Wednesday night with a clean base hit to right that gave the A's a 4-2 lead.

"I was just trying to hit the ball hard somewhere," Holt said unemotionally. "I got a changeup inside. I don't think he wanted it that far in."

Green then grounded into a forceout and Washington came home with the A's fourth run of the inning.

Jimmy Wynn, leader of the Dodgers' long-ball offence this season, walked with two out in the eighth and Steve Garvey singled to left. Dark wasted little time in calling in Fingers.

Fingers struck out the Joe Ferguson for the last out of the inning, then got through the ninth with the help of a dazzling double play started by Green.

Los Angeles 000 200 000— 2 7 1
Oakland 001 114 00x— 5 7 0
Messersmith (6-2), Marshall (7) and Yeager; Holtzman 1-0, Fingers (8) and Fosse, Haney (7). Home run: Oakland—Holtzman (1st).

Giacomin Left Facing Friend and Foe Alike

By The Canadian Press

There must have been a time during Wednesday night's 5-5 tie when New York Rangers goalie Ed Giacomin wondered what was going on. Three of California Seals' goals were put into the net by New York defencemen and another goal—which actually entered the cage—was disallowed.

That's the way New York's National Hockey League season has been going. In Toronto Saturday night, the defence was more of a hindrance than a help in the Rangers' 7-3 loss, and the same was true Wednesday.

"Bad breaks—that's the only explanation I can give," said defenceman Gilles Marotte, who deflected Joey Johnston's shot into the Rangers' cage just nine seconds after setting up a second-period goal by Pete Stemkowski which gave New York a 2-1 lead.

In other NHL games Wednesday, Chicago Black Hawks picked up their first win of the season with a 4-0 decision over Boston Bruins, and Detroit Red Wings beat Atlanta Flames 4-2. Toronto Maple Leafs earned a 1-1 tied against Los Angeles Kings and Minnesota North Stars did the same against Vancouver Canucks.

Two of the California scores came during a three-goal Golden Seals' second period. Stan Weir scored at 5:55 of the period, but 50 seconds later, defenceman Rod Seiling tipped the puck into the net in an effort to stop John Stewart's pass.

With the score tied 4-4 late in the third period, Giacomin had made a save on Al MacAdam, but Brad Park's momentum carried him into the net with the puck under his body. Only Steve Vickers' tip-in with 1:18 remaining salvaged the tie and Giacomin's sanity.

At Chicago, centre Stan Mikita scored two goals and assisted on another by Cliff Koroll to lead the Hawks over the Bruins who remained winless after three games.

At Minnesota, Cesare Maniago allowed only a first-period goal despite facing 43 Canuck shots while Vancouver's rugged forechecking performance allowed Minnesota 20 shots.

Lou Nanne of the North Stars slammed in a rebound past Vancouver goalie Gary Smith at 12:22 of the final period to lift Minnesota to a tie and keep the club even on the year with a 1-1-1 mark.

Vancouver's Don Lever scored two minutes into the contest when he slammed a missed shot by Andre Boudria past Maniago from point blank range.

At Toronto, Bill Flett's power play goal with less than three minutes remaining, gave Toronto the tie against the close-checking Kings.

Los Angeles goalie Rogatien Vachon stopped 37 shots while the Leafs' Dunc Wilson made only 20 saves.

Golf Perfection

Reg Tibbett, who started playing golf two years ago at the age of 75, stroked a perfect iron shot Wednesday.

Tibbett, a former Manitoba farmer, earned a hole-in-one pin at the Mount Douglas Par-3 course by hitting his tee shot into the cup on the 120-yard seventh hole.

HARRISON WALKS OUT OF PRACTICE

EDMONTON (CP) Centre Jim Harrison of Edmonton Oilers walked out of practice Wednesday, leading to speculation the World Hockey Association club may not have him in the lineup for its opening game Friday night in Winnipeg.

Harrison, a member of Team Canada 74, threw his stick into the stands before walking out. He told a reporter: "I'm not talking to you."

Harrison and his agent, lawyer Alan Eagleson of Toronto, have been attempting to have an existing contract renegotiated.

Grahame Gets First Shutout

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Houston Aeros, defending World Hockey Association champions, showed goalie Don McLeod on Wednesday night that they don't miss him at all.

McLeod left the Aeros after a salary dispute during the off season and moved to Vancouver where he tended goal Wednesday for the Blazers against Houston.

The Aeros pelted McLeod with 35 shots on the way to a 6-0 victory.

In one other WHA game, Phoenix Roadrunners opened their first season in the league with an 8-2 win over San Diego Mariners.

Former Victoria Cougar Ron Grahame, a second-year pro from Denver University, stopped 29 shots, 14 of them in the final period, to record his first WHA shutout.

Mark Howe, Larry Lund, Jim Sherrit, Frank Hughes, Murray Hall and Gord Labossiere provided the Houston scoring.

It took Houston only 69 seconds to score its first goal of the season, with Howe beating McLeod while the Aeros were shorthanded.

Houston scored in the last minute of the opening period when Lund capitalized on a clearing pass by Vancouver defenceman Duane Rupp.

The Aeros scored four times in the second period to put the game away.

The Blazers failed to score despite a two-man advantage for a full minute early in the third period.

Houston left-winger Andre Hinse retired from the game when he injured his left knee after a second-period collision along the boards with Vancouver's Murray Myers.

Robbie Ftorek led the expansion Roadrunners with three goals.

The Roadrunners, playing before a home crowd of 6,564, allowed the Mariners two first-period goals and then got shutout goaltending from Gary Kurt, who made 30 saves.

HOUSTON (6) — Mark Howe, Larry Lund, Jim Sherrit, Murray Hall, Frank Hughes, Gord Labossiere; VANCOUVER (0). Attendance: 6142.

SAN DIEGO (2)— Ray Adduno, Norm Ferguson; PHOENIX (8) — Robbie Ftorek 3, Jim Boyd, Hugh Harris, Al McLeod, Michel Cormier, Murray Keogan.

Jeers for Winners

WIESBADEN (Reuter) — West Germany's amateur soccer team was whistled from the field Wednesday after beating Canada's national team, 1-0.

The West German team included seven players from first division clubs, but for more than an hour of the 90-minute match they were unable to make any progress against a Canadian team determined not to give anything away.

The Canadians, who lost 2-0 to East Germany and 5-0 to the East German under-23 side, sealed off their goal area with seven or eight players for most of the game and the Germans found no way through the hard-tackling guests.

The Canadians held out until the 66th minute when they had a mix-up in their defence and Krause found the ball at his feet and lashed it into the net from 12 yards out.

Belmont Gains

With wins over both Spectrum and Oak Bay Tuesday night, Belmont jumped over three other teams and into second place in the Greater Victoria High School Boys' Volleyball League.

Playing well on its home court, Belmont defeated Spectrum 15-9, 15-10 and then beat Oak Bay 15-8, 15-5 to move to within two points of league leading Vic High, which got past Esquimalt 15-4, 15-12.

Spectrum scored its first win of the season by coming back for an 11-15, 16-14, 15-6 decision over Reynolds and Reynolds also picked up its first point with a 15-9, 12-15, 15-4 win over Oak Bay.

Pay Hike for Mauch

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Montreal Expos extended the contract of manager Gene Mauch through the 1976 season with an increase in salary, club president John McHale announced Wednesday.

No figures were disclosed.

"Gene has been with us from the beginning, and he has received a raise every time his contract was renewed," said Jim Fanning, vice president and general manager. "When we signed him we thought we had the best manager in baseball and our opinion has not changed.

WCHL Considers Expansion

Western Canada Hockey League officials will shortly visit Spokane to discuss establishment of a franchise in the eastern Washington State city.

League president Ed Chynoweth made the announcement Wednesday in Saskatoon, adding that several expansion possibilities exist in other western U.S. centres.

The trip will be made "because it was only good business sense and people in Spokane should be entitled to see major junior hockey," Chynoweth said.

On the ice, early going hasn't been pleasant for goaltenders but Victoria Cougars' netminder Lloyd Saar is the one doing the most smiling.

The 12 league teams have scored 284 goals in the first 33 games for an average of almost nine per game.

Saar is the early-season leader with a goals-against average of 3.21.

Brandon Wheat Kings' Rick Blight, meanwhile, is picking up where former linemate Ron Chipperfield left off in the scoring race. Blight has taken the scoring lead with nine goals and eight assists for 17 points. Chipperfield, with Vancouver Blazers of the World Association, was last year's point king with 162.

Top Cougar sniper is centre Mel Bridgman, who has six goals and five assists.

Following are the scoring leaders:

With Only One Football, Tongans Take Care of It

THE RUGBY SCENE

By Max Low

Go and see them, by all means, but heed one warning: don't expect too much.

Rugby players from the Tonga group of islands in the South Pacific make their first appearance in Canada when they meet B.C. Reps at 7 next Wednesday night at Royal Athletic Park. They then play the Canadian national team in Vancouver on Friday, Oct. 25, before returning home after a nine-game tour of Britain.

Both games will be worth seeing, if only because Tonga, like Fiji, has a reputation of being able to present a care-free runnning and handling display.

But, unlike the Fijians who delighted 1,780 fans this time last year with an exciting display while whipping the Crimson Tide 42-7, the Tongans come to Victoria as the underdogs.

So far on their first tour to the northern hemisphere they have played badly, been soundly beaten in most games and have been strongly criticized in the British press for stiff-arm, round-the-neck tackling and other rough tactics.

The Tongans play Wales in their last game in Britain Saturday. After shading East Wales 18-13 in the tour opener, Tonga has met with disaster in the other seven games.

The Tongans were thrashed by North of England and by Newport and were even easily beaten by the not-too-experienced England Under-23 team. And in Scotland, they were hammered 44-8 by the national team.

Writing from Murrayfield, Tony Lewis says the Tongans found it virtually impossible to play winning rugby without the ball ". . . and they were denied even a sight of it."

In the scrums, says Lewis, the Tongans were "swept back before the Scottish drive like dust before the broom" and after Scotland deftly smuggled the ball away from the lineouts, the Tongans "reached in vain for their opponents, lunging like impulsive children in a game of blind man's buff."

The trouble in all the games has been the Tongans' weak forward play and it will most likely be in this department that they will collapse against B.C. and Canada.

Like the Fijians, the Tongans enjoy themselves but prefer to work on running and handling, which they do well, rather than on tackling and scrummaging, which they do not.

Llanelli coach Carwyn James gave the Tongans a gruelling session of forward play coaching on the morning after their defeat at Newport but he, like other coaches who have tried to help, believes that the acquisition of the science is a long way from their grasp.

"We want our rugby to develop the way it has in other countries but I do not know how long it would take," says Tongan manager Lupeti Finau.

"Our boys enjoy themselves but they are not professional in approach," he points out. "To lose at Newport meant nothing to them, it was not a great upset. Such an attitude is no shame but doing a thing with dedication is important and it is this which has put British rugby on top."

Tonga really has little to work with.

"Vavau island has eight clubs, Haapai has four and so does Eva," Finau says. "There are 19 clubs on the main island of Tonga Ta Pu but nearly all of the players we have with us come from just six clubs.

"That is not a lot of rugby players but then we have not a lot of rugby balls either. I think the police club has three balls, one or two others clubs have two but most of the clubs have only one football each."

Finau laughs and says yes, with one football you learn to take care of it.

"When they ask me why our kicking is not so good. I don't think they believe me when I tell them," Finau says.

With one ball, he adds with a grin, "after, say, four weeks of the season you cannot really afford to kick it!"

BOWLER OF WEEK

Returning to victory circle in Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest after year's absence is Irene Waldron, who has captured women's fivepin honors in second week of 12th annual competition. Irene earned weekly award by topping distaff fivepinners competing in league play on southern Vancouver Island lanes by rolling 290-301-221—812 series in Tuesday Ladies' League at Duncan Bowling Centre.

BELL RINGS UP RECORD FOR LOW ATTENDANCE

By The Associated Press

A record-low 750 fans turned out at 90,000-seat JFK Stadium on a rainy night in Philadelphia for a World Football League game. The hapless Bell responded by trailing all the way and losing again.

Shreveport Steamer triumphed 30-25 Wednesday night with quarterback D. C. Nobles throwing to Rick Eber for touchdown passes of 27 and 39 yards.

"I don't know if it was the World Series, the weather or what," said Philadelphia runner John Land. "But that's the smallest crowd that I can ever remember playing in front of."

Philadelphia, the target of an early-season controversy for giving away free tickets to increase attendance, issued only an estimated total for the handful of spectators inside the cavernous stadium.

In other WFL games Wednesday night, Memphis Southmen beat Florida Blazers 25-15, Charlotte Hornets blanked Chicago Fire 27-0, Southern California Sun beat Birmingham Americans 29-25 and Portland Storm edged the Hawaiians 3-0.

Blues Topple Gulls

Chemainus Blues picked up their first South Island Big Six Hockey League victory in four starts this season Wednesday night by tripping James Bay Athletic Association Gulls 5-2 at Juan de Fuca Arena.

Bob Wilson and Greg Gow hammered in two goals each to pace Blues while Darrell Hickson notched a single goal.

Ken Mireau and Cliff Wiest replied for Gulls.

Ron Toffey was kept busy in the Gulls' net with a total of 42 stops, 14 in the second and 13 in the third.

Sao Paulo Drops Games

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — The 1975 Pan-American Games will not be staged in Sao Paulo, Admiral Paulo Meira of the Brazilian Olympic Committee said Wednesday.

An outbreak of meningitis which reportedly has left more than 1000 persons dead in Sao Paulo was one of the major causes for the cancellation, Meira said.

"For overriding reasons, we are obliged to desist from holding the games," the admiral told the Associated Press.

The 1975 Pan-Am Games had been shifted to Sao Paulo from Santiago, Chile, after the overthrow last year of the administration of Chilean president Salvador Allende.

The games had been scheduled to take place from April 25 to May 11.

Meira said the meningitis epidemic "could hurt the athletes." He did not elaborate and said he did not know of the other reasons which forced the cancellation.

"It was the city of Sao Paulo that was holding the games and so it is the city of Sao Paulo that decided not to hold them," said Meira.

Reports earlier this week said that preparatory work for the games had come to a standstill because city and state funds had run out. It was suggested then that there may be a six-month delay in the games, if not cancellation.

Early Freeze-Up Snares Barge Fleet

EDMONTON (CP) — Fifteen ships and at least 53 barges were caught in Arctic sea ice by a severe freeze-up that came a month early, according to a spokesman for the Northern Transportation Co.

The ships and barges comprise the bulk of an Arctic fleet responsible for supplying isolated Eskimo and Indian settlements, Dew Line stations and exploration camps.

The vessels had made their vital deliveries of bulk fuel and other supplies to the settlements and were running for home port in Hay River, N.W.T., when they were stranded by the ice at Nine Sites across the Arctic.

The heaviest concentration of vessels lies at Inuvik, where six ships and 42 barges will spend the winter north of the Arctic Circle.

Lionel Montpetit, executive vice-president of the company, said crews from the vessels were flown back south after the ships and barges had been battened down for the long winter wait.

Montpetit said company officials were not particularly worried at the prospect of leaving the vessels in sea ice all winter because they were designed for the stresses of Arctic weather.

But he is worried about the prospect of another late shipping start next spring.

Vessels caught away from the home port of Hay River will have to make the long voyage home for maintenance before loading up with freight for the return trip to the Arctic Coast.

Every day they spend waiting to get out of the ice and back to Hay River after break-up must be subtracted from the already short shipping season.

Montpetit said the company's skippers were fully aware that they might be trapped in northern seas by an early freeze-up.

But they had to gamble against the weather of an over riding responsibility to deliver the fuel, dry goods, bulk groceries, construction materials, heavy equipment and even prefabricated buildings to the northern settlements.

$650,000 PER MONTH

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has agreed to a formula under which the United Nations will pay about $650,000 a month for maintenance of Canadian troops in the UN Emergency Force (UNEF) in the Middle East.

The formula is $500 a month for each ordinary soldier and $650 for each specialist. As most of the 1,050 Canadians in UNEF are specialists the $650 generally will apply.

UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said in a report he will need $40 million to finance UNEF for the six months ending next April, a 33-per-cent increase in the $30 million budgeted for the previous half year.

Canadian officials say they played a low-key role in negotiations that led to the formula. They add they would have been satisfied with a formula that paid an average of about $300 per Canadian in UNEF.

As far as Canada is concerned the payments are for out-of-pocket expenses over and above usual pay and allowances.

Some of the other countries that have troops located between the Egyptians and Israelis wanted compensation beyond pay and allowances.

For instance a developing country which pays its troops something in the neighborhood of $50-$100 a month would seem to be in a profit position with a formula paying at least $500.

A Report From The Leather Bureau

Announcing the long-range forecast for fashion: It's leather all the way. And that makes sense. For our cool winters (and unpredictable summers) nothing beats a leather coat. And as for looks — well, real leather wins over just about anything. Expecially when it's Cabretta leather. "Cabretta" means it's a soft, supple, carefully tanned leather that can be styled and tailored to perfection.
And when it's Cabretta from two of Canada's top leather manufacturers, that's exactly what it is: perfect.
Leather is definitely the look for fall. And Mansland is the place. Get into it.

CAMPBELL RIVER MAKES THE MOST

Campbell River residents have the highest average income of persons in any Vancouver Island centre.

Revenue Canada's book on 1972 statistics, just published, shows Campbell River's average annual income is $8,341, with Port Alberni's next at $8,335.

Nanaimo is third with $8,111, Duncan fourth with $8,076. Victoria fifth with $7,869 and Courtenay sixth with $7,670.

Leading all other Canadian communities was Oakville, Ont., with $9,945.

No Blame In Killer Air Crash

NANAIMO — A coroner's jury ruled Wednesday that 11 people died accidentally aboard a West Coast Air Services plane when it crashed Sept. 9 in a narrow canyon between Mount Hooper and Green Mountain.

The jury attached no blame but recommended pilots should either establish radio contact at the entrance to the canyon or find safer route because of sudden weather changes prevalent in the area.

Evidence indicated that the plane, a Grumman Goose on a scheduled flight from Tofino to Vancouver, was flying in overcast and was at least 500 feet below the minimum 3,000 feet altitude necessary to clear the eastern end of the narrow pass.

The plane went down while apparently trying to make a sharp U-turn out of the pass.

John Love, a ministry of transport investigator, said on the basis of his investigation at the scene there would not be "sufficient room" for the plane to make the turn.

He said the position of the wreckage showed the plane was under control at the time of the crash and its engines had not stalled. The plane was at a 50-degree angle and the nose had been lowered just before the crash.

Turning the plane too tightly, he said would have resulted in a loss of altitude.

Assuming the plane was flying at 2,500 feet, he said, the position of the wreckage showed the plane had dropped 850 feet before hitting the ground.

Love was contradicted by West Coast's chief pilot Stewart Spurr who said the plane could make a complete turn under normal conditions in 1,500 feet.

"I don't think the plane would lose that much altitude in that turn without some form of external force being applied," said Spurr, adding pilot John Ferguson did not send any radio messages to indicate what had gone wrong.

The logger who witnessed the plane moments before the crash, Paul Terra of Duncan, said he was aware of severe down-drafts in the area and at the time of the crash weather conditions were "windy, raining and low cloud."

College Students On Rise

VANCOUVER (CP) — Enrolment at British Columbia's three public universities has reached record levels this year, statistics show.

Preliminary figures from the University of B.C. show the daytime enrolment at 21,512, with some additions still expected in graduate studies, as well as some student withdrawals.

But total enrolment is still expected to top the previous 1970-71 high of 20,936 by the time the university does its official nose count in December.

A spokesman said there have been increases in almost all faculties, the largest in education, which has a 17 per cent increase over last December's enrolment.

Enrolment is also up in such faculties as arts and applied science, which previously were on a downward trend, he said.

Simon Fraser University statistics indicate an enrolment increase of about 13 per cent over last year, with a total of 7,000 graduate and undergraduate students.

The University of Victoria, with a total enrolment of 7,111, is up 930 over last year in unofficial enrolment figures.

UVic Poet Charges High-Level Scuttle

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

University of Victoria's former poet-in-residence Peter Russell has claimed that "somebody at the top" in the UVic administration is scuttling his attempts to study on campus.

The English-born poet is fighting an English department ruling that prohibited him from taking a masters in English this year and it is expected the matter will be discussed by the UVic senate Nov. 6.

"Even the senate committee (reviewing the case) admitted that if I stay in the English department it will be (made) hard for me," said Russell.

English department head Dr. David Jeffrey, however, said the decision "had nothing to do with his (Russell's) academic qualifications — he's a widely read guy who has established some credibility as a poet."

Jeffrey said the department decided last April that effective September no graduate students would be admitted for a minimal period of two to three years to allow a review and overhaul of the graduate studies program.

He confirmed the matter has become "an issue" on campus but said, "as soon as we repair some breaches in the (graduate English program) fabric," students would again be admitted.

Russell and an English department committee were interviewed this week by a special senate committee on student appeals. It is expected director of the UVic creative writing department Robin Skelton will also be asked to appear before the matter comes up at senate, probably in the closed session.

"I'm not a very legalistic person, but once I get pushed down I'll fight," said Russell, who is eligible to become a special graduate student without holding a first degree if his expertise is accepted by the department.

He said UVic is "reverting to something less than a junior high school" and has forced him to take issue with the decision.

He said his registration was confirmed by the department Sept. 4 and "it wasn't until Sept. 27 that I was informed with the English department's news that I couldn't study."

Russell, 53, came to UVic from Venice, has published 12 collections of his own poetry and was a friend of Ezra Pound, Ernest Hemingway and T. S. Eliot. His position as poet in residence under the creative writing department was not renewed this year by Dean of Arts and Science J. P. Vinay, and the post has been taken by West Coast poet Charles Lillard.

"The question is when is a student a student," said Russell, adding the ironic part of the 'silly internal politics" is that after he was refused admission as a student he's found it necessary to keep himself by giving lectures in 12 departments.

"I don't even have a BA and here I'm invited to give all these lectures."

"I'm a fighter," says Russell.

Fun Night at the Spa: And It Was All Free

Our story today, friends, is about two young ladies who very nearly got a free sauna bath at a health spa, a saga of pluck and fortitude.

It begins when one of the young ladies named Lorna came into possession of two free passes for a "fun evening," including sauna.

"Let us go and have a fun evening and sauna," said Lorna to her roommate, Jill. "Well," said Jill, "you realize that this is just the old come-on." "Of course," said Lorna, who, like her roommate, is 25 and knows a thing or two, "but let's just have a fun evening and a sauna the way they suggest. If there's too much persuasion I'll just invent a husband and say I have to have his approval." "Good idea," said Jill. And off they went hippity-hop to the spa.

"Which way to the sauna?" the young ladies cried when they arrived at 8 o'clock on a Friday designated as ladies' night. But instead off the sauna they were delivered into the hands of a spectacular-looking young woman in a black leotard, red tunic and high-heeled shoes. When they had changed into shorts and tennis shoes the gorgeous attendant began to make certain measurements, carefully marked on a card, and to put them through their paces on certain pieces of equipment.

"I remember the treadmill best," Jill recalls. "Three sides of the room were covered by enormous mirrors, lit by really cruel flourescent lights. There's no way you can avoid looking at yourself and, of course, when you're on the treadmill every extra ounce of flab is shaking, you're jiggling like jello, and this gorgeous girl is standing right there with her legs looking nine feet long in her leotard and her high-heeled shoes. I kept thinking, "They're playing on some pretty horrible insecurities here, "but somehow I couldn't help but feel insecure myself."

"It's all so public, too," Lorna remembers. "There were anywhere between 20 and 30 women watching us when we grunted through the sit-ups and bum-walks and exercises that we had to do and, what's more, there were three elegant-looking young men, who we found out later to be interviewers, watching us as well. Like Jill I knew that the whole exercise was to get us to hate our figures, if not ourselves, but what I hated most was being on such public view."

Jill again: "When she took our measurements mine were 33-28-35. The obvious assumption was that I was to be considered somehwere between outright pity and contempt. The goal was 36-32-36. My immediate objective, according to the girl in the leotard, was to put on three inches of bust. I couldn't help but notice that she did not share that problem."

This ordeal being completed, the young ladies sighed and were ready to whimper for their sauna. Instead, the attendant escorted them to a small, windowless room, about 10 feet by 15 feet and left them there. Here, too, there was a fluorescent-lit floor-to-ceiling mirror where they could contemplate their mis-shapen figures until the next act began.

The next act was a tall, attractive man with an Afro haircut and a fancy suede jacket who, flashing a high octane smile and seating himself at a small desk, began by consulting the measurement cards left by the girl with the leotard.

"Ah," he said, finally, "I see that you, Jill, are here to increase your bust measurement by three inches and reduce your waist measurement by four inches. Right?"

"Actually, no," replied Jill, determined to retain her waning sense of identity. "We're really just here for a fun evening and a sauna."

The attractive young man did not smile now. The young ladies are agreed, in fact, that he became downright stern.

"This is no fun matter," he said, coldly. "This is business. Aren't you interested in your figure. Don't you care about the shape you're in? I'm here to offer you a very special rate to achieve just that, because of your special guest cards."

Lorna recalls: "I wish I could remember the rates he proposed, but there were so many it was bewildering. All that I remember is that each time we said no or that we'd think about it he proposed a new, cheaper rate and, in the end, the amount for a two-year course was about one-tenth of the rate he'd first proposed. We'd been in there so long I was getting a little panicky about ever getting out without signing something so I used the little white lie. I said I'd have to ask my husband."

The handsome young man looked critically at the nervous cigarette that Lorna had just lit.

"I see you smoke a lot," he said. "Do you have to ask your husband every time you light up a cigarette that might kill you? I suppose not. Then why do you have to ask your husband's permission for something that will make you beautiful for him? Besides if you don't join now at this ridiculously cheap rate it won't be available tomorrow. We have hundreds of women who want in at this rate."

Well, when the young ladies stuck to their story about the bogus husband, the young man seemed to accept defeat. They made their way back to the main exercise room.

But now the fluorescent lights were being turned out. The room was empty. The spa was obviously closing down for the evening. The young ladies dressed in their street clothes and went out into the night. They hadn't had their sauna, but somehow that no longer mattered. They'd got away.

FALL PROGRAM of nearly 40 community education courses offered at James Bay community school drew many residents on first day of registration Wednesday. Registrars Pat McDonagh and Janey Allan accepted applications which nearly filled the adult programs offered.

Really Great Idea —Except for Cash

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Everybody loves community schools but nobody wants to pay for them.

That's the headache James Bay community school, first community school in the city, is facing.

The Oswego St. school has scheduled nearly 40 community programs to be offered on weekends and in the evenings, but needs funds to pay operation costs.

Greater Victoria school board trustees Wednesday gave a cool reception to the idea that they pick up the tab at least until the end of December.

Estimated operating cost for community programs is $3,000 until the end of the year, $24,000 for all of 1975.

"I'm very much against money that's been provided by the government for children's education being used for adult recreation," Trustee Lavinia Greenwood told the board's construction and maintenance committee.

"I don't think I'm prepared to support even this interim two-month arrangement," Trustee William Ross said.

Ross said he was afraid the board, by paying the costs of community education programs until the end of the year, would be setting a bad precedent.

"Frankly, everybody's saying it's a good idea, everybody's saying go ahead (with community education) . . . but nobody's answering the question, who's paying for what," superintendent of schools Jake Longmore told the committee.

Longmore has asked for a meeting with deputy education minister Jack Fleming to try to straighten out who pays for community education.

He said he will also suggest to the board next week that it establish an ad hoc committee with members of the James Bay Community Association to talk about financing the schools.

Meanwhile, registration is continuing for the community school's winter program of courses, which include everything from macrame to drama.

James Bay principal Dave Allan said that 95 per cent of adult courses were filled the first day of registration, Wednesday.

He said what the school needs now is some interim as needs now is some interim assistance from the school board until the program gets off the ground.

"We're not asking to be carried forever," he said.

Allan said the community school may be able to get other funding from provincial government departments, from the James Bay Neighborhood Improvement Project, or even by charging fees for its courses.

But regardless of money problems, he said, "there's no way anybody is going to kill community education in James Bay."

Assistant superintendent of schools Dr. John Wiens told the committee: "I think if at all possible we should keep this thing afloat at least until January."

The board will make its final decision on the funding Monday.

Needle Clinic Misses Target For Start-Up

There won't be an acupuncture clinic in Victoria this year, Dr. H. R. Elliot, deputy minister of the provincial health branch, said from Vancouver today.

Delays in settling government policy on such clinics mean the province's first one, which had been slated for Vancouver General Hospital this fall, now has a new target date of January, he said.

Health Minister Dennis Cocke indicated in August that an acupuncture clinic would also be operating in Victoria this fall.

Elliot said the Victoria clinic will follow after some experience has been gained in Vancouver. There is still no decision where the local clinic will be located, but hopefully it will be operated by the out-patient department of some hospital.

Wherever it goes, local physicians will be in charge and the policy and terms of reference now being formulated for the Vancouver clinic will apply in Victoria as well.

Three or four doctors in Victoria have written expressing interest in the subject, Elliot said. His department's first approach to the community may be through the Victoria Medical Society, which represents local doctors.

Other indications on the clinic's organization: patients for acupuncture treatment will have to be referred to the clinic by their doctors and there will likely be a charge, possibly $5.

Earlier he had said acupuncture will be used initially only for treatment of pain and experience will determine whether it is eventually used for more complicated medical procedures.

CKDA Faces Union Bid

An official bid to unionize Radio Station CKDA was made Wednesday.

Application for certification was made by the Broadcast Division of the Canadian Union of Public Employees with the Canada Labor Relations Board in Ottawa, said union representative Richard Hughes.

At the same time, a raft of unfair labor practice charges have been laid by the union against Capital Broadcasting Systems Limited, which owns CKDA, company president David Armstrong and company vice-president and general manager, George Macdonald.

The certification application is the first by any union for any radio station on Vancouver Island, Hughes said, although the union is involved in organizing Greater Vancouver radio stations, including CKLG where negotiations are in progress.

The application covers 34 CKDA employees, everyone at the station except managerial and confidential personnel.

Hughes charged that CKDA has "completely disregarded" the federal labor code, which governs labor relations in the broadcasting industry, and that the Canadian Association of Broadcasters is engaged in a plan to keep unions out of all radio stations.

Reasons which led CKDA employees to join a union, he said, are six-day work weeks, working different shifts through any one week, no job security ("but we are not looking to protect incompetents") and salaries which are "incredibly poor."

Union lawyer John Stanton said the unfair labor practice charges fall under three headings: interfering with the formation of a trade union; discriminating against a person because he is a member of a trade union; and seeking by intimidation to stop employees being union members.

Macdonald declined comment today until "we have more specific information."

City Explorers Find West's Widest, Highest Cave

By AB KENT
Times Staff

A group of Victoria cave explorers has found two huge caverns on northern Vancouver Island which they claim are the highest and widest in western Canada.

One they have dubbed the Black Hole has an exit portal 90 feet high and 150 feet wide extending at least a half mile straight into a limestone mountain in the Nimpkish river valley.

The other, the River Cave, is about half as high at the portal but inside has a room between 170 feet and 190 feet in height and 150 feet wide, and a second room 50 feet high by 100 feet across and as long as a football field.

Walking into the nearly-level cavity in the 1,500-foot mountain was likened by one of the party to being "in the Toronto Subway."

Peter Hutchings, 25, president of the Victoria chapter of the Canadian Speleogical Society (cave hunters) and vice-president of the B.C. branch of the society, Ron Frederick, 25, the local club's activities and communications director, and a friend Wayne Kelly, 23, accompanied Paul Griffiths, 24, of Vancouver, president of the B.C. region of the society on a trip north of Gold River on Thanksgiving weekend.

With them were seven students and a professor from Pearson World College, who are studying rock scaling and caving as part of their curriculum.

They made their discoveries Sunday in an isolated canyon with sheer walls which they named Dead Valley because it is choked with deadfalls and decayed trees. The exact location and the name of the river flowing into the caves they kept to themselves because they are concerned about the safety of inexperienced people who might want to see the caverns for themselves.

Hutchings described the finds as "unbelievable—a sheer limestone cliff on a sinkhole."

"We just looked," Frederick said, momentarily baffled for a comparison of the size of the holes. "We finally decided we could fit the Chateau Victoria into the (River Cave) room."

Hutchings said the club will now mount a more exhaustive expedition including a biologist, photographer and other caving specialists.

It is extremely rough terrain with rotting trees, many of them twisted grotesquely and is the home of bears and cougar, according to the cavers. Frederick said Canadian Forest Products Co. fallers refuse to work the northeast end of the main valley because they have been stalked by cougars.

Although the possibility of caverns was mentioned in a 1924 geological survey of the area, mapping was imprecise and so far as is known the caves were never located or explored.

Frederick said the group used recreational maps of the area and aerial photographs to localize the approximate site when they reasoned that the river they were interested in disappeared. They were successful in finding the place where it emerged, which led to the caves.

They found one sign of life inside an enlarged salamander measuring seven inches from nose to tip of tail and eyes that bulged, suggesting it may be a new species.

Second Thoughts

DEAR ABBY: I am getting married next month and was very happy about it until last night, when Ted and I had a long talk.

He told me not to expect him to stay faithful to me all our married life because all married men go out on their wives sooner or later and he doesn't think he is going to be any different.

Abby, I love Ted very much, and I don't think I could stand it if I knew he cheated on me.

What should I do? — In Love.

DEAR IN: Tell Ted that in this age of the liberated woman, all married women go out on their husbands sooner or later; and since you feel a part of the new sisterhood, the arrangement he proposes is at least negotiable. (In any event, the "T" in Ted stands for trouble.)

DEAR ABBY: My father-in-law died six months ago and since his death, my mother-in-law has practically lived with us.

She comes over every night for supper and sits all evening. It's not that she stays so long, but I work, and frankly, I would like to be able to come home and just relax.

She has always been very critical of anyone who doesn't keep a spotless house, and although I'm a fairly good housekeeper, I feel she will criticize me. It's gotten to the point where I hate to go home after work because I know she will be there. She's a nice person, and I get along with her, but I need time to be alone.

She spends every weekend here, and I can't accomplish anything because she is always looking over my shoulder.

She's well enough to go everywhere we go. She went on our vacation with us, and if she wants to go next year, I'd just as soon stay home.

I hate to be a stinker, and I wouldn't want to shut her out completely, but this is too much.

My husband is unfortunately her only "child" and she doesn't get along with the other relatives. Help!—Suffocating.

DEAR SUFF: Your problem is not your mother-in-law, it's the lack of communication with your husband. Your objects seem reasonable enough to me.

Have a heart-to-heart talk with hubby, and let him know how you feel.

Bust-Aid Con Man Jailed

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — A Brooklyn man has been sentenced to two years in prison for advertising phoney bust-developing and weight-reducing products that duped "hundreds of thousands" of persons who purchased them from 10 mail order firms.

U.S. District Court Judge Lawrence Whipple sentenced Raymond Carapella to two years in jail and also fined him $2,000.

Carapella pleaded guilty last February to conspiracy to violate federal mail fraud statutes in New York and New Jersey.

The government charged Carapella with advertising in a variety of national publications a 30-day supply of bust developers and a similar supply of weight reducers, both priced at $5.98.

The ads claimed a purchaser would lose up to 85 pounds in two months, or put on 3½ inches to one's bust in three months.

A government spokesman said that "hundreds of thousands" of persons had been swindled into believing they would improve their appearance by pouring the weight-reducing liquid into their bathwater or spreading the bust developer cream on their breasts.

This is the time when many Canadians are thinking of where to spend a winter vacation in the sun. Among the possible destinations is the island of Barbados.

The 24-page illustrated booklet "Barbados — Things You Should Know" tells you that for almost a century Barbados has been popular as a holiday island. Its name was probably coined by the Portuguese who christened the island Los Barbados, after the bearded fi trees which grew there at the time.

You will learn that Barbados is the most easterly of the Caribbean Islands. Its capital is Bridgetown with a population of close to 100,000. Surprisingly enough, Barbados is one of the most densely populated areas in the world, with 1,470 people per square mile.

The booklet also contains such basic tourist information as entry regulations, places of interest, sporting activities, duty-free shopping and so on.

Peak season on Barbados stretches from December 16 to April 15. Before and after those dates rates for accommodation is drastically lower.

The booklet also lists some interesting native dishes. Flying-fish is perhaps the best known local delicacy. It can be prepared in many different ways. Other unusual seafoods include turtle steak and sea eggs. The roe of sea-urchins is available only in months ending with an "r."

Male-Female Pronouns Next 'Unisex' Target?

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There is a move underway in certain circles to advance the "unisex" trend in this country to a point where males and females will be sharing the same pronouns.

Sexually segregated pronouns are, of course, as much a part of North American culture as separate bicycles — one type for girls and one for boys.

We have "he-him-his" pronouns for males and "she-her-hers" pronouns for females. The thought of both sexes using the same pronoun would have shocked our grandparents and I must say I find it a bit scandalizing myself.

Yet conditions in our society today are such that such a proposal appears in such a respectable publication as the U.S. National Education Association's journal. If you can imagine such a thing.

In the current issue, Fred Wilhelms, former executive secretary of the association for supervision and curriculum development, advocates adoption of three new unisex pronouns — "ne-ner-his" — for use in double gender situations.

This proposal, as you might have suspected, is an outgrowth of the women's liberation movement. Lib leaders contend that pronoun-sharing already is widespread in such sentences as "everybody is losing his head."

Since women as well as men are losing their heads, they argue, that sentence is bisexual. But women are denied equal pronominal representation. Instead, they are shoved into the masculine pronoun.

The only alternative — construction of separate but equal pronouns ("everybody is losing his or her head.") — is cumbersome. So, under Wilhelms' integration plan, the pronoun would become unisexual ("everybody is losing ner head.")

This proposal prompted a distinct narrowing of my chauvinist pig-like eyes. I don't like it. Not one bit.

That sort of thing can only lead to further confusing of sexual roles, which already is creating identity crises. Furthermore, the proposal is based on a faulty premise.

When females occupy masculine pronouns in double gender situations, there isn't actually a comingling of the sexes. The feminine presence merely is implied.

One is aware there are females in the pronoun but one doesn't see them. It's all very discreet and above board. Even prudish. The grammatical equivalent of demurely dropping one's eyes when one accidentally enters the wrong locker room.

Wilhelms' unisex pronouns, on the other hand, bring about a definite fusion of the genders, with all that implies. Those are the kinds of pronouns that invariably are followed by pregnant pauses.

If God had intended males and females to have prenominal togetherness, he would have made us all neuter.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Friday, Oct. 18

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Movement, variety, travel — these are highlighted. Your ability to comprehend various cultures also comes into play. Gemini, Virgo persons figure prominently. Look in out-of-way places. Be willing to make discoveries and to profit from them. Open up learning process!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Friendship and the borrowing of funds do not mix, not well. One who claims to have "great bargain" for you could be misinformed or part of a scheme. Whichever, protect your own interests. Some of your hopes, wishes require definite revision.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You learn difference between desire and necessity. Lesson need not be "hard." What occurs is in form of realization rather than revelation. Pisces, Virgo persons are likely to be in picture. Accent is on contracts, alliances, marriage.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You may find that "doing something practical" is not practical at all. Now you must do what you believe in, must be forceful, even resentful. Snarl, if necessary, to clear away debris. Get engines going and ball rolling and let others know you mean business.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emotional involvement is more likely now than in recent past. You are "bouncing back" or "on the rebound." You are vulnerable. Key is to enjoy flow of creative juices but also to find constructive outlet for energies. Aries, Libra could play significant roles.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Legal ties, commitments, home or property payments, purchases appear to be magnified. Listen to advice, suggestions — but in final stretch — make up your own mind. Leo, Aquarius persons could be in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Some relatives may be misinformed. Know it and maintain balance, humor. Avoid scattering efforts. Check directions, instructions and reservations. A message could be garbled. Verify. Don't confuse rumor and factual information.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Study Libra message for valid hint. You may have too many irons in fire. Key now is to check expenditures. Be a comparison shopper. Take nothing for granted where money is concerned. And count your change!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Family member may have problem — and you could be expected to share it. Cycle is high and your judgment will be on target. Know it and be confident. Get to source. Real issues are clouded with element of wishful thinking.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Keep promise to one who is confined to home, hospital. Catch up on reading material. You'll be asked questions! Basic research is more important than in past. You may be asked to speak for group, organization.

AQUARUIS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You may be reaching too far—what you seek could actually be close at hand. Seek "acres of diamonds" in your own backyard. Accent is on family discussions, agreements, reconciliations. Be receptive.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You are now in position of knowing what you want — and that is a big step. Key is to proceed toward goal despite side issues, detours. Professional superior has plan which is not practical. Get views on record, but be tactful.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have compassion, inspire trust in others and are capable of intrpreting moods and comprehending subtle nuances. Libra, Aries persons play important roles in your life. Major change is upcoming — involved travel and member of opposite sex. If single, that won't be for long!

Militant Wife Fears Lib Groups

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Hilma Skinner, mother of three, would rather bake apple crisps than burn her bra. She's a militant housewife and proud of it.

She is working to organize an antiwomen's lib group in Colorado called Happiness of Womanhood (HOW).

"They want to undermine the family by teaching housewives that there is something wrong with you if you don't get out into the working world," she said of women's libbers.

The former part-time door-to-door cosmetic saleswoman says housewives are becoming disturbed with the message.

"They are like lionesses," she said. "You disturb a lioness in her den and she will fight back. Housewives are being forced out of the home and they are going to fight to stay home where they belong."

Mrs. Skinner said she isn't opposed to women working. She did object, however, to attempts to erase the image of the feminine girl and the motherly housewife.

"They don't want to show the mother at home cleaning and baking, but we do," said Mrs. Skinner. "We don't want girls to grow up with the idea that there is something wrong with staying home and doing those things."

Mrs. Skinner said a working mother cannot do justice to both her job and the task of being a mother.

"We're not against those who want to make a career instead of having a family or those who are forced to get out of the home because they are the sole support of their children," Mrs. Skinner said. "But whenever possible, the family should come first."

Mrs. Skinner said one of her major efforts is opposition to the equal rights amendment which has been ratified by Colorado and more than 30 other states.

"I was for it when I first heard about it — equal pay for equal work and all of that," she said. "But I think there is more to it.

"I'll tell you where it is leading us. It is leading us toward a nation where women give up their right to have their husbands support them where women become criminally liable for half of the family's income."

Lonely Mothers Living Again

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Sixteen women, left to bring up their families alone, are learning to live again.

More important, however, they're discovering in themselves a self-respect that was lost when marriages fell apart and loneliness became an unwanted reality.

"Most of us have had pretty rotten marriages," one of them told the Times this week "I got used to having my husband tell me I was a moron. Now we find things are not so bad as we thought they were . . . Instead of being morons, we find they're pretty clever."

What has made the difference in attitude?

It's a realistic course, funded by Canada Manpower with the participation of Sooke school district 62 with much of the work being subcontracted to the Pacific Centre in Metchosin.

The course is designed to restore self-confidence to women of single-parent families who want to work and support their children but need a helping hand to get them back into the labor market.

Percy Pullinger, district superintendent for the Sooke school district, credits Bill Flemming, superintendent of special education, for the installation of the course.

"Bill Flemming began to see a need for such a course during his interviews with children," Pullinger said.

He said it was natural to locate the course, which is open to women living anywhere from Parson's Bridge to Port Renfrew, at the Pacific Centre, overlooking Esquimalt Lagoon, where the resources of psychologists, social workers and other experts are readily available.

The course began Sept. 23 and will continue until Dec. 13.

The women attend each weekday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and often have assigsments to work on at home.

Already, in less than four weeks, Canada Manpower spokesman Sannie Etherington reports a marked difference in the women taking the course.

"Being single-parents means that life has dealt them a double blow," she said. "Things can become very heavy for them. Now they're exchanging ideas, they have a different insight and life isn't such a dead end."

Course co-ordinator Gladys Kraft said some of the students are discovering objectives they never had before.

"We had the RCMP in one day to talk about the drug abuse problem and one of the women has decided she is going to try and become a female officer with the RCMP," she said.

For some of the women the course is sandwiched between caring for a family and supplementing the budget with a part-time job.

"It means I work 16 hours a day," one woman confided. "I have a job from 4 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. and it's pretty tough."

She and others, however, said the course was important enough to make sacrifices — it offers them a chance to find out where they wnat to work, where to develop the skills to do that work and an alternative to their feeling of inadequacy.

None of them, however, fool themselves that the course is a panacea for all their problems.

But they all agree it's a positive beginning.

Grace MacInnis Day!

elizabeth forbes

Hear Ye! Hear Ye! All persons who respect and admire her for the dedicated work she has done during her years in public life!

Saturday will be Grace MacInnis Day in Victoria!

It's unofficial, let me add. At the same time, it will be just as exciting and just as sincere as if it had been declared down at City Hall.

Plans are in the hands of a group of women members of the N.D.P., that three years ago formed a Grace Macinnis Club here.

The day will start with that club's annual event, a bazaar in Norway House, 1110 Hillside Ave., to be opened at 2 p.m. by Grace MacInnis herself.

Then, in the evening at 8:30, there will be a gathering in the same hall, especially to honor Mrs. MacInnis.

British Columbia's Education Minister, Eileen Dailly, will be on hand to give a testimonial address. A presentation is planned, also dancing, entertainment by Eric Roberts, known as The Mad Hatter, and refreshments. There will be a small admission charge.

Chairman of arrangements is May Hammond. And she wishes it clearly understood that this is not just a party gathering.

"It's for everyone who admires Mrs. MacInnis, regardless of political affiliations," she says, "and it's an opportunity to express that admiratios through being present Saturday evening and filling Norway house in her honor."

Much has been written about Grace MacInnis over the years.

However, nothing in print can really tell of the depth of dedication that has gone into her fight for many reforms — first in the British Columbia Legislature (four years at the beginning of the 40s) and since 1966, in the House of Commons.

In Ottawa, she has spoken out on everything from poor food packaging methods and rising meat costs to pollution, abortion, human rights, low-cost housing and non-returnable bottles.

As one magazine writer once wrote "You name it and if it affects the quality of life, Grace MacInnis has something to say about it."

One of her last fights was during debate on amendments to the Canada Pension Plan which came into force early this year.

At that time she reminded the House that it is necessary "to provide equality in the Canada Pension Plan for women along with men."

Then she said she would like to see three more amendments to that plan. One, to make survivors' benefits equal between men and women and two, the spouse who is doing the work of the home be permitted to share as a contributor and as a full recipient.

The third would see full benefits available to a surviving spouse of a contributor who, by reason of illness, injury or death was prevented from making sufficient payments to qualify for a pension.

Grace MacInnis then concluded her dynamic speech by calling attention to the report of the royal Commission on the Status of Women in Canada.

"We have not begun to touch most of the major recommendations in the report," she said, and then added, "it is not a moment too soon for the government to begin going through this Bible of women's rights and seeing which recommendations can be implemented now. The Canada Pension Plan is an excellent place to start."

It will be some gratification to her in knowing that recently federal Health and Welfare Minister Lalonde spoke of his desire to present further amendments to women's rights legislations in the House before Christmas.

This year, when Mrs. MacInnis decided against running in the recent federal election, it was not because she had lost a desire to continue her fight for further reforms.

Rather, the decision was forced upon her through a need (as she has said in letters to friends) "in the immediate future to curtail many things" she would like to do in the interest of "pushing back an active phase of arthritis."

In one letter, which I have been privileged to read, she further explains that she is going to a C.A.R.S. clinic twice a week, doing two half-hours of rather painful exercises at home each day, spending about nine hours at night and two in an afternoon, sleeping or at least resting.

This, she writes, "Leaves me time to read, to visit family and friends, to do the odd public chore, but that's about all."

Despite this rigid program, she will be here Saturday to open that bazaar in Norway House and to participate in the evening reception.

So, do remember it is Grace MacInnis Day in Victoria — and that you are all invited to participate.

Make it an outstanding event in her life. Let her know you admire and respect her for the work she has done . . . and that you believe she will still do in the future.

Foreign Students Need City Hosts

ROSA MARIA

The International Student Exchange Program is looking for families in Victoria willing to sponsor a Central American student for about two-and-a-half months.

One of the students, Rosa Maria Guevara, 16, of El Salvador, will arrive in Victoria Nov. 14 and stay until Jan. 20.

Five others, Rodolfo Correa, 15, Ricardo Mayorga, 16, both of Nicaragua; Alfonso Cortes, 14, Luisa Maria Alfaro, 14, and Ana Patricia Artuedas, 12, all of Costa Rica, will arrive Dec. 3 and stay until Feb. 18.

Llona O'Gorman, the Victoria representative for the exchange program, said it is important for host families to have children the same age as the exchange students.

The Central American students will attend school in Canada, and are expected to become part of the host family, Mrs. O'Gorman said.

Information on the exchange program is available from Mrs. O'Gorman at 477-2615.

HOT TEA, CANCER LINKED

MOSCOW (UPI) — Two Soviet doctors agreed today with an American report suggesting a connection between cancer and heavy drinking, and one said hot tea also could be a culprit.

Nikolai N. Blokhin, director of the institute of experimental and clinical oncology, told the Literaturnaya Gazeta that "a connection between alcohol and the development of some tumors has been studied for a long time. Though alcohol cannot be considered a direct cause of cancer, it is known that drinking provokes cirrhosis of the liver and can prompt the development of cancer of the liver.

"There are also grounds for thinking that alcohol provokes cancer of the esophagus."

Alexander V. Chaklin, chief tumor expert of the ministry of public health, said, "it is beyond doubt that strong alcoholic drinks irritate the mucous membranes . . . and that strong irritations of the mouth and esophagus can result in cancer is statistically proven.

Sales Resistance Test

JELLY SIDE DOWN
nancy stahl

In these days of high-pressure salesmanship, an unwary consumer can easily find himself agreeing to purchase unnecessary items. Test your own sales resistance in the following situations:

1. A salesman calls at your door contending that he is taking a survey of selected intellectually-advantaged families in your area. You would:

a. Express delight at being part of such an obviously exclusive group. Explain that first you simply must get the garbage cans moved out front or you will miss the pick-up. Ask if he would mind moving the cans while you put on coffee. While he is thus occupied, sneak out the door and go to a movie.

b. Invite him in, but warn him that the survey will have to be short as you are expecting the exterminator to arrive momentarily to rid the house of lice.

c. Express relief that he is, in fact, taking a survey, rather than attempting to sell you anything. Confide that you were released from prison last Tuesday after having served six months for setting fire to an encyclopedia salesman.

2. A woman on the telephone informs you that you have won three free dancing lessons. You would:

a. Express your appreciation and sincere desire to accept her generous offer — if and when you get out of your iron lung.

b. Laugh heartily. Explain that you have recently been named choreographer for the June Taylor Dancers. Mutter something about "coals to Newcastle."

3. Handling your hair as if it were a particularly revolting strain of tropical fungus, your hairdresser informs you that your whole appearance is drab and lifeless and strongly suggests a $45 hot oil treatment followed by a color rinse. You would:

a. Point out to your hairdresser that she's not so great looking herself.

b. Buy a wig.

Kuper Island Indian Land Approved for Subdivision

The trouble-plagued $5 million recreational development planned by the Kuper Island Indian Band has received federal government approval, almost two years after the intial permit application.

Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan recently signed the order-in-council allowing the Penelakut Indians on Kuper Island, just off Chemainus, to develop about 750 acres of the 1,800-acre island.

The project will be undertaken jointly by the Indians and the Dawson Land Co. of Richmond and negotiations for the development are in the final stages, regional Indian Affairs development officer Clarence Riach said Wednesday.

Riach said the basic testing and engineering designs should be completed this winter and construction on the site will probably start early next spring.

The project includes the subdivision of about 530 acres into 450 lots of 1.66 acres each and the construction of a golf course, marina and riding stables.

Any development planned for Indian-owned land must go through a "surrender procedure" by which 50 per cent of the Indian band members must be present for a vote on the development and more than 50 per cent of those present must vote in favor.

The Penelakut Band had to hold five such votes before the result was finally accepted by the federal government.

Riach said the first vote, held in January, 1973, was disallowed because there was less than a 50 per cent turnout.

The next three votes were disallowed because of technicalities, he said, but the fifth vote, held earlier this year, was accepted.

Riach said the development was favored by a large majority of the band members.

Band members will be employed in all phases of the project, with the development company providing on-the-job training where necessary.

The band will receive an income from the development of about $115 per lot, or about $51,750, per year.

Sidney Asks Province For Water

Sidney council Tuesday made another attempt to solve the community's water problems by asking the provincial government for help in bringing a water line out the Saanich Peninsula.

Ald. Wilkie Gardner said Wednesday council wanted the government to help work out a long-term financial arrangement for the water line.

Sidney, North Saanich and Central Saanich, have not been able to agree on water needs for the Peninsula communities, Gardner said, and he felt Sidney should put its case before the government on its own.

"I feel we have to do anything we can to do something about the water problem," he said.

Subdivision development in Sidney has been frozen for more than a year because of inadequate water resources and the waterworks district has a waiting list for more than 700 water connections, Gardner said.

Slicks Gum Up Ottawa, Barrett

Premier Barrett has charged the federal government with not providing an adequate program to deal with oil spills off the B.C. coast.

The premier's office Wednesday released copies of correspondence between Ottawa and Victoria in which B.C. requested a complete statement of details for providing federal services and staff available to deal with oil spills.

"We have received a list of equipment," said Barrett, "but there is apparently no specific strategy on how it would be deployed in the event of an oil spill.

"The federal government is dealing with the U.S. government now on the basis that an oil spill is 'inevitable,' and if they are going to do that, the least they could do to protect B.C.'s coastline from the disastrous effects of a spill would be to have a comprehensive program of anti-pollution action available."

But examination of the correspondence reveals that Ottawa has outlined a contingency plan for dealing with spills.

Prime Minister Trudeau, in a letter to Barrett Feb. 20, 1974, said the ministry of transport is responsible for cleanup after any marine pollution incident and "a command structure is in place."

"The commanders are identified in the interim contingency plan and these officers have at their disposal the resources . . . to conduct cleanup operations," said Trudeau.

The prime minister said he understood that provincial officials were "fully conversant" with the contingency plan.

In another letter dated May 6, Trudeau said a Marine Traffic Management System had been set up in West Vancouver as an additional emergency facility.

The new facility is manned 24 hours a day and will receive and disseminate all oil spill information in the province, said Trudeau.

In Trudeau's first reply to Barrett's request for oil spill information, Dec. 4, 1973, he said the minister of the environment would be moving soon to establish national and regional teams whose task would be to co-ordinate federal-provincial and industrial efforts to deal with environmental emergencies.

"A federal alerting, reporting and responsive organization for marine environmental accidents has been developed," Trudeau added, and on the west coast it involves 114 people in the department of the environment and 220 from the ministry of transport.

In a serious situation, 2,000 people could be made available from these ministries, said Trudeau, and national defence and public works personnel could also be brought in.

Included in the series of correspondence is a list of oil pollution equipment available in Vancouver, Victoria and Prince Rupert. At Victoria, for example, there are two slick-lickers mounted on barges, three slurp Skimmers, two large oil containment booms, a 23-foot sea truck and two steam cleaning units.

Included in correspondence just released was a letter from federal transport Minister Jean Marchand on federal investigation of Barrett's "way-out proposal" for shipping Alaskan oil by train.

Marchand explained to Barrett in the letter dated April 30, 1974, that the Canadian National-Canadian Pacific Railway study of an Arctic railway proposal did not study the scheme.

"The study team was about to commence in-depth examination of the 'way-out' route, but its relevance was queried, because of the decision that had been taken by the U.S. on the Trans-Alaska Pipeline-tanker route," said Marchand.

Barrett last year had proposed an alternative to the Alaska pipeline and tanker route for shipping oil which would use rail cars to ship oil south from Alaska through B.C. to the U.S.

Marchand said that while the study group had dropped discussion of Barrett's proposal it would still be in a position to provide a subjective opinion on the feasibility of the way-out proposal.

The federal minister said he would forward the study team's objective opinion to Barrett and if the premier still wished, a more in-depth study of the proposal could be done.

Correspondence shows Barrett has not yet received that subjective opinion from the study team.

Rifle Accident Kills V.I. Man

PARKSVILLE (CP) — Gary Allan Ross, 21, of Port Alberni was killed late Saturday when a .22-calibre rifle being carried by a friend accidentally discharged and the bullet struck him in the chest.

The incident occurred about 12 miles east of here.

RCMP said the shooting was accidental, but they were continuing investigations.

Fat Cats

LONDON (CP) — The first international congress on obesity is being held at the Royal College of Physicians here. It will feature, among other things, a grand banquet with tickets costing $23 each.

MINER DEATH 'ACCIDENT'

PORT HARDY, (CP) — A coroner's jury here has ruled that the July 10 death of miner Douglas Carron was accidental.

The jury also found that Mr. Carron was largely responsible for his own death.

Carron was hit by a large diesel-engine truck as he was operating a small ore vehicle in the pit at the Utah Mines operation here.

The jury found the accident occurred because Carron had not notified the operators of the large vehicles that he was working in the area.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Committing an offence while awaiting sentence for another crime resulted in an 18-year-old receiving a jail term instead of probation for the first offence.

Thomas Friel, of no fixed address, received Wednesday in provincial court a four-month sentence as well as a year's probation for breaking into a Russell Street residence Sept. 16.

He pleaded guilty to that charge Sept. 27, and while awaiting sentence, broke into Capital Market, 50 Burnside Road West, on Oct. 1 and stole about $10-worth of groceries.

Ostler said he would have given Friel probation if the court was dealing with only one conviction.

Friel will be sentenced Oct. 23 for the other break-in. He pleaded guilty to it Oct. 8.

A 29-year-old man was sentenced to a five-month jail term for possessing heroin.

Herbert Bruce Newton, of no fixed address, pleaded guilty earlier.

Police found a balloon containing seven heroin capsules in Newton's watch pocket when he was checked Sept. 10 in a Dallas Road apartment.

Judge William Ostler said as a result of appeal court rulings a jail term was mandatory for the offence, unless there were special circumstances.

There were no special circumstances in the case, he ruled.

A man who fired several shots from a rifle was remanded for sentencing to Oct. 31 after he pleaded guilty to dangerous use of a firearm.

Murray Lee Wiggins, 26, of 1510 Mount Douglas Crossroad, was found unconscious on a chesterfield in his home Sept. 13 by police who were called after shots were heard in the Mount Douglas Crossroad and Glendenning Road area.

Two young persons told police they had been walking on Glendenning when they heard shots and saw a man behind an upstairs window point an object in their direction.

Peter S. Klima, 33, of 450 Dallas, was fined $100 for shoplifting a box of laxatives worth $2.09 from Shoppers Drug Mart, 2947 Tillicum.

Helmut Gerhard Ovie, 31, of 325 Renart, was fined $350 and banned from driving for 30 days for impaired driving, and for the same offence, Harry O'Flynn, 58, of 881 McAdam, was fined $375 and banned from driving for 50 days.

No ordinary cookies these Farley's!

Versatile. That's the word for a cereal that may have been baby's first solid food, favourite cereal-with-milk as a toddler, now the youngster's first choice as a between-meals snack eaten like an ordinary biscuit. Except Farley's Baby Feeding Biscuits are no ordinary biscuits. They are good for growing youngsters, for Farley's contain added Riboflavin, Niacin, Iron and Calcium. Taste? Well, just watch your youngsters eat 'em up. Babies, toddlers, youngsters — they all love Farley's. No wonder Farley's are so much a part of growing up for thousands of babies throughout the world. Look for Farley's Baby Feeding Biscuits at your grocer's. If you don't see them, your grocer can get them for you.

Charges Dismissed, Ingrid Fed Up

VANCOUVER (CP) — A teacher who spent two weeks on the steps of the British Columbia Legislature in June says dismissal of her charges that she has been discriminated against may make her give up her fight.

Ingrid Blanchet, 53, said she has been informed by letter that a private Vancouver School Board review, which looked into her complaint that a former principal's critical report hurt her career, has dismissed the charges.

The letter, by committee chairman Elliott Gose, said the committee could see no justification for her inference that comments by the principal had damaged her career.

"Your interpretation of those comments and not the comments themselves, have led to your point of view," the letter said.

Mrs. Blanchet, who also spent a week in July in a vigil at the Vancouver Courthouse to bring public attention to her inability to get a teaching job in B.C. said the committee's decision had discouraged her.

"I'm feeling really down about it. I'm ready to give the whole thing up," she said.

Mrs. Blanchet says she has been unable to get a job in Vancouver despite applications to several schools after teaching during the 1973-74 school term in Prince Rupert.

The report in dispute was written by Queen Victoria School Principal Lee Hafft, who was then in her first year at the school.

Gose said in an interview Saturday that the review was specifically into the principal's report and did not rule on Mrs. Blanchet's larger complaints that schools consider her overqualified. Mrs. Blanchet has said that current hiring practices discriminate against experienced — and therefore higher paid — teachers. She has a PC6 rating which credits her with six years of approved teaching experience.

Victoria Trustees Spreading 'Hearsay'

The political and administrative heads of the Greater Victoria school board were accused Wednesday night of making "second-hand and hearsay" statements about the dispute between the board and its maintenance staff.

Neither board chairman Peter Bunn nor district superintendent Jake Longmore "have ever attended a meeting to gain first-hand knowledge of the circumstances," Frank Pickell of Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 382, told Victoria Labor Council.

He said the dispute over rating of floor areas to equalize workloads could have been settled earlier this month and service to night school rentals restored.

"The supervisor of operations was willing to propose a settlement as to the square footage required by the custodial and janitorial staff to maintain the regular school cleaning," said Pickell.

"He relayed his proposal to the board's negotiators but they refused to propose these to the union negotiators."

He said this occurred Oct. 4 and if agreement was reached service to night school rentals could have resumed Oct. 7.

A scheduled meeting between both sides earlier this week was cancelled by the school board, and the union applied for a mediation officer in its contract dispute.

The board has accused the union of engaging in a limitation of services over the night school rental issue and the B.C. Labor Relations Board is investigating the charge.

Pickell said the board's "intention is to prolong this issue and paint the union in as black a picture to the public as possible, blaming them for the non-service of night functions, when this could have returned to regular servicing Oct. 7. This is fact, not fiction."

Parksville Names New Chamber Chief

PARKSVILLE — Realtor Andrew Pearson has been elected president of the Parksville and District Chamber of Commerce.

Elected by acclamation, Pearson replaces Eva Burns who headed the chamber for two years.

Apt Name

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The popular '50s rock 'n' roll musical Grease which is enjoying a successful run in San Francisco, was so named because of the hair preparations used by teen-agers of that era. It's no wonder then that in Mexico the musical was tagged Vaselina.

UNIONS URGE TIRE BOYCOTT

An effective boycott of Firestone and Goodyear products should be mounted, Victoria Labor Council delegates agreed Wednesday night.

They endorsed a call from the Canadian Labor Congress for a national consumer boycott of the two companies because of strikes against them by the United Rubber Workers Union in Ontario. "If all organizations cooperate it would bring considerable pressure on Goodyear and Firestone," said council president Larry Ryan.

"But sometimes I'm afraid there's very little response from the buying public. But if it was effective it would have a tremendous impact."

The council also agreed to endorse and seek signatures on a B.C. Federation of Labor petition urging the provincial government to maintain the maximum eight per cent rental increase legislation until rent levels are investigated and justified and to launch a massive housing program.

Ex-Police Admit Brutality on Force

TORONTO (CP) — Syd Brown, head of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Association, and former city policeman Barrie Sexton said Wednesday they have seen other policemen use violence against prisoners.

The two men were commenting during an open-line program on radio station CHIN.

"There are certain men on the force who shouldn't be there who use certain methods that shouldn't be used," said Brown. Such men should be "kicked off the force," he added.

Brown said published reports in Toronto newspapers on police brutality to suspects and prisoners "damns every policeman on the street."

But he added, "the more publicity it gets, the more likely it will stop."

The puplic may be partially responsible, Brown said.

"Possibly you give too much support to a policeman by saying 'keep it (the city) clean, and I don't care how you do it'."

Sexton, a former British and Toronto policeman and now co-ordinator of Humber College's law enforcement program, said policemen tend to become like their environment, and even psychological screening at the hiring level cannot protect them from the later intluence of fellow workers and surroundings.

The Globe and Mail quotes James Walter Hyland as saying he was pushed and kicked in the stomach by policemen he had asked to come to his home to take his girl-friend to hospital.

In a copyright story, the newspaper quotes Hyland, 28, as saying five officers responded promptly to the call last March 3 after the woman, Lee McNeil, had cut her hand. The couple did not have enough money to get her to hospital by taxi.

Hyland's account is the third in a series of stories by reporter Gerald McAuliffe dealing with alleged brutality by Metropolitan Toronto police.

Hyland is quoted as saying the policemen were irritated over the nature of the call and, after seeing the condition of the home, suggested that Mrs. McNeil's nine-year-old daughter be taken to the Children's Aid Society for proper care.

The girl became hysterical, Hyland said, and when he went to comfort her the policemen pushed him backward on the floor and one kicked him in the stomach.

Then the officers left and Hyland had to be taken to hospital by ambulance, the newspaper says. He suffered a serious "tear to the bowels" which required a three-hour operation, remained in hospital for six days and was told he would be unable to work for three months.

Mrs. McNeil concurred with Hyland's account of the incident.

The newspaper says polgraph lie-detector tests given to Hyland and Mrs. McNeil showed they were telling the truth in reply to questions dealing with specific parts of their allegations.

Losses Close Mills

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The vice-president of Evans Products Ltd. said Wednesday the company is selling two of its newest mills because of continued poor lumber markets in British Columbia.

Fred Mills said a stud mill at Pemberton and a sawmill at Lillooet have been put up for sale.

The Pemberton mill, which at full capacity employs 105 men, now is completely closed because of poor market conditions.

The Lillooet sawmill, which employs 185 men at full capacity, is operating on a limited scale.

Mills did not disclose the price of the mills, but said both are less than three years old.

Evans products also operates mills near Revelstoke and Sabona, 30 miles west of here.

GUNMAN FACED DOWN

POWELL RIVER (CP)—An RCMP sergeant faced a gunman in an apartment here for 2½ hours Wednesday to talk him out o fshooting a woman.

Sgt. Ken Pitt managed to get the woman out of the apartment before the man shot himself in the head with a .32-calibre colt revolver.

For 2½ hours the sergeant talked to the man who sat drinking beer and firing three shots into the walls. Finally the gunman went into the bathroom and Sergeant Pitt was able to get the woman and himself out the door.

"He had been watching the door pretty closely," he said. "He kept threatening to shoot the girl and sometimes myself if I tried to interfere. Apparently the girl wanted to leave him and he was stopping her."

After the woman and sergeant were outside police fired a tear gas pellet into the apartment, hoping to flush out the gunman.

However, a shot was heard and when police entered they found the man "crumpled up on the bed," Sergeant Pitt said.

U.S. Warns Turkey No Arms for Cyprus

WASHINGTON (WP) — Congress and President Ford plunged into a new impasse over Turkey Wednesday as both chambers ignored veto threats and voted to cut off U.S. weapons aid to Turkey immediately if any of the supplies are shipped to Turkish forces in Cyprus.

The action, a sharp rebuff to the President and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, prolonged the conflict over Turkish aid and again blocked the scheduled election recess of Congress.

The White House says an immediate cutoff of weapons aid to Turkey would antagonize the Turks and undermine Kissinger's efforts to negotiate an end to the Turkish occupation of some 40 per cent of Cyprus. But sponsors of the cutoff say Turkey has violated U.S. laws forbidding use of American-supplied weapons for aggressive action againt other nations.

In an attempt at compromise, Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal (Dem.-N.Y.) and other cutoff sponsors agreed to let the President postpone the cutoff until Dec. 10 to give Kissinger some negotiating time.

But on a 194 to 144 House vote, they insisted on adding a provision putting the cutoff into effect immediately if at any time prior to Dec. 10 Turkey trans-shipped any U.S. military equipment to its occupation army in Cyprus.

When the emergency appropriations bill carrying these provisions reached the Senate, GOP leader Hugh Scott (Rep.-Pa.) warned that the bill would be vetoed if the arms trans-shipment clause was retained.

However, the Senate, 40 to 27, rejected a move by Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield (Dem.-Mont.) to kill the trans-shipment ban. The underlying money bill was then passed and sent to the White House for the expected veto with the trans-shipment ban retained. Sen. Thomas Eagleton (Dem.-No.) said dropping the trans-shipment ban would allow "an avalanche of weaponry from every military storehouse in the world" to be used to resupply Turkish occupation forces in Cyprus, encouraging Turkey to be more intransigent in negotiations.

NO EARS FOR ROCKY

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Senate Rules Committee Wednesday rejected vice presidential nominee Nelson A. Rockefeller's request for an immediate reopening of hearings so that he can explain a series of nearly $2 million in gifts to politicians and political associates.

Despite strong urging from Sen. Hugh Scott, (Rep.-Pa.), and other GOP members of the committee that Rockefeller be given an immediate forum, Rules Chairman Howard W. Cannon (Dem.-Nev.), said the hearings won't be reopened until after the elections.

Cannon said after a conference with the other Democrates on the committee that he saw little point in resuming hearings right away when an audit of Rockefeller's tax returns won't be available until Oct. 22 and investigative reports on other matters aren't ready.

Rockefeller had asked for a reopening of Senate hearings this week, possibly Thursday, to discuss the gifts, which included forgiveness of a loan of $550,000 to William J. Ronan, a long-time political associate and chairman of the Port of New York Authority, $50,000 to Henry A. Kissinger (in 1969 when Kissinger didn't hold public office), an $86,312 in forgiveness of an earlier loan to L. Judson Morhouse, one-time New York state GOP chief and public official who was convicted of financial misconduct but pardoned by Rockefeller in 1970 on grounds he was ill.

Dollar for dollar, feature for feature, the Datsun B210 can still make $3000.* go a long, long way.

If you don't think your dollar can go as far as it used to, then you haven't checked into Datsun's economical B210. The B210 has features that some of the other cars in its price class like to call extra cost options. Like the 12-way fully reclining front bucket seats. The power assisted front disc brakes. The chrome, full wheel covers. The white sidewall tires. The tinted glass. And the rear window defogger. They're all included in the Datsun B210, 2-door Sedan's standard price of less than $3000*. And there's something else that's included in all B210 models – the 2-door sedan, the 4-door sedan and the Hatchback – that's some great gas mileage. So it takes even less of your dollar to take you farther. Datsun B210. The car that can still make your dollar mean a lot. At your Datsun dealers now.

Spree Bequeathed

POZAREVAC, Yugoslavia (AP)—Mike Milovanovic, a retired railroadman, has never had time to go on a spree and has decided he will give his grandsons a chance. He worked hard all 40 years of his employed life, married off three daughters and has three grandsons. He made a will bequeathing his entire property to his grandsons, but stipulated that they squander the entire amount eating, drinking and merry-making.

Call for Help

SPRINGFIRLD, Mass. (AP) — A 58-mile stretch of Interstate 91 soon will have radio call boxes to aid stranded motorists. The federal highway administration has approved installation of 220 of the boxes between the Connecticut and Vermont borders. The project is expected to be completed by September, 1975.

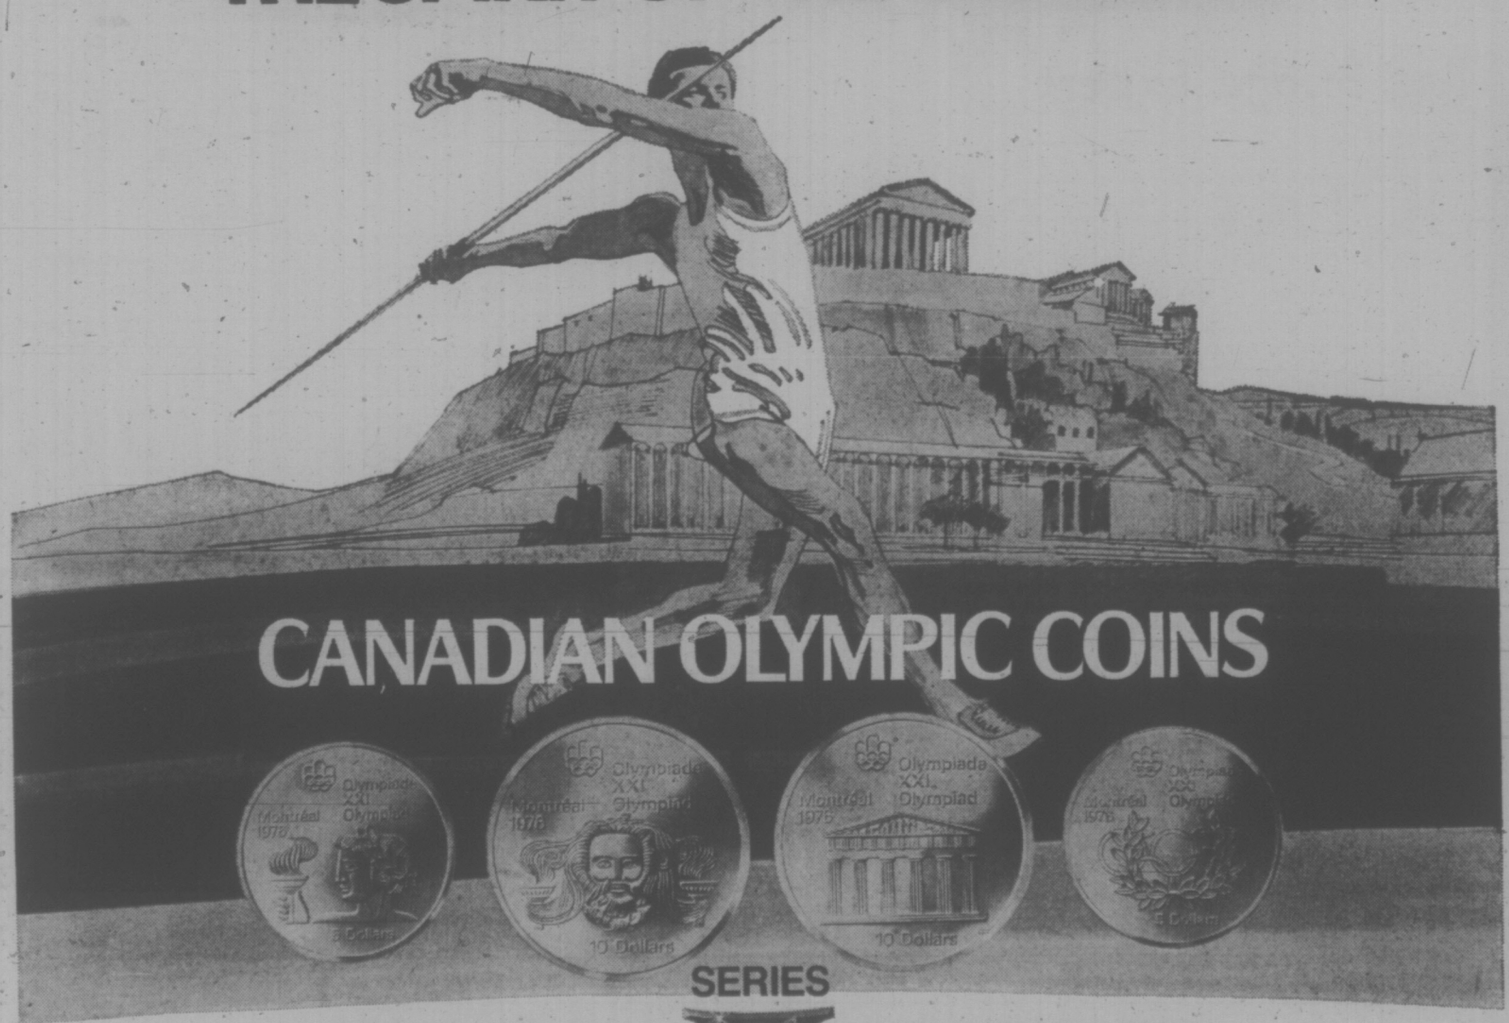
THE SPIRIT OF THE OLYMPICS



Struck in solid sterling silver, Olympic Motifs depict the ancient heritage of the Olympic Games.

The number of Olympic Coins to be struck is limited by an Act of Canadian Parliament.

To help finance the 1976 Olympics, a special Canadian Olympic Coin collection is being minted. Series II of seven—Olympic Motifs, is now available. Designed by Anthony Mann of Halifax, these four coins portray both the mythical and real beginnings of today's Olympic Games. From Zeus, in whose honour the first Games were held, to the five Olympic rings representing the world's continents, Series II—Olympic Motifs is a superb addition to your Olympic Coin collection. If you already have the first series, do not hesitate to order the second. If you were unable to obtain Series I, a limited supply is available from authorized distributors. When you buy Olympic Coins you not only help support the 1976 Games, but you contribute to the growth of amateur sports, and to the Canadian Olympic Team. And, long after the Games are over, you will have a shining reminder of the part you played in helping to make the Games a success. Coin Specifications: $10 coins are 45 mm. in diameter, weigh 750 grains, with a fine silver content of 1.44 troy oz. $5 coins are 38 mm. in diameter, weigh 375 grains, with a fine silver content of 0.723 troy oz. All coins are sterling, 92.5% pure silver, and minted in Brilliant Uncirculated or Proof quality. Each Olympic Coin carries an uncrowned image of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II on the obverse. Canadian Olympic Coins are protected in ultrasonically welded clear styrene crystal capsules, and are available individually, or in various custom-crafted presentation cases. Prices for Series II vary according to quality and packaging. Don't delay. The number of Olympic Coins to be minted is limited by an Act of Canadian Parliament.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

It is an obvious fact that games and slams made by deceiving the defenders count exactly as much as games and slams made via brilliant technical execution. And the same applies with respect to overtricks in a duplicate game, where scoring is on a relative basis, and an overtrick can be worth its weight in gold to a declarer.

In today's deal, which arose in a duplicate game, our South declarer made an excellent falsecard at trick one. Its effect was that it talked defender into making a lead at trick two that gave declarer a precious overtrick that he could not have made on his own power.

East-West vulnerable. South deals.

♣ Q 10

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

On West's king of spades opening lead, East initiated a high-low signal by playing the five. It was East's hope that West possessed the ace and king of spades; and that when West next led the ace of spades, East would play the four-spot, thus completing his high-low signal. West would then lead a third spade, which East would ruff.

In normal tempo, after East had played the spade five on the opening lead, South dropped the nine. West now paused to examine the situation at hand.

Since the three and four of spades were not in evidence, West concluded that East's five-spot was a "come on" signal; and that East possessed either the jack or ace of spades (or both of these vital cards). So, at trick two, West continued with a low spade, dummy's seven winning the trick.

A trump was then led, South's ten being captured by West's ace. Hoping that East possessed another trump, West now led the ten of spades. East discarded a club as South took the trick with his ace. After picking up West's last trump, and ruffing out his remaining spade, South claimed his contract with an overtrick.

Had South played the three of spades (instead of the nine) at trick one, West might well have discontinued leading the spade suit at trick two. And if West did not lead a spade from here in, South would have lost another spade trick. So South's falsecard paid a nice dividend.

Joe gatheres up the cards. "I'm through," he said. "If I lost another dollar I'd have lost two thirds of what I started with."

"Okay, but you could win it all back," Greg told him. "It's quite a while since you said you'd lost just half your money."

"No dice!" Joe laughed. "I lost five bucks more since then."

How much did he start with?

'Vacationers' Cut Off Welfare

A North Vancouver family who took an $8,000 vacation while on welfare will no longer receive any direct social assistance money.

Human Resources minister Norman Levi said today the family rent money will be paid directly by the department and food vouchers will be given but no more money will be handed over to the family.

Levi described J. Angus Philip of North Vancouver as a man "who has devoted his life to beating the system."

"When somebody sets out to beat the system we can either be punitive and say we'll cut them off . . . . but we have to look at the family," he said.

Philip, who has a wife and four children, was disabled in a car accident in 1972. He went on social assistance but agreed to repay all the welfare benefits once he received a damage settlement from the accident.

He received the $11,050 settlement in June and instead of paying back about $10,000 in welfare payments, he took his family on a holiday to Mexico and spent the rest of the money paying back debts.

As it stands, there is nothing the province can do about it because the federal government's Canada Assistance Plan forbids the signing of repayment agreements.

Levi said however, the system of signing repayment agreements has been "going on for years" in some districts despite the federal ruling.

But he said the ruling is "first class" because the principle that welfare payments shouldn't be conditional on repayment is a good one.

If repayment schemes can be worked out in certain cases, so much the better, he said, but they shouldn't be a requirement for receiving help if the need is there.

The department has usually had no problem with collecting refunds once an agreement is signed, said Levi, but the Philip case was an unusual one.

Often repayment contracts are signed when a person is entitled to receive unemployment insurance benefits but has to wait for the first cheque and needs assistance in the meantime.

Levi said he hopes to discuss with the federal government the general problem of slow U.I.C. payments and the use of repayment contracts.

But he stressed that he will not seek any changes in the federal ruling on social assistance repayments.

BUTCHART GARDENS. AUTUMN! Just about the most beautiful, most colorful time of the year in these famous gardens. Should it shower, don't worry, there's free use of umbrellas for everybody. Usually warmer out here, too! Open every day 9 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Plan now for one of your happiest outings!

BUTCHART GARDENS, KNOWN THROUGHOUT THE WORLD FOR THEIR INCREDIBLE BEAUTY . . . EVER CHANGING, ALWAYS LOVELY! Skilful planning, constant replanting, dedicated gardeners pooling their ideas and knowledge, keep them that way week after week, season after season. Developed from an old abandoned limestone quarry over half a century ago, they have grown to become one of the world's most unusual, written about, talked about, admired attractions.

BUTCHART GARDENS. Snack and Coffee Bar is always open.

FRIENDS ARRIVING? Take them to see these lovely gardens. One of the nicest and most appreciated ways to entertain.

9 IN MEMORIAM

CORBETT — In loving memory of a dear wife who passed away on August 17th, 1974, Mrs. Ina A. Corbett (nee Patterson).
To Brigadier Waddell, his entire staff and many guests of Matron Lodge and others, May I take this opportunity of offering my deep appreciation for the many expressions of sympathy received by myself and the families. May God bless you all.
—Mr. W. Corbett.

FRY — In loving memory of Uncle Charlie, who passed away Oct. 16, 1944.
—Always remembered by Mrs. R. Burton.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
—WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS.

GARDENING

Sow Now for Spring Vegetables

Vegetable gardening is not finished for the year. In fact most of us hope to have a lot more to be thankful for yet, even for being able to do some seed sowing now to give us early peas and broad beans before the end of May.

Also we must water the September sowings of lettuce, spinach, winter radish, chervil, parsley, and the established vegetables such as parsnips, kale, leeks, brussels sprouts, Jerusalem artichokes, perennial broccoli and spring cabbage.

Especially in gardens where water has been scanty all year attention must be given to moisture at the roots of growing plants.

It is common to see loose gravelly soils totally deficient in moisture at this time and garden plants reflecting the neglect.

The clay soils are dry too where watering has been insufficient during the last two months.

For this late October sowing of peas and broad beans choose a small plot of ground having a fair amount of sun reaching it on winter days.

It should also have the protection of shrubby plantings, a building, or a fence to the northeast to break the coldest of our winter winds.

Equally valuable for an early spring crop from a sandy soil, or from a clay soil impossible to start early unless you get around the problem with raised beds, the October sowing needs little care in winter.

Sow only a few seeds, for in some years the results are wiped out by a hard frost, but still we feel the chance is worth taking.

Last year, seeds sown Oct. 16 sprouted on Nov. 10. Flower buds were noted on the broad beans March 21, with both the peas and beans flowering by April 3. Since growth is gradual and constant, flowers, and therefore pods, develop over many weeks.

Varieties used were Windsor Longpod Broad Beans, and Laxton's Progress Dwarf Peas. I set only 36 seeds of beans and 40 of the peas, but the crop was marvellously plentiful from the first handful to the last full picking when stripping the finished plants weeks later in June.

Prepare the patch of ground, adding more soil from the compost heap if you have lately taken out a crop. Very old manure (not chicken manure) can be used for humus.

Sow the seeds two to three inches deep, allowing about two feet between the rows. The plants should have stakes put in by spring to keep the growth from bending over on the ground when winds and rain batter them. You won't want to lose even one pod.

As with the sweet pea sowing discussed in yesterday's column, don't expect spectacular growth this fall. It will be roots that are being made below ground, ready to serve the top growth at the first touch of spring weather next year.

Both the broad beans and the Laxton's peas prefer cool weather for growing, flowering and producing. We may as well take advantage of these peculiarities to enjoy early feasts.

Newcomers to gardening here take note, and take a chance with a small sowing of these two vegetables now and rejoice with the results next year while it is still spring.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2 BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement

3 MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.
Don't allow the reader to speculate.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you information you give are the have to offer; the details and most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8 -TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386 2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage as ads are word 8 a m to 6:00 p m for you daily Monday through Saturday call

Dad Made Pass Before Death: Daughter

A Sooke father made sexual advances on his daughter before he was slain in their home last winter, a B.C. Supreme Court jury was told Wednesday.

Gayle Miller, who was then 16, described events the night of Feb. 15, in which her father George Edwin Miller, 45, of 6736 Sooke Road, died by a gunshot wound in the head.

His body was found as firemen fought flames in the house shortly before midnight, and subsequently 16-year-old Kenneth Michael Osbourne, 485 Forward, was charged with murder.

The girl testified Osbourne bedroom when Miller came home from a visit to a beer parlor after work the day of his death. There was no one else in the house where Gayle and her brother George lived with their father.

The couple had been in the bedroom about two hours when the father came home, Gayle said.

"I ran downstairs," leaving Ken in the bedroom, she said.

"My dad came in kind of mad" because of something he had seen on the way home. "He was sort of drunk. He wasn't drunk but he had been drinking," the girl said.

She cooked his supper and he told her he was going into Colwood, but when she went past his ground floor bedroom about 20 minutes later she heard him snoring and saw his bare legs stretched out on his bed.

Returning to the living room, Gayle said she watched TV fo rabout 10 minutes, then returned upstairs to her bedroom where Ken was sitting in a chair.

"He asked me if my dad tried anything on me. I just said he put his arm around me and kissed me," Gayle related.

"How were you feeling at that time?" asked prosecutor George McMinn.

"Scared," the girl said. "I was worried how to get Ken out of the house without my dad knowing."

After about five minutes, Ken went downstairs to go to the washroom and Gayle said she was sitting "having a smoke" when she heard "a funny noise."

Two or three minutes later Ken came back upstairs. "He had a gun in his hand."

"What did he say?" asked McMinn.

"He said he shot my dad."

"What did you say?"

"I didn't say nothing. I just went into shock."

Ken then said they should leave and he went downstairs, the girl said.

"I went into the closet and hid."

McMinn asked why she did that.

"I was in shock. I didn't know what I was doing," Gayle replied.

She said Ken called to her, then came back upstairs and took her down. As she waited for him at the front door, she saw him with a wallet in his hand at the kitchen table, a few steps from Miller's bedroom door.

The couple walked to a neighboring home where they knew a party was in progress, intending to find a ride home for Ken, the girl said, repeating her state of shock and "I didn't know what I was doing."

After a few minutes they left the house with a friend, Rick Smith and Gayle said she heard Ken tell him "he had killed my dad. Rick said 'How?' and Ken told him. Rick said he was crazy."

"At that time did you believe Ken had shot your father?" the prosecutor asked.

"Yes," the girl answered.

She and the accused then found a ride to Colwood and dropped Ken off, and when she returned home the fire was in progress and a crowd had gathered to watch firemen, she said.

McMinn asked what was meant when Ken asked if her father had "tried anything", and what had been her relationship with her father.

The relationship was good, Gayle said, "but sometimes he did something a father wouldn't normally do with his daughter."

It had happened only once, she added, on Feb. 13. Miller had sat with her on a couch after he had been drinking. He kissed her on the mouth and fondled her, and she later told Ken about it.

She said her father had forbidden her to go out on dates: "I wasn't allowed to go out with guys." But she said he was not aware that she did so in defiance of her father, and he did not knew Ken, with whom she had been going for about a year.

The girl said her father disciplined her when it was deserved: "Sometimes I'd get hit around . . . and sometimes when I deserved it I didn't get it," and she talked to Ken about this. Her father struck her 8 to 10 times in a year, she said.

"Whenever I got the upper . . . Ken would say he'd kill him, but it was just a manner of speech," Gayle said.

Under cross-examination by defence counsel Lloyd McKenzie, the girl said her father was a frequent drinker but not an alcoholic.

She admitted disobeying him without his knowledge, and felt she deserved the beatings she got.

"He found out I wasn't babysitting, but he didn't know I was going out with boys."

When her father made advances Feb. 13 she had thought she was pregnant and said she cried and excused herself to go to the washroom.

At this point McKenzie suggested her testimony varied from evidence at the preliminary hearing.

Did she deny her father had made sexual advances?

"I never thought much of it," she replied.

What about kissing on the lips, McKenzie asked.

"I thought that was pretty improper," Gayle said.

"A lot of times I wished he was dead," she added, but had never threatened to kill him herself and was not aware of any threat by the accused.

In earlier evidence court was told Miller and his wife had not got along, and Mrs. Miller had left about four years ago.

Police said after the fire two small calibre rifles were recovered from the Miller house where they found in a rack by the front door.

The trial was continuing today before Mr. Justice Walter Kirk Smith.

PARK STATUS SOUGHT IN VIC WEST

Victoria parks committee today urged city council to establish a park reserve status on the tiny three-acre park which was formerly the Barnard Estate, in Victoria West.

The property was acquired about three years ago from the federal government.

The committee also urged council to back an application from the Royal Theatre management committee, comprising representatives of Victoria, Saanich and Oak Bay, to spend up to $5,000 on repairs to the theatre's heating plant.

The money will be found from proceeds of the rental agreement which the theatre management has signed with Famous Players Ltd.

Many Doomed In Ethiopia

DEGEH BUR (Reuter) — About a quarter of a million people in eastern Ethiopia's Ogaden Desert are doomed to die of hunger, thirst or disease unless long-overdue rain or increased international relief comes soon.

This grim picture emerged from interviews with officials of Ethiopia's drought relief and rehabilitation commission, administrators, tribal chiefs and local people of the Ogaden.

Visiting journalists saw people gathered to receive their weekly allocation of 55 pounds of relief grain a family. Children, too weak to walk, have been reduced to skin-clad skeletons.

More than 97 per cent of the Ogaden's population are nomads. Those who manage to walk here do not have the best chances of survival. Many die waiting for family members to return with their grain allocation.

Relief officials here and in Addis Ababa are reluctant to set up permanent camps because they feel such settlements create additional problems and severely disrupt the traditional way of life of the nomadic tribes in the Ogaden.

However, in Degeh Bur an emergency food distribution centre and a shelter have been set up for about 500 children.

Cmdr. Amde Kirkos, responsible for relief operations in the Ogaden, said the plight of Degeh Bur district is representative of the situation in the entire region. Estimates of its population range from 800,000 to one million.

"About a third of the population in Degeh Bur district has only a very slim chance of survival," he said. "And the picture elsewhere is similar."

Four consecutive years without rain have rapidly diminished the vast herds of cattle, goats and camels which form the basis of nomad life in the Ogaden. With most wells dried up, crops destroyed by drought and seeds consumed for lack of other food, disaster is looming large.

West Germans Attack U.S. Involvement

BONN (AP) — West Germany has accused a United States business group of trying to meddle in German affairs by opposing a plan giving workers a say in running business in West Germany, including some U.S.-owned giants.

A spokesman for Chancellor Helmut Schmidt told reporters Wednesday that the American Chamber of Commerce in West Germany was "very close to interfering in our affairs" by distributing a study that criticized the so-called "co-determination" bill now before parliament.

The bill would give workers an equal vote with shareholders on boards running the 650 largest firms in the country, including 50 subsidiaries of U.S. businesses such as Ford, General Motors and IBM. Employee representatives now comprise one-third of the board in every business employing more than 2,000 workers.

The chamber has been hostile to the proposed legislation for months. The current row began when the chamber distributed an independent study claiming the bill violates investment protection clauses in a 1954 U.S.-German trade agreement by limiting the rights of U.S. shareholders over their own business.

A copy of the study was sent to Schmidt's office. One sent to the U.S. state department included a request that Washington intervene in behalf of the U.S. businessmen in opposition to the bill.

A chamber spokesman said the organization also urged U.S. parent companies of German subsidiaries to ask their congressmen to press the Ford administration to do something to defeat the bill.

A U.S. embassy spokesman said Washington has not responded to the chamber's request for support and that the Bonn government has made no formal protest of the chamber's activities. Ford administration officials said in Washington they do not expect an early reply and classified the situation as "a delicate issue."

Circulation of the chamber's study brought harsh statements from German political leaders and raised the ire of labor unions, the major force behind the proposed law. The bill is a pet project of the Schmidt government.

Through his spokesman, Schmidt described the chamber's action as "not particularly fortunate." Even the opposition Christian Democrats, who oppose the measure, accused the Chamber of "unpermissible intervention" and "psychological warfare."

Heinz-Oskar Vetter, boss of the Trades Union Federation, accused the chamber of "gunboat" tactics. He accused the chamber of holding over Germany the threat of an end to U.S. investments.

"We're not a little banana republic, and colonialism is dead in Europe," Vetter said. "The sooner they notice it the better.

"Once they sent gunboats today diplomats and money."

A chamber spokesman rejected as nonsense Vetter's claim that it would try to stop further investments in Germany and accused the unionist of "trying to whip up an anti-American mood . . . in a very ugly fashion."

$1,000 Blaze At Restaurant

About $1,000 damage was done in a fire at the Wooden Plate restaurant, Farmer's Market, in Colwood today.

A Colwood fire department spokesman said fire broke out in a partition but was quickly extinguished after employees in a bakery next door turned in the alarm at 7 a.m.

Girl Guide Leaders Training

More than 30 girl guide leaders and potential leaders showed up at a training session Tuesday and Wednesday at Victoria's Guide House.

Emphasis was on making guiding relevant to today's young girls from 10 to 14.

New leaders have turned up in the Victoria area training session spokesman Maria Kissinger said, which indicates continued interest in the program despite recent discontent among youngsters involved.

Further training sessions will occur Oct. 22 and 23 at 938 Mason Street and those interested in guide leadership are welcome.

Canada's Now 12 In Space Age

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — It's been 12 years since Canada became the third country in space with the launching of Alouette I, the first of a series of scientific satellites for studying the ionosphere.

Ten years later, Alouette I still was sending useful data back to earth.

Canada's space program has developed to the point where it's now on the threshold of a new venture in communications technology, Canadian delegate Robert Stanbury told the UN political committee Wednesday.

The 138-member committee is debating the report of the committee on the peaceful issues of outer space.

Stanbury said Canada expects to launch its Communications Technology Satellite (CTS) by late 1975.

He described it as a purely experimental system that will test the technology and application of a new generation of high-powered satellites aimed at bringing sophisticated communications services to the remote corners of Canada.

Stanbury said that orbiting, high-powered transmitters as embodied in the CTS might help eliminate some of the global regional disparities that exist in all forms of electronic communications because such transmitters will permit the use of small, even portable, earth stations.

The CTS system, although of Canadian conception, is the prodict of an international cooperative effort.

With CTS, Canada plans to conduct during a two-year period more than 20 experiments such as conferences and university courses by television, and medical diagnosis for isolated communities.

"These illustrate the great variety of uses that such satellites offer," Stanbury said. "With the decreasing size and cost of ground facilities, made possible by high-powered transmitters in space, access to the benefits of communications technology will increase accordingly for all peoples."

Developers Get No Deal

Developers planning to buy land from the city of Victoria can't expect any special deals in mortgage interest rates, if a policy suggested by the city finance committee today is endorsed by council.

The committee agreed that in all agreements for sale involving a down payment and the balance paid over a period up to five years, the interest rate charged should be ½ per cent above the prime lending rate.

Initially, the policy will be applied to a property deal which includes a street closure at Dundas and Alston streets as well as a land exchange — with the firm of Speed Developments Ltd.

Under and earlier proposal, the firm was to make a 25 per cent down-payment on the sale price of $75,500 and pay the balance over one year at 9½ per cent, but Mayor Peter Pollen said that was offering the developer an unduly advantageous rate.

Young Speaks, Takes Queries

Consumer Services Minister Phyllis Young will speak on the Trade Practices Act, rising prices and consumer problems in general at a public meeting Monday at 8 p.m. at St. Christopher's church hall, Carey and Tillicum.

The public will be invited to ask questions and voice problems directly affecting them.

New Spectrum Next Year

Students may yet move into a new Spectrum community high school building at Burnside and Acorn by September 1975, Greater Victoria superintendent of schools Jake Longmore said today.

Construction on the long-delayed school has still not begun but Longmore is hoping for a start in early November.

Construction by William Campbell and Co. will begin as soon as the department of education completes a review of construction costs and approves building the school under contract management, he said.

Under contract management, Greater Victoria school board will hire a contractor with whom it will sit down and together work out the cheapest way to build the school.

No one bid of the contractor is approved by the board.

The review of costs began Tuesday and is expected to take three weeks.

Once construction starts, Longmore said, an attempt will be made to finish essential classrooms first so students can move in in September.

Less essential rooms, like industrial education and home economics, will be finished later.

The school, which the school board started planning four years ago, was once expected to cost $1.8 million.

When bids on construction of Spectrum were finally called last summer, both bids submitted were for more than $4.5 million.

The school board rejected both bids and decided to try contract management.

The human part of Spectrum community school — students and staff — have fared better than the building so far.

Spectrum school began operation on schedule this fall in temporary quarters in the former Mt. View high school building.

If more delays befall the Burnside-Acorn building, the Spectrum team will probably stay at Mt. View another year.

Swedish Leader Here Sunday

Sweden's socialist Prime Minister Olof Palme arrives at Victoria International Airport at 2:30 p.m. Sunday for a short visit to the capital.

Premier Barrett will greet the Swedish leader at the airport and accompany him on a sightseeing tour. Palme will be driven to Government House where he will spend a night and be honored with a state dinner.

The visit will end Monday at 10 a.m. when the prime minister flies to Vancouver for another day of state visits. He leaves Vancouver Monday night for Seattle where he will board a flight for Sweden.

Palme arrived in Ottawa today for the start of his five-day visit marking the first tour of Canada by a Swedish prime minister.

He is accompanied by a party of 25 including personal staff and a large group of reporters.

AUSTRALIA MAY GET 'CYPRIOT VIRGINS'

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — Two thousand "Cypriot virgins" may come to Australia, according to Immigration Minister Clyde Cameron.

Cameron said Monday the girls were living in the hill country of Cyprus.

"They are hiding from Turkish troops for fear of what might happen to them," he said. "Their ages are between 12 and 20 and they place great emphasis on their virginity."

The immigration minister said "Australia is considered a safe country for these Cypriot virgins to come to."

Cameron said Greek-Cypriot residents in Melbourne and Sydney asked the government to allow the girls to come to Australia.

Cameron, addressing a meeting of building workers, said immigration officials are having difficulty arranging for the girls to come to Australia because Cyprus is still in a state of war.

"But we feel it a duty to provide a haven for these refugees," Cameron said.

Controversial Mayor Makes a Comeback

EDMONTON (CP) — William Hawrelak was elected mayor of Edmonton Wednesday, returning to the post he was forced to vacate on two occasions by judicial decisions.

Hawrelak, a 58-year-old businessman, crushed five opponents in the civil election, including Ivor Dent, the 50-year-old former school teacher and principal who had held the mayor's job for the last six years. Hawrelak's two closest pursuers together couldn't match his vote-catching prowess.

Dent ran a sobering third behind Cec Purves, a 40-year-old alderman and businessman who had conducted the longest campaign in the search for the city's top political position.

Hawrelak was first elected mayor in 1951 and served until 1959, when he resigned after a judicial inquiry found him guilty of gross misconduct in land transactions while in office. He was re-elected in 1963 and 1965, but was disqualified in 1965 by a court order because of a conflict-of-interest situation. He returned to the political arena in 1966, but was rejected by the voters in his bid to return to the mayor's chair.

In Calgary, Rod Sykes, a controversial mayor for six years, edged out alderman Ross Alger for his third term. Sykes, 45, a chartered accountant who won easily in 1969 and 1971, was 3,000 votes ahead in the late stages of counting.

Three other candidates in Calgary were far behind. They were alderman Peter Petrasuk, an engineer and lawyer; financial consultant Ed Dooley and plumber's helper John Mason.

Land Deal Hearings Continued

EDMONTON (CP) — A judicial inquiry into civic affairs will re-open to investigate a 13-month-old land transaction between the city and a local land development company, Mr. Justice William Morrow of the Northwest Territories Supreme Court said Wednesday.

Justice Morrow announced the decision at a hearing originally intended to hear final oral arguments in the inquiry.

The inquiry was called after Ald. Alex Fallow said he had been offered a $40,000 gift by two city land developers following a favorable vote on a rezoning bylaw. The developers, Eskandar and Raphael Ghermezian, have testified it was Ald. Fallow who demanded the money but was refused.

Commission counsel W. A. Stevenson said Westgreen Development North Ltd. was involved in a 28-acre land transaction with the city that involved an "unreasonably low" price.

He said a negotiated price of $87,120 per acre was arrived at between the two parties, and third reading of the bylaw allowing the transaction was given in September, 1973. However there was evidence that another company made an offer amounting to more than $130,000 per acre for the land.

NDP Farm 'Frightening'

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan Liberals' agriculture spokesman, MLA John Gardner (Moosomin) today denounced as "dangerous" and "frightening" the provincial government's purchase of a large co-operative farm.

He said in a news release that the purchase of the Matador Co-op north of Swift Current is evidence that the NDP government has a policy of state control over farmland.

He said it is even more alarming that Agriculture Minister John Messer said the transaction will be the first of many such arrangements by the Land Bank Commission.

"What this means to me," said Gardner, "is that the government will be buying private farmland in order to create government co-operatives."

"In the Matador case, the co-op was already in existence but there are certainly no more than one or two other large farmer-owned co-ops in existence in Saskatchewan."

Messer, however, told reporters today that although in some cases co-ops may be formed with land bank farmland bought from private owners, the government is not promoting such developments.

He explained that his reference to similar future transactions was intended to cover only purchase of co-op farms as a method of helping co-ops escape the problems of allocating land equity among retiring members and debt among newcomers.

U.S. SENATORS' ECONOMIST FEAR CATASTROPHE

Starvation, Upheaval Seen

MORTON MINTZ, Washington Post

WASHINGTON—Senators and President Ford's top economist joined Wednesday in warning that the quadrupling of oil prices during the last year may be producing a world-wide catastrophe.

Unless the prices charged by the cartel of producing nations fall "quickly and sharply, the world will maintain a headlong course toward disaster,' 'including mass starvation and social upheaval, Sen. Henry Jackson (Dem.-Wash.) told a hearing of his Senate permanent subcommittee on investigations.

"Won't some countries go bankrupt?" he asked Alan Greenspan, chairman of the president's council of economic advisers.

While expressing certain reservations, Greenspan replied, "I don't think one could rule that out."

Sen. Charles Percy (Rep.-Ill.) said he had heard "disturbing, authoritative reports that the monetary system of the world would collapse" by mid-1975 if present prices — and present energy consumption rates — continue.

Greenspan, saying that "a number of countries are running into difficulties," essentially questioned only whether the crisis point would be reached in mid-1975, mid-1976, or "conceivably later."

He also said that the United States "can't really function very much longer in a viable way with heavy double digit inflation" — inflation of 10 per cent or more per year.

Enlarging the gloom which pervaded the three-hour hearing, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff (Dem.-Conn.) said that there is "no economically or socially acceptable way for the United States" to absorb the build-up of funds by members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries which is expected to total $650 billion by the end of 1980.

Ribicoff also rejected Treasury Secretary William Simon's assurance that the present banking system can stand the strains of the OPEC surpluses and said that the price reduction of $1 per barrel sought by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger would be almost meaningless. "At a minimum the oil producers must cut their prices of oil in half," he said.

Simon, in an exchange of written questions and answers with the subcommittee, rejected claims that rising prices for goods imported by OPEC members justified oil price increases.

Kuwait's oil minister made such a claim Monday. "We have increased the price to catch up with inflation caused by the industrialized nations," Abdel Rahman Atiqui told Jim Hoagland of The Washington Post. Partly to compensate the producers "for the continuing growth of inflation," he said, the producers should increase the price of crude from the current $11.65 to $20.

The senators joined in accusing Ford of not showing a sufficient sense of urgency about the situation. "Exhortations about saving one million barrels of oil per day or driving five per cent less are not enough," said Percy.

Ribicoff said he will introduce a bill next month to require the manufacture of cars that get at least 20 miles per gallon. "By that simple act alone, we would not have an oil and energy problem in the United States," he told Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton.

Button It Up —Nixon

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Richard Nixon told two of his top aides three months after the Watergate break-in "just try to button it up as well as you can and hope for the best," according to the first of his secret tapes played today at the cover-up trial.

The tape of his Sept. 15, 1972, meeting with John Dean and H. R. Haldeman was piped through headsets provided for everyone in the courtroom after Dean had vouched for its authenticity.

"And you really can't just sit and worry yourself . . . about it all the time, thinking, 'the worst may happen,' but it may not," Nixon said toward the end of the half-hour meeting. "So you just try to button it up as well as you can and hope for the best."

Nixon, meanwhile, today sought a court order to prevent the White House from releasing any more of his tapes except those already under subpoena or needed for the Watergate conspiracy trial.

Attorney Herbert Miller said the former president did not wish to block release of material already under subpoena or needed in the trail.

Nixon wants the right to review material sought by any new subpoenas to determine whether the tapes are protected by executive privilege or his right of privacy before they are released in response to any new subpoenas. Miller said in view of a large number of pending lawsuits where the documents might be sought as evidence he expects more subpoenas will be issued, he added.

Before the tape was played, Dean testified that within a month of the Watergate bugging arrests he obtained confidential FBI reports on the status of the investigation and shared them with all five men now on trial for covering up the scandal.

Dean also testified that he had fully briefed defendant John D. Ehrlichman in June of 1972 about who was responsible for the bugging but heard Ehrlichman tell FBI agents a month later that "the only thing he knew about the break-in was what he read in the newspapers."

In his second day on the stand, the government's star witness continued to recite the story he first told the Senate Watergate hearings 16 months ago.

Dean testified that beginning in early July of 1972 he obtained reports on the status of the Watergate investigation directly from L. Patrick Gray, then acting director of the FBI.

Dean said he showed an FBI memorandum to Ehrlichman and defendants John Mitchell and Haldeman and shared "raw FBI files" with defendants Robert Mardian and Kenneth Parkinson.

Island Woods Layoffs Soar

Close to half the woodworkers on southern Vancouver Island will be laid off by the end of this month, a union spokesman said Wednesday night.

"The winter is going to be very rough on the forest industry," said Jack Groves, first vice-president of the Victoria local of the International Woodworkers of America.

He predicted 800 of the 1,800 to 1,900 IWA members in Grtater Victoria will be out of work in two weeks.

Major layoff areas include B.C. Forest Products, 150, Victoria Plywood, 200, and Plumper Bay Sawmill, 160, all of which have either occurred or are just about to, plus Sooke Forest Products where the work force will drop to 180 by the end of this week compared with 400 in the summer, he said.

Groves said it is "questionable" whether the industry is in "dire straits or is playing politics" to get the provincial government to reduce stumpage rates.

The pulp and paper section is "very lucrative" and the big companies are getting pulp chips from their own operations at a lower rate than from independent companies.

Rather than drop the price of lumber, he said, B.C. Forest Products in Victoria is reducing lumber to chips for the pulp and paper mills because more money can be made by chipping for pulp than selling as lumber.

But before, he said, the companies claimed the price of lumber was set by world markets.

"If they sold at a reasonable price before the foreign market would have continued to buy but they forced it too high and they refused to buy," he said.

"I think it's just a big political move. Certainly there are problems. But 50 per cent of the problems were created by the companies to get lower stumpage."

Britain Reinforces Troops in Ulster

Times News Services

BELFAST — The British army rushed 600 more troops to Northern Ireland today in an effort to end an outbreak of prison rioting and violence in the streets in protest against the policy of detaining suspected Irish Republican Army suspects without trial.

Demonstrators protesting the policy took to the streets of the second consecutive day today in continued violence sparked by the burning of Northern Ireland's main Maze internment camp. There were disturbances in Belfast, Londonderry, Dungannon Newry and Lurgan.

Some street barricades were reported this morning in Belfast which also was hit by a wave of firebombings during the night. Two large buildings, one in downtown Belfast and the other in the market area, were destroyed by fire during the night, police said.

Police said two of the civilians wounded by gunfire where hit when gunmen opened up on their small truck.

Three others suffered leg wounds when shots aimed at an army patrol went astray and one man was gunned down as he waited for a bus.

The army said it shot another man who threw two firebombs in a Belfast street, but a woman helped him to escape.

Security officials said the prison riot had been carefully planned and along with disturbances at Armagh and in MacGilligan prison plus the street demonstrations appeared to be a concerted drive against the policy.

Most schools remained closed and few shops were open because so few employees could make their way to work.

Meanwhile, 100 women prisoners at Armagh jail who seized the warden and three women guards freed them unharmed early today after holding them for 14 hours.

Release of the four hostages came after the jail's Roman Catholic and protestant chaplains had assured the women that male prisoners who rioted in other prisons were safe.

The British government will not disclose the number of persons held since internment was introduced in August, 1971. The highest estimate was 2,100 in January, 1972.

Vancouver Police Get The Chop

VANCOUVER (CP) — City police have been ordered to cut their hair if it doesn't conform to regulations issued Wednesday by Chief Constable Don Winterton.

An order from the Chief Constable says beards may only be worn with his permission, moustaches must be kept short and trimmed, sideburns must not extend below the base of the earlobe and hair must be tapered at the back.

Hair must be clean-shaven for at least an inch between the hairline and the collar.

"The hair of female personnel may be cut in any style providing that it is neat and tidy and does not constitute a hazard in the execution of her duty," says the directive.

According to one source, the directive affects 85% of the department's personnel.

Man. Ups Premiums

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba motorists will be paying more for their automobile insurance next year but they won't know the amount of the increase until December.

For the second straight year the corporation blames increased claims and higher vehicle repair costs as the reasons for the higher rates.

INDIANS SCALP TAXI DRIVER

VENTURA, Calif. (UPI) — A cab driver killed in a robbery at an Indian camp last week, was scalped, according to police.

George Aird, 37, of Inglewood, was stabbed to death a week ago at the camp near the Los Angeles-Ventura County line. The camp has been occupied for some time by members of the American Indian movement.

Detective Braden McKinley filed an affidavit with court Judge Albert Blandford Wednesday alleging that the cab driver was stabbed to death by two men as he stepped out of his taxi, after responding to a call from the camp.

The body was then dragged into a small wooden building and "everybody got inside the building . . . chanting and kicking the victim and passing his hair around," the detective said.

Authorities are hunting for the alleged killers, identified as Richard Rolling Thunder Mohawk, 25, and Paul Blue Cloud Durant, 29.

More Power Set For Food Board

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet said Wednesday he plans to increase the power of the food prices review board.

He gave no details, but told reporters outside the Commons that he was "looking forward to even increasing the mandate" of the year-old review board.

Currently, the board has power to report on food price trends, analyse price changes and recommend action to governments or businesses when it feels price increases are unwarranted.

Ouellet also indicated Wednesday that the federal government is considering financial support for supermarket price surveys in a number of cities across Canada.

The surveys would be similar to a pilot project conducted by the Food Prices Review Board in the Ottawa area which has aroused the ire of some food chains.

Ouellet made his statements following reports that Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the board, would resign if the board's powers were reduced.

Ouellet said he was surprised at speculation that the government planned to cut the power of the food board.

The board had been "very helpful" and the government had decided it performed a useful function.

In a related development, federal and provincial food marketing boards were accused in a government report of setting unreasonably high prices, restricting supply and benefiting from import quotas which foster inefficient domestic production.

The report, leaked earlier to the press, on consumer interest in marketing boards, prepared for the federal govetnment's consumer research council, also said the practices were benefiting only a small number of farmers and did not succeed in upgrading general farm revenue.

Land Tax Probe?

A royal commission investigation into the whole question of real property taxes in B.C. is one possibility the government is considering, Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said today.

Asked about the massive task facing the legislature's taxation committee which is preparing a report for the Nov. 1 legislative sitting recommending changes in B.C.'s property tax structure, Lorimer said the report might simply recommend interim measures rather than permanent changes in the tax system.

Some new tax measures are necessary before the end of this year to balance out legislation last spring setting all property assessments at 100 per cent of market value.

'Unfair' Questions . . . Then No Job

B.C. Hydro transit division was accused at Victoria Labor Council Wednesday night of not hiring a woman as a bus driver because she objected to answering a personal question.

Penny Harding told delegates she was asked in a job interview what were the grounds for her divorce.

She replied it was none of his business and had nothing to do with the interview or the job.

Then, she said, she was asked if she would fight if someone tried to rob her on a bus.

When she said she wouldn't fight, she said she was told "you're a lover, not a fighter."

Mrs. Harding told the labor council she has four years accident-free bus driving experience with Pacific Commuter and South West Coach Lines. She now works as an escort with Vancouver Island Coach Lines.

She said the first man who interviewed her wouldn't say why she was turned down but a second man said he had been told it was because of her "agressive personality."

"I figure that it's not right to ask unfair questions," she said.

Mrs. Harding said she has asked for a second job interview but this has been turned down by B.C. Hydro.

Labor council president Burt Grainger, a B.C. Hydro driver, said his union, the Amalgamated Transit Union, has "gone as far as it can go" in pursuing the matter with the crown corporation.

"I have seen the personnel manager. I didn't get anywhere. B.C. Hydro still has the power to hire who they wish. We can try but we have no power," he said.

Asked if there are woman bus drivers, Grainger said there is one in Victoria and a number in Vancouver.

The council agreed to write B.C. Human Rights Director Kathleen Ruff.

B.C. Hydro said this morning it is not going to reply to any of Mrs. Harding's statements except to say competition is "very stiff" for bus driving jobs and "naturally everyone who applies is not hired."

Japanese Pay More For Coal

EDMONTON (CP) — Cardinal River Coals Ltd., a subsidiary of Luscar Ltd., has negotiated a substantial increase in the price of coking coal with Japanese steel producers, Peter Cullimore, president of Luscar, said Wednesday.

Cullimore would not reveal the new price level but said the increase brings the export price for coal mined at Luscar, 200 miles west of Edmonton, into line with most other export contracts.

Cardinal has a contract calling for the export of 1.5 million tons of coking coal per year.

The company needs about 200 more workers, especially machinists, welders and electricians, to add to its current staff of 200, he said.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Oilseed prices continued to decline today in moderate activity at the close on the Winnipeg Commodity Exchange.

Some flax and rapeseed futures were down the daily limit. Rye and feed wheat also suffered substantial losses. Oats was up slightly and barley was down slightly from Wednesday's closing prices.

Wednesday's volume of trade was 1,162,000 bushels of feed wheat, 1,156,000 of oats, 1,717,000 of barley, 15,000 of corn, 557,000 of rye, 455,000 of flax and 2,983,000 of rapeseed.

CHICAGO (AP) — Farm commodity futures prices moved nervously over wide ranges on the Board of Trade today.

Only wheat futures were above previous highs when the final bell had rung. Before the close soybean futures fell the limit of 20 cents a bushel and corn was down the limit of 10 cents. Both later recovered a few cents.

This marked the third day that futures on the world's largest exchange had moved in unusually wide ranges. Some trade sources thought the reason for this was a lack of definite information from the government whether all export commitments on grains will be honored.

Wheat will be in abundance because of record crops this year, but corn and soybean production is expected to be sharply lower than the government had expected at planting time.

Trade was fairly mixed but most of the session there was a scarcity of buyers in most pits except wheat. Despite the wide swings, the volume of trade was expected to be thin.

At the close Chicago wheat was 4 to 8 cents a bushel higher, Dec. 5-17; Gulf hard red wheat not traded; corn 2 to 5½ lower, Dec. 3.81; oats 2 to 2½ lower, Dec. 1.91 and soybeans 2½ to 17 lower, Nov. 8.46.

CALGARY LIVESTOCK

CALGARY (CP) — Receipts to 11 a.m. today from the Calgary Public Stockyards totalled about 1,330 head, mostly good slaughter steers and young fed slaughter bulls.

There were a large number of slaughter cows on offer. Showing a good local and eastern demand, trade was active as A1 and A2 steers sold fully steady while young fed slaughter bulls were discounted $1 to $8 with one package selling to 45.10.

UVic Poet Charges High-Level Scuttle

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

University of Victoria's former poet-in-residence Peter Russell has claimed that "somebody at the top" in the UVic administration is scuttling his attempts to study on campus.

The English-born poet is fighting an English department ruling that prohibited him from taking a masters in English this year and it is expected the matter will be discussed by the UVic senate Nov. 6.

"Even the senate committee (reviewing the case) admitted that if I stay in the English department it will be (made) hard for me," said Russell.

English department head Dr. David Jeffrey, however, said the decision "had nothing to do with his (Russell's) academic qualifications — he's a widely read guy who has established some credibility as a poet."

Jeffrey said the department decided last April that effective September no graduate students would be admitted for a minimal period of two to three years to allow a review and overhaul of the graduate studies program.

He confirmed the matter has become "an issue" on campus but said, "as soon as we repair some breaches in the (graduate English program) fabric," students would again be admitted.

Russell and an English department committee were interviewed this week by a special senate committee on student appeals. It is expected director of the UVic creative writing department Robin Skelton will also be asked to appear before the matter comes up at senate, probably in the closed session.

"I'm not a very legalistic person, but once I get pushed down I'll fight," said Russell, who is eligible to become a special graduate student without holding a first degree if his expertise is accepted by the department.

He said UVic is "reverting to something less than a junior high school" and has forced him to take issue with the decision.

He said his registration was confirmed by the department Sept. 4 and "it wasn't until Sept. 27 that I was informed with the English department's news that I couldn't study."

Russell, 53, came to UVic from Venice, has published 12 collections of his own poetry and was a friend of Ezra Pound, Ernest Hemingway and T. S. Eliot. His position as poet in residence under the creative writing department was not renewed this year by Dean of Arts and Science J. P. Vinay, and the post has been taken by West Coast poet Charles Lillard.

"The question is when is a student a student," said Russell, adding the ironic part of the 'silly internal politics" is that after he was refused admission as a student he's found it necessary to keep himself by giving lectures in 12 departments.

"I don't even have a BA and here I'm invited to give all these lectures."

"I'm a fighter," says Russell.

Fun Night at the Spa: And It Was All Free

Our story today, friends, is about two young ladies who very nearly got a free sauna bath at a health spa, a saga of pluck and fortitude.

It begins when one of the young ladies named Lorna came into possession of two free passes for a "fun evening," including sauna.

"Let us go and have a fun evening and sauna," said Lorna to her roommate, Jill. "Well," said Jill, "you realize that this is just the old come-on." "Of course," said Lorna, who, like her roommate, is 25 and knows a thing or two, "but let's just have a fun evening and a sauna the way they suggest. If there's too much persuasion I'll just invent a husband and say I have to have his approval." "Good idea," said Jill. And off they went hippity-hop to the spa.

"Which way to the sauna?" the young ladies cried when they arrived at 8 o'clock on a Friday designated as ladies' night. But instead of the sauna they were delivered into the hands of a spectacular-looking young woman in a black leotard, red tunic and high-heeled shoes. When they had changed into shorts and tennis shoes the gorgeous attendant began to make certain measurements, carefully marked on a card, and to put them through their paces on certain pieces of equipment.

"I remember the treadmill best," Jill recalls. "Three sides of the room were covered by enormous mirrors, lit by really cruel flouresent lights. There's no way you can avoid looking at yourself and, of course, when you're on the treadmill every extra ounce of flab is shaking, you're jiggling like jello, and this gorgeous girl is standing right there with her legs looking nine feet long in her leotard and her high-heeled shoes. I kept thinking..."They're playing on some pretty horrible insecurities here, "but somehow I couldn't help but feel insecure myself."

"It's all so public, too." Lorna remembers. "There were anywhere between 20 and 30 women watching us when we grunted through the sit-ups and bum-walks and exercises that we had to do and, what's more, there were three elegant-looking young men, who we found out later to be interviewers, watching us as well. Like Jill I knew that the whole exercise was to get us to hate our figures, if not ourselves, but what I hated most was being on such public view."

Jill again: "When she took our measurements mine were 33-28-35. The obvious assumption was that I was to be considered somehwere between outright pity and contempt. The goal was 36-32-36. My immediate objective, according to the girl in the leotard, was to put on three inches of bust. I couldn't help but notice that she did not share that problem."

This ordeal being completed, the young ladies sighed and were ready to whimper for their sauna. Instead, the attendant escorted them to a small, windowless room, about 10 feet by 15 feet and left them there. Here, too, there was a fluorescent-lit floor-to-ceiling mirror where they could contemplate their mis-shapen figures until the next act began.

The next act was a tall, attractive man with an Afro haircut and a fancy suede jacket who, flashing a high octane smile and seating himself at a small desk, began by consulting the measurement cards left by the girl with the leotard.

"Ah," he said, finally, "I see that you, Jill, are here to increase your bust measurement by three inches and reduce your waist measurement by four inches. Right?"

"Actually, no," replied Jill, determined to retain her waning sense of identity. "We're really just here for a fun evening and a sauna."

The attractive young man did not smile now. The young ladies are agreed, in fact, that he became downright stern.

"This is no fun matter," he said, coldly. "This is business. Aren't you interested in your figure. Don't you care about the shape you're in? I'm here to offer you a very special rate to achieve just that, because of your special guest cards."

Lorna recalls: "I wish I could remember the rates he proposed, but there were so many it was bewildering. All that I remember is that each time we said no or that we'd think about it he proposed a new, cheaper rate and, in the end, the amount for a two-year course was about one-tenth of the rate he'd first proposed. We'd been in there so long I was getting a little panicky about ever getting out without signing something so I used the little white lie. I said I'd have to ask my husband."

The handsome young man looked critically at the nervous cigarette that Lorna had just lit.

"I see you smoke a lot," he said. "Do you have to ask your husband every time you light up a cigarette that might kill you? I suppose not. Then why do you have to ask your husband's permission for something that will make you beautiful for him? Besides if you don't join now at this ridiculously cheap rate it won't be available tomorrow. We have hundreds of women who want in at this rate."

Well, when the young ladies stuck to their story about the bogus husband, the young man seemed to accept defeat. They made their way back to the main exercise room.

But now the fluorescent lights were being turned out. The room was empty. The spa was obviously closing down for the evening. The young ladies dressed in their street clothes and went out into the night. They hadn't had their sauna, but somehow that no longer mattered. They'd got away.

FALL PROGRAM of nearly 40 community education courses offered at James Bay community school drew many residents on first day of registration Wednesday. Registrars Pat McDonagh and Janey Allan accepted applications which nearly filled the adult programs offered.

Really Great Idea —Except for Cash

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Everybody loves community schools but nobody wants to pay for them.

That's the headache James Bay community school, first community school in the city, is facing.

The Oswego St. school has scheduled nearly 40 community programs to be offered on weekends and in the evenings, but needs funds to pay operation costs.

Greater Victoria school board trustees Wednesday gave a cool reception to the idea that they pick up the tab at least until the end of December.

Estimated operating cost for community programs is $3,000 until the end of the year, $24,000 for all of 1975.

"I'm very much against money that's been provided by the government for children's education being used for adult recreation," Trustee Lavinia Greenwood told the board's construction and maintenance committee.

"I don't think I'm prepared to support even this interim two-month arrangement," Trustee William Ross said.

Ross said he was afraid the board, by paying the costs of community education programs until the end of the year, would be setting a bad precedent.

"Frankly, everybody's saying it's a good idea, everybody's saying go ahead (with community education)... but nobody's answering the question, who's paying for what," superintendent of schools Jake Longmore told the committee.

Longmore has asked for a meeting with deputy education minister Jack Fleming to try to straighten out who pays for community education.

He said he will also suggest to the board next week that it establish an ad hoc committee with members of the James Bay Community Association to talk about financing the schools.

Meanwhile, registration is continuing for the community school's winter program of courses, which include everything from macrame to drama.

James Bay principal Dave Allan said that 95 per cent of adult courses were filled the first day of registration, Wednesday.

He said what the school needs now is some interim as needs now is some interim assistance from the school board until the program gets off the ground.

"We're not asking to be carried forever," he said.

Allan said the community school may be able to get other funding from provincial government departments, from the James Bay Neighborhood Improvement Project, or even by charging fees for its courses.

But regardless of money problems, he said, "there's no way anybody is going to kill community education in James Bay."

Assistant superintendent of schools Dr. John Wiens told the committee: "I think if at all possible we should keep this thing afloat at least until January."

The board will make its final decision on the funding Monday.

Needle Clinic Misses Target For Start-Up

There won't be an acupuncture clinic in Victoria this year, Dr. H. R. Elliot, deputy minister of the provincial health branch, said from Vancouver today.

Delays in settling government policy on such clinics mean the province's first one, which had been slated for Vancouver General Hospital this fall, now has a new target date of January, he said.

Health Minister Dennis Cocke indicated in August that an acupuncture clinic would also be operating in Victoria this fall.

Elliot said the Victoria clinic will follow after some experience has been gained in Vancouver. There is still no decision where the local clinic will be located, but hopefully it will be operated by the out-patient department of some hospital.

Wherever it goes, local physicians will be in charge and the policy and terms of reference now being formulated for the Vancouver clinic will apply in Victoria as well.

Three or four doctors in Victoria have written expressing interest in the subject, Elliot said. His department's first approach to the community may be through the Victoria Medical Society, which represents local doctors.

Other indications on the clinic's organization: patients for acupuncture treatment will have to be referred to the clinic by their doctors and there will likely be a charge, possibly $5.

Earlier he had said acupuncture will be used initially only for treatment of pain and experience will determine whether it is eventually used for more complicated medical procedures.

CKDA Faces Union Bid

An official bid to unionize Radio Station CKDA was made Wednesday.

Application for certification was made by the Broadcast Division of the Canadian Union of Public Employees with the Canada Labor Relations Board in Ottawa, said union representative Richard Hughes.

At the same time, a raft of unfair labor practice charges have been laid by the union against Capital Broadcasting Systems Limited, which owns CKDA, company president David Armstrong and company vice-president and general manager, George Macdonald.

The certification application is the first by any union for any radio station on Vancouver island, Hughes said, although the union is involved in organizing Greater Vancouver radio stations, including CKLG where negotiations are in progress.

The application covers 34 CKDA employees, everyone at the station except managerial and confidential personnel.

Hughes charged that CKDA has "completely disregarded" the federal labor code, which governs labor relations in the broadcasting industry, and that the Canadian Association of Broadcasters in engaged in a plan to keep unions out of all radio stations.

Reasons which led CKDA employees to join a union, he said, are six-day work weeks, working different shifts through any one week, no job security ("but we are not looking to protect incompetents") and salaries which are "incredibly poor."

Union lawyer John Stanton said the unfair labor practice charges fall under three headings: interfering with the formation of a trade union; discriminating against a person because he is a member of a trade union; and seeking by intimidation to stop employees being union members.

Macdonald declined comment today until "we have more specific information."

City Explorers Find West's Widest, Highest Cave

By AB KENT
Times Staff

A group of Victoria cave explorers has found two huge caverns on northern Vancouver Island which they claim are the highest and widest in western Canada.

One they have dubbed the Black Hole has an exit portal 90 feet high and 150 feet wide extending at least a half mile straight into a limestone mountain in the Nimpkish river valley.

The other, the River Cave, is about half as high at the portal but inside has a room between 170 feet and 190 feet in height and 150 feet wide, and a second room 50 feet high by 100 feet across and as long as a football field.

Walking into the nearly-level cavity in the 1,500-foot mountain was likened by one of the party to being "in the Toronto Subway."

Peter Hutchings, 25, President of the Victoria chapter of the Canadian Speleogical Society (cave hunters) and vice-president of the B.C. branch of the society; Ron Frederick, 25, the local club's activities and communications director, and a friend Wayne Kelly, 23, accompanied Paul Griffiths, 24, of Vancouver, president of the B.C. region of the society on a trip north of Gold River on Thanksgiving weekend.

With them were seven students and a professor from Pearson World College, who are studying rock scaling and caving as part of their curriculum.

They made their discoveries Sunday in an isolated canyon with sheer walls which they named Dead Valley because it is choked with deadfalls and decayed trees. The exact location and the name of the river flowing into the caves they kept to themselves because they are concerned about the safety of inexperienced people who might want to see the caverns for themselves.

Hutchings described the finds as "unbeliebable — a sheer limstone cliff on a sinkhole."

"We just looked," Frederick said, momentarily baffled for a comparison of the size of the holes. "We finally decided we could fit the Chateau Victoria into the (River Cave) room."

Hutchings said the club will now mount a more exhaustive expedition including a biologist, photographer and other caving specialists.

It is extremely rough terrain with rotting trees, many of them twisted grotesquely and is the home of bears and cougar, according to the cavers. Frederick said Canadian Forest products Co. fallers refuse to work the northeast end of the main valley because they have been stalked by cougars.

Although the possibility of caverns was mentioned in a 1924 geological survey of the area, mapping was imprecise and as far as is known the caves were never located an explored.

Frederick said the group used recreational maps of the area and aerial photographs to localize the approximate site when they reasoned that the river they were interested in disappeared. They were successful in finding the place where it emerged, which led to the caves.

They found one sign of life inside an enlarged salamander measuring seven inches from nose to tip of tail and eyes that bulged, suggesting it may be a new species.

9 IN MEMORIAM

CORBETT — In loving memory of a dear wife who passed away on August 17th, 1974, Mrs. Ina A. Corbett (nee Patterson).
To Brigadier Waddell, his entire staff and many guests of Matron Lodge and others, may I take this opportunity of offering my deep appreciation for the many expressions of sympathy received by myself and the families. May God bless you all.
—Mr. W. Corbett.

FRY — In loving memory of Uncle Charlie, who passed away Oct. 16, 1944.
—Always remembered by Mary R. Burton.

—WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS.
